RICHARD CROKER, FORMER CHIEF OF TAMMANY HALL, DIES IN IRELAND

Wife Is at Bedside When One-Time Political Boss of New York City Expires at Glencairn Castle, Few Miles From Dublin—Was 79 Years Old.

LATER YEARS WERE SPENT IN IRELAND

Last Visit to United States Occurred in 1921 in Connection With the Legal Proceedings Brought by His Sons.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, April 29.—Richard Croker, formerly leader of Tammany Hall, New York, died at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at Glencairn Castle, Sandy Ford, a few miles from Dublin. His wife was at the bedside. He was 79 years old.

The former political leader spent the better part of the last 10 or 12 years in Ireland, where he owned extensive estates, making occasional visits to the United States. The last of these visits was in 1921, when he went to New York in connection with the legal proceedings instigated by his sons to prove him incapable of managing his own affairs.

Shortly after he returned to his home at Glencairn Castle he became seriously ill and his condition was described as so bad that it would be impossible for him ever to leave his bed. But he soon showed signs of improvement and early this year he was reported to have regained his health and spirits.

Croker took a keen interest in the negotiations between Ireland and England looking to a settlement of the age-long controversy over freedom for Ireland. When the treaty providing for the free state was signed he gave it as his opinion that by the pact Ireland gained practically everything fought for in the last 700 years. He believed 98 per cent of the people in America were in favor of the treaty.

CROKER ROSE FROM POVERTY TO KINGLY POWER AND RICHES

Richard Welstead Croker was born in Black Rock, near Quartertown, County Cork, Ireland, on Nov. 24, 1843. His father was Eyre Coole Croker. It has been said that Croker descended from the family of Henry Croker of Quartertown, who was a major and inspector general in the British army, and through him the Crokers trace their family back to Crokers of prominence in Ireland several centuries ago.

The father of Richard Croker was a blacksmith who, in the fall of 1846, with his wife and seven children, came forth from the steerage of the packet ship Henry Clay, through Castle Garden.

"Dick" was three years old at that time and the family went to live in a little house in the old Bloomingdale road, near what today is Ninety-ninth street. The spot where the house stood is within the limits of Central Park.

This house has been described as a "rickety, two-story structure, surrounded by high rock and a growth of trees and rubbish." At first Eyre Croker endeavored to establish himself in business as a veterinary surgeon but failed to achieve signal success, and moved down to a house in East Twenty-sixth street and later from there to Twenty-eighth street. At that time his boys, George, Edward and Dick, were too young to work.

Their father later got a place in the Thirty-second street stables of the Harlem Car Co. It is said the older Croker had Orange opinions, frequently pronounced, which led to disputes with his Roman Catholic neighbors.

School Days Were Brief.

Richard Croker's school days were brief, beginning when he was about 12 years of age, when he entered the public school in East Twenty-seventh street. It is said that his attendance there was by no means regular and that he did not take kindly to books.

It was while he was a boy at school that he first displayed the dominating tendencies of leadership

MOVIE THEATERS TO HAVE NO MUSIC AFTER TODAY

Discontinuance Follows Refusal of Theaters to Sign Contract With Musicians.

There will be no music in moving picture theaters, beginning tomorrow, as a result of the exhibitors refusing to sign their yearly contract with the musicians, beginning May 1, unless certain concessions were granted, including a 30 per cent reduction in wages and the abrogation of a rule by which the union establishes a minimum number of musicians for theater orchestras, based on the number of seats and price of admission. Vaudeville houses will have only the minimum number of five or six musicians.

About 260 musicians will be affected. The minimum wage now is $42 a week, and musicians at some of the theaters are paid $75 a week. Some exhibitors said last night they expected the dispute to be settled in a few weeks, but others said the theaters probably would be without music all summer.

William Goldman, manager of the Missouri Theater, last night said: "The controversy involved principally the minimum number of musicians the union now permits a theater to employ in its orchestra. This is three or four in many neighborhood shows that can support only one, and so their music costs them more than feature films," he said.

DEMPSEY GETS NOISY GOOD-BY LEAVING PARIS FOR BERLIN

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 29.—Jack Dempsey bade farewell to Paris today. A throng of French and American admirers accompanied him to the station and gave him a noisy send-off as he boarded a train for Berlin. He acknowledged the demonstration in a brief speech from the platform.

Just before his departure Dempsey said:

"Georges Carpentier told me after our fight in Jersey City, last July, that if I ever visited France I would never regret it. He was right. If I meet Georges in the ring again, as is most likely, I will have to carry into the arena a more truly friendly feeling than I have ever felt for any opponent."

DAUGHERTY TELLS CRUSADERS HE'LL STUDY EACH CASE

Attorney-General, However, Says Personal Application for Pardon Must Be Made by Violators.

HARDING DECLINES TO SEE DELEGATION

Secretary Christian Says President May See Families of Prisoners Following Conference.

Children's Crusade May Go to Harding's Church in an Effort to See Him

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 29.

CHECKED somewhat by failure to see President Harding, the "Children's Crusade" got little encouragement from Attorney-General Daugherty as to recommendation for executive clemency for 114 war law violators.

There was some talk that Mrs. Kate Richards O'Hare and other leaders in the American Civil Liberties Union, the organization having in charge the wives, mothers and children of the prisoners, would attend the President's church tomorrow with their charges in the hope he would hear their appeal.

From the Post-Dispatch Bureau, No. 20 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Attorney-General Daugherty promised a delegation representing the "Children Crusade" this afternoon that, while there would be no general amnesty for so-called political prisoners convicted under the espionage act, he would nevertheless give careful attention to every case in which an individual application for pardon was made by the convicted persons.

Patting Mrs. W. B. Hough of Rockford, Ill., on the hand, Daugherty said: "Now don't you worry, I am going to take up your son's case at once."

Mrs. Hough is the mother of Clyde Hough, who was convicted at the Chicago I. W. W. trials and sentenced to Leavenworth for five years.

The delegation which called on Daugherty after President Harding had declined to see the crusaders at the White House, was composed of Mrs. Hough, Mrs. Kate Richards O'Hare of St. Louis, and Miss Mary Fendall, an active worker of the American Civil Liberties Union, who was one of a committee from the Union which met the party on its arrival here this morning.

Merits to Be the Guides.

Daugherty said he was studying the record in the cases of the prisoners for whom the crusade, which is composed of the wives and children of some of them, is seeking amnesty. He said each case would be considered on its merits and that he would welcome any information that might be given him. Putting in other words his statement that there would be no general amnesty, Daugherty said that no case would be considered unless an application should be filed by the prisoner.

Mrs. O'Hare, leader of the crusade, and the Washington women who have associated themselves with her effort, are hopeful that the President will yet see a delegation representing the 35 women and children who made the St. Louis to Washington journey. Secretary Christian this morning told Mrs. O'Hare, Mrs. Hough, Miss Fendall and Mrs. Charles Edward Russell, wife of the Socialist author, that the President before seeing them wanted to talk with Daugherty after they had laid their case before the latter.

President Won't See Them.

After the call on the Attorney-General, Mrs. O'Hare and her charges had lunch at the Y. W. C. A. cafeteria and then went to the rooms provided for them for a rest.

The "crusaders" organized in St. Louis reached its goal, the White House, this morning, only to find the President, for the time being, inaccessible. Mrs. Kate Richards O'Hare of St. Louis, leader of the crusade carrying 3-year-old Helen Hicks in her arms, was admitted to the executive offices, with Mrs. W. B. Hough of Rockford, Ill., the mother of a prisoner, and Mrs. Charles Edward Russell and Miss Mary Fendall of Washington. The latter two are members of the American Civil Liberties Union, which has arranged for the care of the 35 women and children in the "crusade" while they are in Washington.

FORMER SHERIFF IS FOUND GUILTY IN BANK ROBBERY

Deposed Illinois Officer and Others Are Convicted of Complicity in Holdup at Panama.

NEW TRIAL MOTION HOLDS UP SENTENCE

Information of Woman at Whose Home Loot Was Divided Preceded Indictment.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HILLSBORO, Ill., April 29.—John W. Wilson, 42 years old, of Greenville, former Sheriff of Bond County; Ben Battleson, 28, also of Greenville, former constable; and Walter O'Malley, 24, of St. Louis, were found guilty by a jury in the Circuit Court here this afternoon of burglary and larceny in robbing the Panama (Ill.) bank of $36,000 in cash and bonds last Dec. 12.

Iterposition of a motion for new trial prevented the punishment being fixed. It may be from 3 to 20 years in the penitentiary, at the discretion of the Court.

The case against Johnson Mayfield, of Greenville, charged jointly with the others, was nolle prossed.

The trial began last Monday. The case was given to the jury at 5:17 p. m. and the verdict was returned at 5:52. Wilson's wife, son and two daughters were with him.

During Pleaded Guilty.

Paul Durling of Greenville, indicted with the others, pleaded guilty in January and was given an indeterminate sentence of 3 to 14 years. He is serving his term in Chester prison, but was brought back to be used as a witness against the others. Battleson also admitted his complicity and was used as a witness against the others, but stood trial. It is expected that in recognition of his service as a State witness he will receive a shorter sentence.

A blue automobile used by the robbers was the clew which led to arrests and convictions. Paul Durling owned such a machine and although Durling, who drove it, had blackened his face to divert suspicion, the automobile was identified.

Supposed Pursuer Wounded.

The robbery was committed at 9:45 a. m., officials of the bank being held up by several armed men. As they were driving out of town Jack Williams, unaware that there had been a robbery, drove in the same direction, and the robbers, thinking that he was following them, fired on him, striking him in the face.

Battleson fell under suspicion when it was learned that he had entered the bank a short time before it was robbed and had followed the car over a portion of its flight. He was arrested six days later while attending services at the Free Methodist Church. After a time he made admissions. Durling, when the detectives were closing in on him, gave up.

Mrs. Jerry Brown, to whose home near Pocahontas the robbers went from Panama, and where they divided the loot, told the authorities what she knew of the case and Wilson and the others were indicted.

Wilson tendered his resignation as Sheriff to the Board of Supervisors, but withdrew it, whereupon the Supervisors declared the office vacant and appointed his successor.

The testimony at the trial was that Wilson helped plan the robbery and so maneuvered the pursuit of the robbers that they were permitted to escape.

Only a small poriton of the loot has been recovered.

SEARCH FOR ANDEAN MONSTER FRUITLESS; PARTY TO RETURN

Hope of Finding Plesiosaurus Not Given Up, However—Expedition Will Try Again Next Year.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, April 29.—Search for the plesiosaurus in the wilds of Patagonia having proved fruitless, the expedition which set out from Buenos Aires has decided to return. This is made known in dispatches from Bariloche, which are confirmed by Prof. Clementi Onelli, director of the Buenos Aires Zoological Gardens, who explains, however, that the return of the expedition is necessary on account of approaching winter.

Hope has not been given up of finding the monster reported to have been seen in an Andean lake, and Prof. Onelli plans to send another searching expedition in the summer of next year.

RULING AGAINST TAX EXEMPTION FOR WILSON FUND VOID

Secretary Mellon Orders Withdrawal Pending Further Consideration of Foundation Contributions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Secretary Mellon today ordered withdrawn, pending further consideration, the ruling of the Internal Revenue Bureau that contributions to the Woodrow Wilson Foundation were not exempt from income taxes.

Announcement of Mellon's action was made in a letter to Senator Glass of Virginia, made public tonight by the Treasury. The letter was made public following a conference of Mellon with Assistant Commissioner Smith of the Revenue Bureau, acting in the absence of Commissioner Blair.

The letter to Senator Glass said: "The question of whether the contributions to the Woodrow Wilson Foundation were exempt from the Federal income tax has only come to my attention since the publicity given to the recent ruling made. While the case differs essentially from the McKinley Memorial Association, it seems to me that in the present ruling due consideration has not been given to the effect of the congressional interpretation as to what constitutes an exclusively educational purpose in the incorporation of the Roosevelt Memorial Association.

"I have accordingly asked Commissioner Blair to have the ruling heretofore made reviewed with a view to determining whether the contributions to the Woodrow Wilson Foundation should not be treated in the same way as those made to the Roosevelt Memorial Association.

"Under the circumstances it has seemed to me proper that I should advise you of this action and that the ruling will be withdrawn pending further consideration of the matter."

BUILDING PERMITS BREAK LAST YEAR'S 4-MONTH RECORD

Estimated Cost Is Over Twice That of Structures Arranged for in Same Period of 1921.

Permits have been issued for the construction during the first four months of 1922 of buildings estimated to cost $6,315,866. This is more than double the estimated cost of buildings for which permits were issued during the same period in 1921.

For the first quarter of 1921, 3103 building permits were issued for the erection of structures estimated to cost $3,149,430. In 1922, 3331 permits were issued, which is an increase of 228 in the number of permits issued and the estimated cost of the buildings increased $3,166,436.

The number of permits issued for each month and the estimated cost of the buildings for the four months is as follows:

	Number of Permits	Estimated Cost
January	480	$1,119,530
February	662	1,285,735
March	1026	1,799,005
April	1163	2,111,596
1921
January	444	$ 333,025

POWERS ADOPT PREAMBLE OF PLAN TO HELP RUSSIA

SUMMARY OF PREAMBLE OF ALLIED PLAN TO RESTORE RUSSIA AND BRING PEACE

Powers to Join in International Consortium—Economic Aid to Be Participated In by All.

By the Associated Press.

GENOA, April 29.—The preamble of the proposals to Russia, adopted today by the subcommission on Russian affairs of the economic conference, begins by emphasizing the desire of all countries participating in the conference to consider earnestly and sympathetically the problem of the restoration of Russia in order to re-establish peace throughout the European continent.

After setting forth the situation in Russia, the preamble carefully points out that the world, although temporarily embarrassed by the fact that Russia no longer exports foodstuffs and raw materials, can very well go on without her because this deficiency will be filled from other sources, and "because commerce, like water, always finds new channels when the old ones are obstructed."

The preamble insists upon the necessity of foreign producers and traders re-entering Russia, but says this is attainable only by insuring for foreigners who possessed property in Russia their safety, and by acknowledging Russia's debts. Capital will flow into Russia the moment confidence is established, it continues.

"All countries represented at Genoa emphasize their desire to help in reconstruction," the preamble declares. "Business men fear the loss of their capital if invested in a country deprived for the moment of normal means of production, but the moment the first pioneers succeed they will be followed by others."

Consortium Plan.

"Several European countries have decided to institute an international consortium with an initial capital of £20,000,000, which capital may seem inadequate for the vastness of the work to be accomplished, but it must be remembered this capital is provided by the national corporations of each country. Behind this capital are the whole financial resources of each country ready to finance any enterprise approved by the international corporation. Besides, some of these countries are in a position to advance large sums to their nationals, who will undertake to trade with Russia or establish themselves in Russia for this purpose.

"In addition to this, individuals who can prove that their enterprises are properly guaranteed in Russia will be able to obtain credits from their own national banks. In Great Britain the trade facilities act guarantees capital or interests for financial enterprises overseas. This act might be applied to Russia, there being £25,000,000 available, which the British Parliament may be induced to increase. There is also in the English system credit in order to facilitate the exportation of English goods, whereby transactions are guaranteed up to £26,000,000, of which £15,000,000 can still be disposed of.

French Participation.

"France cannot contribute financially at the present moment because expenditures must be sustained for the reconstruction of her devastated regions. The French Government, however, has accepted the Cannes principle for French participation in the international consortium for a share equal to the British participation. France can offer Russia seeds of every kind. Arrangements already have been prepared for sending to Russia several thousand tractors, with the necessary personnel, and also veterinary stations and stations for vegetable pathology and agricultural chemistry. France offers 1200 locomotives, 25,000 trucks and 3500 railway coaches. A special company might be formed for the purpose of lending rolling stock and caring for its upkeep and repair and supplying the necessary technical personnel.

"French industrial leaders, who in great numbers contributed to enrich various parts of Russia, might restart their factories the moment they receive the necessary guarantees, when they will undoubtedly find in France or abroad the necessary capital, and also the technical personnel that would be needed.

Offers of Other Countries.

"Italy will subscribe 20 per cent of the capital of the international consortium and is ready to support any enterprise aiming at re-establishment of land and water transportation. She is also ready to organize the sale of her goods in Russia. Italian agricultural organizations are ready to co-operate in the resurrection of agriculture in Russia, while their technical personnel will participate in the revival of Russian industries.

"Japan also offers assistance, granting a credit of 8,000,000 yen to the Russo-Japanese Development Co. Besides, she intends to carry out any other projects which she considers necessary to facilitate commercial relations between the two countries.

"The Belgian Government has passed a special appropriation of 250,000,000 francs in order to facilitate exportations. The greater part of this sum is still available and can be utilized to help Russia. The Belgian Government has decided to submit to Parliament a bill allowing Belgian financiers to participate in the international consortium in the proportion of 20 per cent of its capital.

"Finally, if modifications in the present Russian regime be such as to restore confidence in workmen, engineers and capitalists, it is certain that private initiative will find in Belgium the enormous sums necessary in order to repair, reconstruct and restart Belgian factories and mines in Russia, for which it is estimated 1,000,000,000 francs will be necessary.

"Time is an indispensible factor for the reconstruction of Russia, but what is important is to begin. The moment the first impulse is given, the moment the first pioneers establish themselves in Russia, letting the world know that they are successful, others will follow them, all the more numerous because the road to Russia has been closed for such a long time."

BRITAIN, BELGIUM AND JAPAN TO GIVE CREDITS, FRANCE RAILROAD MATERIAL

Italy to Aid by Inland Water Transportation — United States Not Mentioned, but Plan Is Wide Enough in Scope to Take In Whole World.

DEBTS QUESTION LEFT TO COMMITTEE

Proposals Said to Contemplate Retention by Soviets of Nationalization Doctrine, and Yet Grant Use of Property to Foreigners.

By the Associated Press.

GENOA, April 29.—The Powers have prepared the preamble of their magna charta for Russia. It outlines how Europe will give practical financial and economic help to permit that great country's restoration and reconstruction.

Across the Asiatic littoral, Japan promises to contribute her portion of money to assist in the reorganization of Russia, and although the United States is not mentioned in the preamble, it is wide enough in scope to take in the whole world, for its framers voice the conviction that once confidence is felt that foreigners can normally engage in enterprises in Russia, the banks of all countries will willingly advance funds to their citizens to invest in Russia.

Great Britain and Belgium, as well as Japan to a lesser degree, are placing credits at the disposal of enterprises in Russia; France will provide railroad material; Italy will help by inland water transportation and all will participate in an international consortium. The subcommission on Russian affairs has already adopted article one of the documents, which is directed against propaganda by the bolsheviki or attempts to change the existing frontiers. This has chief reference to Besarabia, now part of Rumania. An arrangement also was reached on the momentous question of the nationalization of private property.

Nationalization to Remain.

Apparently some compromise on the project has been devised by the jurists whereby the soviets are able to adhere to their great doctrine of nationalization and simultaneously satisfy the foreign Governments and peoples by granting the use of the property, instead of admitting actual ownership. The text of this article has been kept secret, but it will come up again Monday for consideration.

Differences developed between England and France on the question of Russia's war debts, France insisting that Russia recognize them in their entirety, though ready to scale them down later. The question was left to a committee.

On the question of war debts England proposed that the percentage whereby the war debts were to be reduced could be decided by the Supreme Court of the United States. During this discussion M. Barthou said France was willing to grant facilities for payment such as a moratorium and was even ready to consent to reductions at a later date; meanwhile, France demanded unqualified recognition by the soviet of the war debts.

Changes in Position.

When his attention was called to the fact that reductions had apparently been promised in the note of April 15 to the soviet, M. Barthou pointed out that the soviet had substantially changed its position and therefore the powers had the same right. M. Barthou was ready to favor many different concessions, but wished to call attention to the fact that the Government could only recommend, while parliament must decide.

LORD AND LADY ASTOR FIND "THRILLS A-PLENTY," THEY SAY

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Rounding out a day replete "with thrills a-plenty," as they described their experiences, Lord and Lady Astor tonight were guests of honor at a reception given by the National League of Women Voters at its new headquarters here. Both made brief addresses, thanking their hostesses for the compliment bestowed upon them.

Lady Astor and her husband called at the White House shortly before noon and were introduced to President and Mrs. Harding by Senator Hale of Maine, after which they were driven to the Capitol.

By virtue of their membership in the British Parliament they were received on the floor of the Senate, where an impromptu reception was held. Senators Swanson of Virginia, Hitchcock of Nebraska and Williams of Mississippi acted as hosts on the Democratic side, and Senators Hale of Maine and Kellogg, Minnesota, did the honors on the Republican side.

FOREIGNERS, HELD IN KILLINGS, TAKEN TO JACKSONVILLE

Force of 16 Armed Guards Removes Party of 29 Prisoners From the Beardstown Jail.

CROWD GATHERS BEFORE DEPARTURE

Slaying of Sheriff and Two Deputies Followed Visit of Officers to Warn Laborers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BEARDSTOWN, Ill., April 29.—A force of 16 armed guards this afternoon took to Jacksonville the 29 foreign laborers arrested here after the killing of Sheriff Edward Lashbrook of Schuyler County and Deputies Carl Neff and Frank Utter in the town of Frederick, across the Illinois River from Beardstown.

The triple killing, which was followed today by the killing of a foreigner who fled from a pursuing posse, was the culmination of trouble which occurred here and at neighboring places with the "Greeks," as these laborers were called. The men, employed as section hands, have been stationed here and at adjoining points in the last few days to repair damage done by the flood to the tracks of the C. B. & Q. Railroad.

A Coroner's jury, sitting at Frederick today, returned a verdict of "death from causes unknown," in the cases of Sheriff Lashbrook and his two deputies. The news of the death of Deputy Neff reached the Coroner as the jury was being sworn in.

Arrested at Beardstown.

As has been told, the laborers fired on the Sheriff and his deputies when the officers went last night to their box-car home, on the track near Frederick, to warn them to conduct themselves peaceably. Deputy James M. Kelly was the only one of the officers who escaped. The foreigners rushed to a passenger train and rode across the river to Beardstown, and were arrested on their arrival here, upon telephone information.

A gathering of several hundred persons formed about the jail here at noon today, when the prisoners were to be started for Jacksonville. The prisoners were brought out and placed in automobiles, from which they were transferred to a train in the yards, while the crowd, which had been left behind, was approaching.

Deputy Kelly, survivor of the affray, headed the posse which killed one man outside Frederick at 2:30 this morning. Another was arrested at Browning, five miles up the river. He had walked the distance and was caught attempting to board a train. Cartridges and a razor were found in his pockets.

Result of Plot, Doctor Says.

Dr. W. T. McElroy of Frederick, after an examination of the bodies of the officers, and a survey of the scene of the shooting, said he believed the killing was the result of a carefully laid plot. A barricade of mattresses had been laid in the car, in anticipation of shooting by officers, he said. Deputy Utter, who was well known to the laborers, was shot at arm's length, his face being powder-marked.

State's Attorney Morning of Schuyler County said there were indications that agitators from Frederick and other places had caused the action of the laborers. He plans to make a further inquiry into this phase of the matter.

A special session of the Schuyler County grand jury has been called for Monday morning at Rushville, to investigate the killings. Judge Guy L. Williams of Havana will preside.

Three of the prisoners today admitted to local officials that shots were fired from the bunk cars. Deputy Kelly stated to the Coroner's jury that all shots, so far as he could tell, came from the cars. An inspection of the cars today showed that the doors and windows were barricaded with ties. Thursday night there were several shots fired in the vicinity.

TESTIFIES AIR MAIL CONTRACT WOULD MEAN SAVING IN TIME

New York-Chicago Service Would Be Day Quicker, C. J. Peterson Tells House Committee.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—A full day's-saving in delivery of mail between New York and Chicago would result from establishment of regular air service by Government contract, C. J. Peterson, of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation, Paterson, N. J., testified today before the House Postoffice Committee.

Peterson was of the opinion, however, the air mail rate for letters should be higher than six cents, as stipulated in the Steenerson bill which would authorize the Postmaster-General to contract with companies for such service. Other proponents of the bill expressed belief that banks and business houses would be willing to pay a higher rate provided delivery and safety of the mail was guaranteed.

Second Assistant Postmaster-General Henderson urged favorable action b ythe committee as a means of encouraging development of commercial aviation and the resultant speeding up of the delivery through private contracts.

U. S. AGAIN REFUSES TO TAKE TROOPS FROM HAITI

Secretary Hughes Tells Committee Arguments for Withdrawal of Marines Are One-Sided and Inadequate.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Another plea for immediate termination of the military occupation of Haiti met with a refusal today at the State Department.

A committee of lawyers who brought to the department a brief declaring the occupation to be out of harmony with American principles were told plainly by Secretary Hughes that their arguments appeared to him "most inadequate and one-sided." He added that the department was fully advised from its sources regarding all the elements of the situation and was working to re-establish tranquillity so that American marines could be withdrawn as soon as things warrant.

The delegation represented the National Popular Government League and the Foreign Policy Association, two organizations which are charging that the policy of the administration constitutes unwarranted interference in Haiti's domestic affairs, negatives the principles of the American Constitution, destroys American prestige before the world and lays the American Government open to accusations of tyranny and imperialism.

Spokesmen for Committee.

Those who acted as spokesmen for the committee were Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, Louis Marshall of New York, and Michael Francis Doyle of Philadelphia. In reply to their representations, Secretary Hughes said: "It is a pleasure to meet you personally and give you this opportunity to make your statements with regard to the relations of the United States to Haiti. I cannot, however, permit my silence to be misinterpreted. I must say that I regard the statements that have been made as most inadequate and one-sided.

"I am fully conscious of international obligations. This situation with which we are confronted is an existing situation which calls for a careful study and a very wise examination and decision as to policy. You need not suppose that this study has not been made. You need not suppose that all the matters that are involved have not been considered. Quite the contrary is the case.

Recently Visited Haiti.

"I am not only advised intimately and directly of the conditions in Haiti, but I also have had the benefit of the reports and informal communications from the committee of Senators who have recently visited Haiti and who regardless of party affiliations have concurred in the statements which they have made regarding conditions in Haiti. As I have said, it is a condition of fact which has to be very carefully considered.

"This Government is proceeding in this matter at this time in the desire to secure, in the first place, an effective co-ordination of the action which is being taken in accordance with administration so that difficulties which have existed in the past may be removed. It is also considering all that is essential for the tranquillity and well-being of the people of Haiti, and of course we are most desirous that the military occupation shall end just as soon as it can properly end.

"You need not for a moment suppose that any of these matters are not engaging the attention of the department, and we have very full information, in the light of which I am bound to say that the statements that you have made here are extremely inadequate."

Arranges Daugherty Meeting.

While the delegation waited in his office, Secretary Christian telephoned to the Department of Justice and made an appointment for them with Secretary Daugherty. They departed in a few minutes, gathered together the band which had remained in the White House yard and set out on foot for the department, several blocks away.

"Mr. Christian was very polite," said Miss Fendall, who has made many visits to the White House in behalf of political prisoners. "We hope that we shall get to see the President later."

"We are all well," said Mrs. O'Hare, on arrival. "Everybody has treated us beautifully on the way. We expect to camp here in Washington till we get some action."

A committee from the American Civil Liberties Union met the "crusaders" and piloted them through the station to a row of nine waiting automobiles.

In front, marching with Mrs. O'Hare, was a lad with an American flag. Mrs. O'Hare led one of the small members of the party, whose toddling legs did their best to keep up with the procession. F. P. O'Hare, husband of the leader, had a busy time of it seeing that none of the little ones strayed from the line.

A dozen or more banners told what they had come for. "Four years since I saw my daddy," read a bobbing placard carried by one of the youngest, and another, in the hands of a wee member: "A month old when daddy saw me last."

Tears Give Way to Smiles.

Most of the children were grave and unsmiling. Little Helen Hicks, whose father has never seen her, save in the movies at Leavenworth prison, cried a little. She was tired after the long journey. Women in the party mothered her, and the tears gave way to smiles. Outside the station the party lined up for pictures. An officious station policeman in plain clothes was gruff in ordering the party about, and a man stepped up and rebuked him. Kindness and sympathy from officials and onlookers was the rule. Many persons hurrying to trains stopped to read the banners and gaze at the young-old faces.

The party drove down Pennsylvania avenue, scene of many a parade. It had never seen such a doleful one as this. Flags were out all along the way, but not for this party. They were the decorations left from the celebration of Thursday, when soldiers marched in tribute to Gen. Grant.

The cars were drawn up at the curb across the street from the White House and more pictures were taken by a small army of movie men. The children posed philosophically, holding their banners so the inscriptions would show.

Lady Astor Saw Him.

Lady Astor was coming out of the front door of the White House at the time, and telling reporters that she had had a "perfectly lovely time with the President."

Close on the heels of her visit, the crusaders, after more pictures showing them marching back and forth in front of the White House, started into the grounds. Policemen required them to leave all banners, except the flag, outside. Halfway up the drive leading to the front door, Mrs. O'Hare, leading the procession, was halted by Chief Usher Hoover of the White House staff, who told her they would have to use the driveway at the side leading to the executive offices. He was very polite, but firm. Mrs. O'Hare maneuvered the line out of the forbidden path and into the one designated.

White House attaches brought word that the President would not see the party, but that Secretary Christian would receive a committee.

Mrs. O'Hare and Mrs. Hough, with the two committeewomen from the American Civil Liberties Union, then went in.

The union recently raised over $200 among its members to aid in caring for the party in Washington. For a day or two they will be quartered with private families and then will move into two apartments which the union has rented at Second street and Florida avenue.

'DEBT CAN NEVER BE FORGOTTEN' HARDING SAYS TO EX-SOLDIERS

Message From President Read at New York Legion Dinner Given to MacNider.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 29.—"The country's debt to its former service men is one of honor and can never be forgotten or neglected," President Harding stated in a message read tonight at a dinner given in honor of Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American Legion, by the New York department of the organization.

Regretting that official engagements had prevented him from attending, the President wrote:

"In notifying you to this effect, I want you and your associates to know that my own disappointment is in no way second to your own. It woudl be a particular gratification to be able to join with your guests in doing honor to Commander MacNider, in whom we would feel that we were also honoring the great body of the legion and all ex-service men. We cannot too often, or too highly testify the exalted esteem in which the nation holds these men who so splendidly served in its great crisis."

JOFFRE WAVES GOODBYE AS BAND PLAYS 'AULD LANG SYNE'

Marshal Stands at Attention, Then Waves Red and Gold Hat as Liner Makes for Open Sea.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 29.—With the strains of "Auld Lang Syne" played by a municipal band as the liner Celtic sped by the Statue of Liberty, Marshal Joffre waved good-by to America today and began the last lap of his world tour.

The band was aboard the police boat John F. Hylan, which had gone down the bay to give the French General a last farewell from New York.

The Marshal stood at attention for a moment after the band began, then suddenly waved his red and gold hat, grew more enthusiastic and waved his cane as the big liner slipped away toward the open sea.

Gets New Tires by Ruse.

Three men who left St. Louis with a fourth to tour to California in an automobile, were stranded at St. Charles by their companion Friday night, when he drove away with the car after obtaining two new tires and a tank full of gasoline at their expense. An agreement, stipulating that they would be taken to California if they paid for gasoline and running expenses, had been made between the men and their partner, who owned the car. At St. Charles the owner decided that two new tires were necessary, and the party stopped at a garage, where the tires and a supply of gasoline were put in. While the three were discussing financial settlement, the owner jumped in the car and drove away.

FARMER RELEASED AFTER GRILLING ON GIRL'S DEATH

Former Fiance of Gertrude Hanna Admits He Betrayed Her, but Denies Killing Her.

BODY FOUND IN PARSONAGE BASEMENT

Mystery Still Surrounds Disappearance and Cause of Death, Which Occurred Three Weeks Ago.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOOPESTON, Ill., April 29.—With the release early this morning of John C. Wyman, wealthy retired farmer and church elder, who confessed yesterday that he was the former fiance of Gertrude Hanna, whose body was found in the basement of the United Presbyterian parsonage here, the officials admitted they had made no progress toward a solution of the mystery surrounding the girl's disappearance four weeks ago.

Wyman was released after 24 hours of questioning. The examination conducted by Sheriff Charles N. Knox and John H. Lowman, State's Attorney, failed to produce one fact that would permit them to hold the man in custody any longer, they said.

Wyman, who is [illegible] years old, admitted he had betrayed the girl six months ago.

"But I didn't kill her," he shouted. "I met her years ago. We went to church together. We grew to be friends. She went away for a time and then returned. I met her one night at the church and we took a long walk out into the country.

"I told her I loved her, but she said it was no use. She told me to forget it. Later I went to live with her folks. I loved her and told her so and begged her to marry me, but she always refused."

He hesitated a moment. His gaze wandered out of the window and across the town in the direction of the parsonage.

"But I didn't kill her and you have no evidence that points in that direction."

Released After Examination.

A few minutes later he was released.

"But we're keeping our eye on him," said the Sheriff.

During the day Wyman remained in the business district. He refused to talk to reporters, but joined in several games of marbles with small boys.

But while the authorities were admitting they are facing a blank wall and that they know no more about the crime than they did five minutes after they discovered the body of the young woman, Wesley T. Hanna, father of the girl, announced that he was going to open a private investigation into the affair. He said he believed Wyman knew more about his daughter's disappearance than he cares to tell.

"The man has proved that he wasn't in Hoopeston on the day Gertrude disappeared," the father said. He was sitting in the office of his mill that has brought him a considerable fortune during the last 30 years.

"But no one knows where the man was all of the time during the four weeks that followed her disappearance. He says he was in Danville part of the time and other places part of the time. Some of these statements have been checked up and some have been found to be untrue.

"Tomorrow I am going to drive to the house in the country from where Gertrude disappeared. I am going over every bit of ground in the entire neighborhood and see if I cannot learn something more than the authorities know."

Hanna believes someone knows where the crime—if it was a murder—was committed. He says there are several deserted farm houses and buildings in the neighborhood of the farm and that he thinks the crime may have been committed in one of these.

Cause of Death Not Determined.

It has not been established whether the girl died from poison, from suffocation, or from other forms of violence. The organs of the body are at the laboratory at the University of Illinois.

Several of the officials in the town believe that the girl, who was approaching maternity, may have planned an operation with the aid of Wyman. Even her father leans toward this theory.

The officials are trying to learn where the girl's body was for at least three weeks of the period during which she was missing. It has been established that Gertrude died three weeks ago. She disappeared four weeks ago yesterday. The body was found in the parsonage Wednesday. It has been established that it was not there April 13, when several persons visited the basement.

Every bit of evidence that has beed collected by the police will be presented to the Vermillion County grand jury as soon as it convenes. Chief of Police C. J. Bogart asserts that he has some additional information, but refuses to disclose its nature.

CHINA CIVIL WAR OPENS WITH HEAVY FIRE NEAR PEKIN

Manchu and Central China Forces Are Contending for Mastery of Nation's Internal Affairs.

NAVY SIDES AGAINST MANCHURIAN ARMY

Foreigners Advised to Stay in City and Display Flags—U. S. Legation Is Reinforced.

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, April 29.—Civil war in China started today with heavy cannonading in the neighborhood of Pekin. The armies of Gen. Chang Tso-Lin, military Governor of Manchuria, and Gen. Wu Pei-Fu, military leader of Central China, who are contending for the mastery of China's internal affairs, opened fire along a wide front.

As near as it is possible to estimate, the front extends from Machang, south of Tientsin, on the Pukow Railroad across the country westward to Paotingfu, on the Pekin-Hankow Railroad, thence northward to Chang Sin Tien, 12 miles southwest of Pekin.

The hostilities are said to have been due to an ultimatum from Gen. Wu Pei-Fu giving Chang Tso-Lin 24 hours to evacuate Pekin and withdraw his troops from Mukden. The ultimatum was ignored.

Hostilities were opened at Machang with artillery. Almost simultaneously cannonading began at Chang Sin Tien. Wu Pei-Fu, who controls the Pekin-Hankow Railroad, is transporting troops from the Yangtze with a view to turning Chang Tso-Lin's west wing, located at Chang Sin Tien. It is believed Wu Pei-Fu designs to drive Chang Tso-Lin's forces from about Pekin.

American Legation Reinforced.

The fighting near Chang Sin Tien centered around the river crossing known as the Marco Polo bridge. Pekin was awakened at dawn by the sound of cannonading which continued throughout the day. Foreign residents who mounted the city wall could hear the firing distinctly. From the western hills outside the city, where many summer homes are situated, the fighting at Chang Sin Tien was witnessed by numerous civilians.

Most of the foreigners returned to the city on the advice of the legations. They were advised also to display their national flags and this was done particularly by the Americans. Some of the city gates were closed. The authorities warned that all the gates would be closed later in the day.

One hundred and fifty American bluejackets and marines have arrived to reinforce the legation. The total number of guards at all the legations is about 1000.

Admiral Issues Statement.

Advices from Tsingtao and Shantung report that the Japanese are reinforcing their guards along the Shantung Railway; these recently had been decreased in number as a result of the Washington conference. The American Consul at Nanking reports that two Chinese cruisers in sympathy with Wu Pei-Fu have departed from Chefoo and are proceeding for Shanhaikuan, near the great wall, for the purpose of destroying the railroad to Mukden, thus cutting Chang Tso Lin's rear.

The Admiral of the Chinese fleet has notified the Government that it is his purpose to support Wu Pei-Fu. In his message he said: "The reason China is disunited may be attributed to the militarists. Chang Tso-Lin moved inside the great walls without reason. Unless the Manchurians withdraw we, with the fleet, will exterminate Chang Tso-Lin."

This doubtless refers to the plan to cut the railroad north of Shanhaikuan.

Evidence of the feeling of the Chinese in the outlying districts was observable in Pekin last night, when thousands of natives entered the western and southern gates carrying their valuables to safety. All kinds of vehicles came in loaded with goods and accompanied by women and children. Inside the gates the Chinese transported their money and jewelry to the banks.

The firing appeared to diminish when darkness fell.

C. M. ADAMS' FUNERAL HELD

Oil Man Was Pilgrim Congregational Church Member for 37 Years.

The funeral of Charles M. Adams, 79, of the Buckingham Hotel, who died Wednesday, was held yesterday afternoon from Pilgrim Congregational Church, of which he had been a member for 37 years. He came here 45 years ago to take charge of this district for the Standard Oil Co. After the organization of the Waters Pierce Oil Co., he served as secretary or treasurer, or both, until he retired about 12 years ago.

He was one of the organizers and a charter member of the Mercantile Club, was for many years a member of the Merchants' Exchange and a member of the St. Louis Club until his death. The widow and a daughter, Mrs. George E. Lane, and two granddaughters survive.

SENATE ORDERS INQUIRY IN NAVAL OIL RESERVE CASE

All Private Leases to Sinclair Interests in Several Fields Also to Come Under Scrutiny.

TARIFF BILL LAID ASIDE FOR RESOLUTION

Public Lands Committee to Conduct Investigation Which Will Cover Acts of Last Administration.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 29. — Attacks on the Government lease of Wyoming naval oil reserves to the Sinclair interests today culminated in the Senate ordering an investigation.

Under a resolution presented by Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, and adopted, 58 to nothing, all private leases in the two California naval oil reserves, as well as the Salt Creek, or Tea Pot Dome district, to the Sinclair interests, also are to be investigated. The inquiry promises to cover acts of the last administration and furnish another spectacular conservation controversy.

Secretary Denby said, so far as the Navy Department was concerned, the investigation was welcomed. Secretary Fall is out of the city.

To put through the La Follette resolution the Senate laid aside the tariff bill by unanimous consent. The resolution was adopted with brief debate, but for more than two hours afterward discussion, with a partisan tinge, ensued.

Fall and Denby Attacked.

During this, Secretaries Fall and Denby were attacked and defended for having made the Sinclair lease.

Prior to action on the La Follette resolution the Interior Department sent to the Senate a copy of the Wyoming reserve lease made April 7 to the Mammoth Oil Co., a Delaware corporation, of which Harry L. Sinclair is president, giving the corporation exclusive development rights for 20 years or during productivity of the wells on a royalty basis ranging from 12½ to 50 per cent. The lease was signed by Secretaries Fall and Denby and Sinclair. It gives the Sinclair interests the privilege of buying all oil and gas developed in the leased district of over 9000 acres, requires them to exchange and deliver oil to the navy, requires them to provide permanent storage and also to construct pipe line facilities to Chicago.

The Senate investigation is to be made by the Public Lands Committee of which Senator Smoot is chairman. Although an immediate inquiry was urged by Senator La Follette, a start must be deferred, Senator Smoot said tonight, until information called for by the La Follette resolution from the Interior and Navy Departments is prepared and transmitted. This includes all leases and other documents and information. The resolution also requires the committee to report on the drilling of private wells near the naval reserves and to make recommendations "with reference to the protection of the rights of the Government and the preservation of its natural resources."

Situation Discussed at Length.

After adopting the LaFollette resolution, the Senate, still withholding debate on the pending tariff bill, discussed the oil situation at length, Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, Nebraska, assailed the Sinclair lease which, he said, was a "great scandal."

He praised the Wilson administration for its alleged conservation policy and drew an attack from his colleague, Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, who said Hitchcock always praised Democratic and always condemned the Republican policies.

Senators Hitchcock, King, Democrat, Utah, and Borah, Republican, Idado, declared the oil land leasing law should be modified to prevent private exploitation of public resources.

Senator Poindexter said it had not been determined that the Interior Department was acting unwisely in leasing the Wyoming reserve in view of the alleged danger of drainage by private oil wells. Poindexter said Senator LaFollette had given few facts to show this danger did not exist, but Hitchcock said the department acted solely on the advice of "one anonymous expert" that drainage danger existed. Senator Poindexter also challenged the statement by Senator Hitchcock that the Wyoming lease was negotiated "secretly" and referred to official statements that a number of bids had been sought and the Sinclair one accepted as the best.

World War Registrars' Meeting.

The St. Louis branch of the National Society, World War Registrars, will hold a meeting in Vandervoort's auditorium Thursday at 2 p. m., to which gold star mothers and members of soldier auxiliary bodies are invited. Speakers will be Mrs. Frank DeGarmo, president of the national organization; Col. John H. Parker, Commander Kays of the Naval Recruiting Station, Capt. Jackson of the Marine Recruiting Station, Jerome F. Duggan of the American Legion, and Mrs. Clark Hudson. Speakers will tell of the work of placing trees on the King's highway memorial court of honor, and of plans for a national gold star highway.

CONGRESSMEN TO RIDE CREST OF FLOODED MISSISSIPPI

Lawmakers Will Consider Further Steps Necessary to Assure Protection.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—A delegation of Congressmen and Senators left tonight to ride the crest of the Mississippi River while it is filled with the record flood of its history. They will inspect the levees to ascertain the damage done, with a view to further steps, if any are necessary, toward protection.

Uncle Sam is not paying the expense of the trip; it is being made at the invitation and cost of the Mississippi River Levee Association. The invitation was extended through Representative Ben G. Humphreys, Democrat, Mississippi, a member of the Flood Control Committee.

In addition to him, the party includes Senators Ransdell, Democrat, Louisiana; McKinley, Republican, Illinois, and Ladd, Republican, North Dakota, and Representatives Jeffries, Democrat, Alabama; Cramton, Republican, Michigan; Vestal, Republican, Indiana; Brooks, Republican, Illinois; Barbour, Republican, California; Underhill, Republican, Massachusetts; Garner, Democrat, Texas; Wilson, Democrat, Louisiana, and Martin, Democrat, Louisiana.

They will take a boat at Memphis and probably will go through to New Orleans, returning May 9.

Humphreys said that the purpose of the trip is to give the members of the party a chance to see the river at flood stage. He thinks the banks will continue to be full of water for the next two or three weeks. The only break in the levees thus far is below Natchez, Miss.

Plenary Session Wednesday.

It was officially announced that the next plenary session of the conference would be held next Wednesday.

While an Italian spokesman said the English preamble was practically adopted with the insertion of a few phrases of the French preamble, French spokesmen this afternoon insisted that practically all the original draft of their preamble was incorporated in the final draft.

Foreign Minister Tchitcherin of Russia today sent Premier Facta of Italy, as president of the economic conference, a note expressing the dissatisfaction of the Russian delegation at the delay in replying to its note of April 20, and saying the note would be withdrawn and the Russians would resume their initial position unless they were assured that the credits necessary to restore Russia would be granted.

Executive Council of League to Meet at Genoa May 11.

By the Associated Press.

GENOA, April 29.—The executive council of the League of Nations will meet here May 11, regardless of whether the Genoa conference has ended. It is prepared to take over such matters as the Genoa gathering may refer to it.

Both Britain and France Claim Support of Small Countries.

The real attitude of the small countries represented at the conference still forms an unknown quanity. Both the English and French delegations are claiming the support of these small countries.

The British declare these countries prefer the British policy, which favors burying the past and inaugurating a program of conciliation and pacification, leading to the reconstruction of Europe and Russia. They claim this policy will help all the countries, especially the small ones, whose bad economic condition necessitates the resumption of commerce and the revival of credits.

On the other hand, the French maintain that they have been gaining ground since the opening of the conference in attracting the small countries within their orbit. They claim they have shown that the British policy will only strengthen politically the Russo-German compact, which would threaten all their neighbors. Furthermore, they claim the British policy would tend to concentrate all Russo-German commercial activities into English hands through the international corporation to be formed in London with a preponderance of British capital and financiers.

Lenine Said to Plan to Make "War Statement."

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 29.—From reliable sources the Berlin correspondent of the London Times learns that Premier Lenine of soviet Russia expects to make a "war statement" at a meeting of the all-Russian executives May 5, when it is assumed the question of private property will be discussed.

The understanding is that Lenine has decided to yield to the demands of Europe while the military party under Trotzky is dissatisfied with this decision.

WEST VIRGINIA MINERS' ACTIVITIES RESTRAINED

Injunctions Issued by Federal Judge—Leader of Mine March Testifies.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., April 29.—Judge McClintic, in Federal Court here late today, granted preliminary injunctions restraining the United Mine Workers of America from organizing activities against the McKell and allied interests in the New River coal field of West Virginia and a number of other New River and Kanawha operations.

Ed Reynolds and William Blizzard "went on" to Logan County with 600 men under their command after District President C. Frank Keeney of the United Mine Workers had advised armed marchers at Madison to return home as ordered by Brig. Gen. Bandholz, Reynolds testified today in Blizzard's trial on a treason charge, growing out of the "armed march" of miners and sympathizers on the Logan-Boone border last summer.

Reynolds, a union miner of Dana, testified that at a meeting on the Capitol grounds, at Charleston, President Keeney declared that he would keep sending men into Mingo County until the jails were too full to hold them, a miners' strike having been on in the Mingo region for almost two years.

Testifying about the march from Lens Creek toward the nonunion Logan coal fields, Reynolds said he was in command of 300 men, and that Blizzard headed a similar body on the march to Racine in Boone County. "We were going to kill Don Chafin and all that bunch and go on to Mingo," the witness said. He explained that Chafin was the Sheriff of Logan County, and the "bunch" his deputies.

Reynolds explained how the men marched "until we met our enemies."

Anyone who could not give the password, "I come creeping," was to be killed, he said.

Reynolds testified about a circular received by the local union at Mammoth.

The circular, introduced as evidence, declared that "civil liberty and constitutional rights are fragments of past history, so far as West Virginia is concerned." It appealed for formation of a "contsitutional league."

MUSIC HALL IS DEDICATED AT UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS

Rudolph Ganz, Symphony Leader, Was Present in Exercises at Smith Memorial Institution.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

URBANA, Ill., April 29.—Dedication services for the Smith Memorial Music Hall at the University of Illinois were held this afternoon, with Director Frederick B. Steven of the University of Illinois School of Music presiding. The principal address was made by Glenn Dillard Gunn of Chicago. Brief talks were given also by President David Kinley, William L. Abbott, president of the board of trustees; Charles L. Smith of Minneapolis and Rudolph Ganz, director of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. There was a reception and inspection of the building after the exercises.

The fourth and last concert of the spring music festival, which opened Thursday night in connection with the dedication, was given tonight by the University Choral Society, conducted by Director Steven, assisted by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. Selections from the "Song of Hiawatha," by Samuel Coleridge, were sung by 150 voices. This was the first occasion in many years at the university that a smphony orchestra has accompanied the choral society. Mary Mellish, soprano; Arthur Kraft, tenor, and Bernard Ferguson, baritone, were the soloists.

ANOTHER IRISH PEACE MEETING WITHOUT RESULT

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, April 29.—The peace conference called by Lord Mayor O'Neill of Dublin held another meeting here today, but after a three-hour session it dissolved without any agreement having been reached.

An official statement said it was regretted that no basis of agreement had been found and that no useful purpose could be served by prolonging the conference.

Irregular republican troops today seized the bonded stores in Kilkenny and removed the whole stock of whisky to the Kilkenny jail. Free State officers went to the jail and issued an ultimatum to the commanders that unless the property was returned by 5 o'clock this afternoon, Free State troops would move to the prison and take it by force.

SHOE COMPANY'S PAYROLL OF $5400 STOLEN IN HOLDUP

Assistant Cashier of McElroy-Sloan Robbed at Fifteenth and Washington by Men Who Escape in Auto.

CAR ABANDONED BY ROBBERS IS FOUND

Twenty-Third Robbery of Kind Here in Last 17 Months—Total Losses in Period $78,946.

An unarmed and unguarded messenger of the McElroy-Sloan Shoe Co. was robbed of more than $5400 yesterday, in the twenty-third payroll holdup that has occurred in St. Louis in less than 17 months.

This robbery, occurring at Fifteenth street and Washington avenue, near the company's establishment, 1511-15 Washington, was an instance of the boldness of payroll robbers and of the lack of precaution which, in spite of the frequency of robberies, still prevails among many business concerns in the transfer of money from banks to their offices.

The total of losses in payroll robberies in St. Louis, in the period beginning Dec. 6, 1920, has been $78,946. These robberies have occurred most frequently on Saturday, as that is the payday of many large concerns. A week ago yesterday two policemen were shot and killed by payroll robbers.

Leo R. Nurre, 24 years old, of 4219A St. Louis avenue, assistant cashier and bookkeeper for the shoe company, who has been getting the payroll money twice a month for two years, got off a Page car at the Washington avenue corner at 9:15 a. m. yesterday, carrying the money for the company's hundred-odd employes, which he had obtained at the First National Bank. The money was in a brown paper package, which he carried under his arm.

Package of Money Seized.

He crossed the street to the northwest corner. There, in front of the Roberts, Johnson & Rand Shoe Co. office, and with automobiles and street cars passing, a man walked into Nurre's path and rammed a revolver against his stomach, while two others behind Nurre seized the package of money. No word was spoken and the occurrence was over in an instant.

Nurre could not say where the men had come from and they ran north on Fifteenth street so fast that he did not see them well enough to describe them; he was able to describe briefly the man who had stood in front of him. The men jumped in an automobile in which a fourth man was waiting at the wheel at Lucas avenue, and drove rapidly north, disappearing. Nurre called to shipping employes of the Roberts, Johnson & Rand company, working on Fifteenth street, to get the license number of the machine.

The shoe company's loss was covered by insurance.

The number of the license was obtained and reported, and soon afterward the car bearing the license number, a Buick, was found abandoned on South Vandeventer avenue, near Accomac street. The owner, Henry L. Santen, a former policeman, now proprietor of a saloon at 1800 Menard street, was questioned at police headquarters last night. He said the car was stolen yesterday from in front of the saloon, and that he first missed it at 9:30 a. m., when he returned from a ride in his brother's car. He said no suspicious characters were permitted to frequent his saloon, and that his customers were workingmen.

Many Robberies in Two Years.

More than $90,000 has been stolen in robberies of St. Louis banks in the last two years and $54,685 has been stolen from bank messengers. Five policemen were killed by robbers; several were wounded and policemen killed two robbers. Usually payroll and bank messengers have made no attempt to resist holdups. They are seldom armed, and many of them work for small salaries.

An official of a large insurance agency declared yesterday that a number of armed guards in keeping with the amount of money being transported should accompany messengers, and he criticised business concerns which allow boys under 18, girls, men over 60, and maimed men to carry money for them on the streets. He said the reckless use of firearms and automobiles was responsible largely for the nation-wide prevalence of holdups.

so indelibly associated with his maturity. He was the leader at school of what his youthful associates termed "the gang." And when, at the age of 15, with a mere smattering of "book learning," he started to make his own way in the world, he retained his influence as a leader of the youths with whom he associated, and was looked upon as a dominating factor.

His first job was in the Harlem Railway machine shop. He soon became a power in the district extending along Third avenue from Thirty-first to Twenty-fourth street.

It is also said that at about this period in Croker's life he first showed evidence of his fistic prowess, fighting a number of battles, famous in the district, and always coming out a victor.

Famed at Fourth Avenue Tunnel.

Croker's fame as a fighter brought him into prominence with young men accustomed to foregather in the neighborhood of the Fourth avenue tunnel. An organization grew up that was known throughout the city as the "Fourth Avenue Tunnel Gang."

Croker encountered the opposition of this gang from the start. He had to win his way to the top in his district, literally by the force of his fists, and it was by this force that he eventually became a member of and finally a leader of the gang.

The elder Croker's naturalization having made citizens of his sons, they naturally, upon coming of age, turned their attention to municipal affairs. It is said that during the sixties the Fourth avenue tunnel gang was a power at many a polling place.

Fireman and Alderman.

On Dec. 28, 1864, he joined the Volunteer Fire Department, becoming a member of Engine Company No. 28, located at Fourth avenue and Twenty-seventh street. In those days it was a short step from the Fire Department to political preferment.

Tweed was then in power—the Tweed who died years later, in Ludlow street jail—and in 1868 he elected Croker Alderman.

In 1872 the opposition to Tweed, which Croker, "Honest" John Kelly and the Scannels, Florence and John, afterward organized, had begun to take shape; but Tweed could not down Croker. He stole a march on the boss and at the next election was returned as an Alderman.

From this he passed by resignation to a marshalship for the collection of delinquent taxes and, with that political sagacity which later marked many of his bids for favor with the opponents of Tammany Hall, he did credit to himself and to the machine, collecting in four months more than half a million dollars.

By the year 1873 he had reached the office of Coroner. It was in this year, and as the result of a bitter fight waged by Kelly, who had succeeded Tweed as the ruler of Tammany hall, and who had taken Hewitt as a candidate for Congress against James O'Brien, that some bitter hours came into Croker's life. O'Brien was surrounded by the worst of the minions of the Tweed ring. Kelly asked Croker to take charge of the situation and Croker went at once into the district where O'Brien and his coterie were taking the election from Hewitt. Croker had with him trusted followers. He and O'Brien met face to face. There was a clash. When the smoke from many pistols had cleared away, one of the O'Brien outfit—Jack McKenna—lay dead.

Murder Indictment Dismissed.

It has always been said that Richard Croker never depended upon any other weapon than his fists. On the day that McKenna was killed he beat O'Brien down with upper cuts and smashes.

Croker was arrested and indicted for the murder of McKenna. While he was not acquitted, the indictment, after a trial wherein the jury stood 10 for acquittal and two for conviction, was, on the motion of the State's Attorney, dismissed.

Croker denied that he did the shooting and the man who did it afterwards confessed. It was characteristic of Croker that although he knew the name of the man who did the shooting, he would not reveal it.

Croker went back to the Board of Aldermen in 1874. He resigned to become Fire Commissioner. Following the commissionership he became City Chamberlain by appointment of Mayor Hugh Grant. That was the last public office he held.

"Honest" John Kelly died in 1886 and it was then that the leadership of Tammany Hall passed to Richard Croker. Croker was well known. Beyond New York he had attracted attention by his espousal of Grover Cleveland's cause, first for Governor, when Cleveland was known as "the veto Mayor of Buffalo," and later for President.

When Croker first became leader of Tammany Hall, it fell within his power to deprive of a renomination the Judge who had tried him for the murder of McKenna. Popular belief was that Croker would relegate this Judge to the political scrap heap. He did nothing of the kind. An that was in a day when psychology was not a "popular" study.

One of the odd phases of Croker's career in view of his subsequent record as Tammany chieftain, was his assertion that he went into politics to put a stop to robbery of the city by Boss Tweed and his band of plunderers. "It was a shocking state of things," Croker declared. "I consulted Honest John Kelly and went on the warpath againt Tweed and we downed him. We reformers and independent Democrats took over Tammany and made the old sink of corruption the headquarters of reform."

Controlled 100,000 Votes.

As Tammany's chief, he virtually controlled about 100,000 votes and influenced a much greater number. He exercised tremendous power. With other Tammany leaders he dictated nominations for every political office in New York from the Mayor down to the lowest clerk.

Under Croker's rule it was estimated that Tammany collected from city officeholders, saloon keepers and others more than a million dollars a year as a campaign fund.

Weathered Investigation.

In the early days of his domination of Tammany he had allied himself with three men of ability and influence—Bourke Cockran, Hugh J. Grant and Thomas F. Gilroy. They became known as the backbone of the organization. Croker's relations with the triumvirate were not always pleasant and he finally quarreled with Grant and Cockran.

In 1890 Croker encountered the first of several legislative investigations. State Senator J. Sloate Fassett was chairman of the committee appointed to look into the affairs of New York and especially Tammany hall. Croker was in Europe at the time, but he quickly returned in order to go upon the witness stand to deny assertions reflecting upon him. The investigation finally was "called off."

On the witness stand during the investigation, Mayor Grant admitted that he had given Florence Croker, the Tammany Chief's daughter, a gift of $10,000. Mayor Grant explained that he had made the gift because he was the girl's god-father and wished to make provision for her. He also said he understood that Croker was a poor man.

Croker remained in New York until after the re-election of Mayor Grant and then returned to Europe.

Quit Leadership in 1893.

In 1893 Croker resigned the active leadership of Tammany hall in favor of John S. Sheehan, with whom he was associated in business. One company they formed had a capital of $5,000,000. It was to have built a rapid transit tunnel, but the scheme, though forced upon the Board of Aldermen, eventually fell through.

During the first year of Croker's absentee dictatorship reform rose in its might and swept Tammany out of power by a vote of 70,000.

New York did not see Croker again until 1897, when there were reports that Sheehan aspired to dethrone Croker. Croker, on arriving in New York, promptly stripped Sheehan of every vestige of power and assumed supreme control.

Despite his three-year absence from New York, no move on the checkerboard of municipal politics had escaped him. He spoke or advised with a sagacity that proved itself by the election of Van Wyck as Mayor by 80,000 votes.

Croker's power ended in 1902, when the Tammany Executive Committee formally severed his relationship with the organization. To serve in his place there was chosen a triumvirate of leaders, comprising Charles F. Murphy, present Tammany boss; Daniel F. McMahon and Louis F. Haffen. This trio did not last long.

Politics was a business with Richard Croker. He amassed a large fortune.

In 1890, when on the stand, Croker admitted that he was rich. And yet from April, 1879, until February, 1890, his only visible means of support was the position of City Chamberlain at a salary of $25,000 a year.

Built $200,000 House.

Within two years he had been able, according to common report, to buy an interest in the Belle Meade stock farm for $250,000, paying an additional $109,000 for Longstreet and other race horses. He built a house that cost him more than $200,000. He said he went into racing not for the gain in money, but for the gain in health.

"My doctor has told me that I must take care of myself, be in the open air and make a pleasure of business instead of a business of pleasure," he said.

When he dominated the Legislature in 1892 the lobby disappeared. All applicants for favors at the Capitol had to "see" Croker. One of the "favors" granted that year was the "Huckleberry franchise" for a street railway, said to be worth more than $2,000,000. He declined to tell the Mazat committee whether he owned stock in that road. It was to this committee, in answer to a question by Frank Moss, that Croker said "I am working for my pocket all the time."

Moss referred to him as the "virtual ruler" of the city.

Croker readily admitted that he dominated legislative as well as city affairs and he said that he, himself, was the most powerful man he knew of. He boasted once that if he gave the word every wheel in New York would stop revolving within 24 hours.

Married Twice.

Croker's first wife was Elizabeth Fraze of New York, who died Sept. 6, 1914, at Levico, Austria. They lived apart for some time. There were six children by this marriage—two daughters, Florence and Ethel, and four sons, Frank, Herbert, Howard and Richard Jr. Frank, his favorite son, was killed in an automobile accident at Ormonde Beach, Fla., in 1904. Herbert died shortly afterward on a train near Kansas City. Florence became the Countess Di San Martino and has since been married to Maj. J. G. Morris.

Croker on Nov. 27, 1914, a little over two months after the death of his first wife, married Miss Bula Benton Edmondson, then 23 years old. Together they went to Glencairn, Croker's home in Ireland. The second Mrs. Croker is a quarter-blood Cherokee Indian. She was known as Princess Sequoyah.

Following Croker's second marriage, his sons endeavored to have the courts appoint a committee to handle his affairs, alleging that he was completely under the domination of his young wife. The courts held that the old Tammany Chieftain was fully competent to handle his own affairs.

It was brought out in the recent hearings in Florida in the suit by his sons, that Croker had willed his Glencairn estate in Ireland first to his daughter Florence. Then when she ran away and was married to Major Morris, he got his niece, Mrs. Estelle Bellman, to keep house for him and willed Glencairn to her. When she died and after his second marriage, he willed the estate to his wife.

When he was in Florida last year, newspaper men asked him about a story to the effect that after his horse Orby won the English Derby the King had omitted the customary courtesy of shaking hands with him as the owner.

"I don't know how the report originated," said Croker, "but I believe it's correct. If the King did shake hands with me, I can't remember it. I was thinking more about my horse than I was about the King."

GOLDSTEIN LIKELY TO BE REVENUE COLLECTOR

Expected to Accept U. S. Office in Order to Save Jobs for St. Louis Republicans.

It virtually has been decided that Circuit Clerk Nat Goldstein is to be appointed United States Internal Revenue Collector in St. Louis, the post refused several days ago by John S. Leahy, who was appointed in January, but who did not qualify.

Information given out by well-informed Republican politicians is that Goldstein will take the place to save the bulk of the 60 jobs in the Collector's office for the Republican organization in St. Louis.

Goldstein told a Post-Dispatch reporter that if he could obtain the appointment he would take it to prevent it from going to somebody outside of St. Louis. Dr. Ed. S. Brown of Edina, a member of the Republican State Committee, was considered the probable appointee after Leahy's refusal.

The appointment of an out-in-the-State man would mean that most of the jobs in the office would go to out-in-the-State Republicans, and the St. Louis organization wants to distribute these jobs.

It has been reported for several days that Republicans affiliated with the Koeln faction in politics had decided to bring out a strong man against Golstein for renomination for Circuit Clerk and that Goldstein would prefer a sure thing in the Collectorship to the uncertainty of beating the Koeln faction in the primary.

Goldstein's acceptance of the Federal place would mean that he would submit his resignation as Circuit Clerk. Several months ago Goldstein refused to take the position of Postmaster because it would mean that the jobs in the Circuit Clerk's office would go to the Koeln faction, Gov. Hyde having decided to appoint Joseph B. Thomas, member of the Republican City Committee from the Twenty-eighth Ward, to succeed Goldstein if he resigned.

There were no jobs in the Postoffice available for the organization, and the trade, from the standpoint of politics, would have been a bad one for Goldstein and his wing of the organization. There are jobs in the Collector's office, and it might be possible now for negotiations between the two factions to obtain from Thomas a division of the patronage if he should be appointed Circuit Clerk.

WALSH INQUIRES WHERE LEAGUE SUBSTITUTE IS

Letter From Woodrow Wilson to Women of Democratic National Committee Also Read.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Declaring that the "association of nations" which he said was to take the place of the League of Nations, "is a forgotten shibboleth," Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana at a dinner tonight tendered Chairman Cordell Hull of the Democratic National Committee by women members of the committee, said it is "pertinent to inquire in view of the attitude of the administration why we went to war."

"The season is particularly opportune," said Walsh, "for instilling the conviction that the sublime purpose with which we entered the war remains only half finished, and I inquire what plan has the Republican party or those responsible for its policies to accomplish the end the league was contrived to attain? Along what lines do they propose to redeem the pledges so profusely made to induce enlistments, popularize the draft act and float the Liberty loans?"

Says Administration Yielded.

Concerning the armament conference, Senator Walsh declared the administration "yielded to the pressure of 'public opinion,'" in the matter of calling the conference, the results of which, he said, "remove in no degree the danger of another conflagration in Europe which conservative statesmen at Genoa assert is imminent and into which we may again be drawn."

Senator Jones of New Mexico and Chairman Hull also spoke briefly and expressed confidence of Democratic victory in the fall elections. The speeches followed a conference of the women members of the National Committee in which plans were discussed.

A letter from former President Wilson was read unexpectedly by Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Missouri and was received with cheers. It was written under date of April 25 and was in reply to a letter from Mrs. Blair in behalf of the Women Committee members inviting both Mr. and Mrs. Wilson to attend tonight's dinner.

Text of Wilson's Letter.

The letter from the former President follows:

"My dear Mrs. Blair:

"I need not assure you that our hearts will be with you all at the dinner on Saturday evening, but unhappily my body is still so lame that I cannot venture to promise to be present and crave your indulgence of my selfishness in keeping Mrs. Wilson at home also with me.

"I need not assure you and the ladies associated with you of my keen interest in what they are undertaking and my earnest hope and belief that they will succeed. This is undoubtedly a critical turning point in the affairs of mankind and it clearly falls to the Democrats of the United States to lead the way to the light. Women such as those who are to gather at the dinner on Saturday evening are sure to contribute to this great purpose the invaluable stimulation of their enthusiasm and devotion.

"With warm regards, sincerely yours, WOODROW WILSON."

RADIO TERMED RESULT OF APPLIED HARMONY

In Address From Post-Dispatch Station, Judge Allen Says Music Is 'Ncesary as Breathing.'

That the success of radio has depended upon the principles of music, and that not only the radio but the airplane are operated by music in that each has to be properly "tuned" in harmony and pitch before they are in condition to operate, was asserted in an address on "Applied Music" delivered over the radiophone from Station K S D of the Post-Dispatch last night for former Judge Charles Claflin Allen, lawyer and art connoisseur. Even the American invention by the use of which the approach of a submarine is detected is based upon the principles of music, the speaker said.

The address was the chief feature in the last radio program devoted to the celebration of St. Louis' music week, and dealt with the practical application of music.

"Music is as necessary to human life as breathing," Allen declared. "And it is not unlike breathing in that both are measured by rhythm. Music in its true sense is something more than singing or playing musical instruments. It is as mathematical in its determination of pitch and harmony as is the merchant's cash register for determining the amount of sales. The wireless telephone and telegraph are music, strictly speaking.

Light Rays Made Audible.

"By a recent invention called the oscillating audion bulb, attached to telephones, it has been found possible to transmute unseen rays of light into musical tones audible to the human ear."

In discussing the application of music to everyday life in his own city, Judge Allen spoke of the purpose of Music week and the plan for a great municipal music auditorium for the city's memorial to its soldier dead, and the manner in which the city government is fostering music through the Municipal Opera and the park concerts. He suggested the added items of a great pipe organ in the Art Museum and regular occasions of community singing.

The musical program of the evening consisted of a trio from the Verdi opera, "Attila," sung by Mrs. Edward Achard, soprano; E. J. Troy, tenor, and Urban L. Dames, baritone; the duet, "A che le morte," from another Verdi opera, "Il Trovatore," by Troy and Mrs. Achard; solos by Mrs. Achard, Troy and a young soprano, Miss Helen McFarland. The rendition was made with real artistry.

Listeners-in on the program also heard a talk by Lady Anne Azgapetian, an Armenian noblewoman, wife of a General in the Czar's army during the world war. She described things she had seen while in charge over the Red Cross nurses on the eastern front, and told the story of the defense of the oil station at Baku by the Armenian army, preventing the seizure of oil for the Germans.

An address by Robert E. Lee, vice president of the St. Louis Safety Council and manager of the Automobile Dealers' Association, and a group of songs by T. A. Turner, baritone, will be interesting numbers in the program to be broadcast by Station KSD tomorrow night.

NEEDLE PRICK IN WRIST RESULTS IN VERDICT FOR $5000

Seamstress Who Sued Women's Apparel Store Owner Wins Damage Suit.

A verdict for $5000, for disablement of a left wrist as the result of a needle prick, was returned by a jury in Circuit Judge Rutledge's court yesterday for Mrs. Emma Davis, 4516 Ravenwood avenue, against Thomas W. Garland, proprietor of a women's apparel store at 409 North Broadway.

Mrs. Davis, who sued for $10,000, claimed that on Sept. 18, 1920, when employed as a seamstress at the store, she was laying out a piece of cloth on a table when a needle sticking up in the table struck her wrist and broke off. She testified that gangrene set in, and the arm is permanently disabled.

The defense was that she was careless and was not working at her regular station. She is a widow and is 58 years old.

"RED-HEADED BOY MEANS 'PEP' IN PLANT," SAYS MANUFACTURER

"You Get Snap and Hustle Then," States Employer, Who Isn't a "Brick-Top."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 29.—"Give me a red-headed boy and I have got pep in my plant." James L. Lucas, head of the firm of Lucas & Son, machinery dealers, although not red-headed himself, is convinced that youngsters with brick-tops and freckled faces are live wires.

"Wanted, another red-headed office boy," he recently advertised. The boy is at work today. "Get red-headed boys every time," Lucas says, "and you get snap and hustle, because, if you notice, these youngsters have more fire in them than their fellows. My experience convinces me this is true. They are usually found in two bright and thrifty races; either they are Scots or Celtic in their ancestry."

"What brand of cigarettes do you consider best?" is one of his stock questions when boys ask for a job. The boy who answers quickly and from experience usually does not get the job. He also asks aspirants how long they think they should work without pay to convince him of their ability. The applicant who yells "not a minute" has a good chance of starting on the job.

WINE STOCK TO BRING LEGAL BATTLE IN SUIT BY WIDOW

Mrs. George Oyster, 26, Demands Half of Liquor Owned by Late Husband, Aged 79.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Disposition of the wine stock of the late George M. Oyster, who died recently in Atlantic City at the age of 79, within a few months after marrying 26-year-old Cecil Ready of Syracuse, N. Y., will precipitate a court battle. The youthful widow, through her attorneys, today demanded half of the liquor.

In making an inventory of the effects of the late sportsman who maintained an elaborate establishment at Wardman Park Hotel here, his executors found a large stock of choice wines and liquors. Taxes and other bills dissipated the cash left by Oyster and two weeks ago the executor required permission of the District Supreme Court to dispose of the liquor to obtain funds to settle outstanding accounts. In addition to demanding half the liquor stock the widow also asks that she be given the wearing apparel of her late husband and that the household furnishings, paintings and jade pieces be sold. Oyster bequeathed most of these things to friends and relatives.

GOLTRA WRANGLE OVER RIVER FLEET TO BE HEARD MONDAY

No Formal Transfer of Barges to St. Louis Man Will Be Made Until Settlement.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Questions at issue between the War Department and Edward F. Goltra of St. Louis, relative to the fleet of barges built by the Government for leasing to Goltra under a wartime contract, will be threshed out at a conference Monday between Secretary of War Weeks, Col. T. Q. Ashburn of the Inland and Coastwise Waterways Service of the army, and Goltra.

Until all pending disputes have been settled, it was announced at the War Department today, there will be no formal transfer of the barges to Goltra. The whole matter is before the Judge Advocate General of the army for a ruling.

Meantime, Major-General Beach of the Corps of Engineers, has given permission to Goltra to put men on the barges at his own risk and in anticipation of the transfer, in order to make some minor changes in the steam coils. The boats, which are tied up at St. Louis, remain in the possesion of the Government.

ONE DEAD AND 11 INJURED IN WABASH TRAIN WRECK

Three Coaches Jump Track With Engine on One Side and Tender on the Other.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 29.—Louis Wainscott, 35, is dead; Charles Fox and Whittel Martin are patients at the Boone County Hospital as a result of a wreck on a Wabash train which left the track at Brown's Station, eight miles north of here at 10:30 this morning. The body of Wainscott, who was the fireman on the train, was crushed under the fire dome of the engine. Fox was the engineer on the train. He is 65 years old and was badly scalded and injured about the head. Martin is a fireman on the M. K. and T. road who was "deadheading" to Columbia.

NEW PASTOR IS A. E. F. VETERAN

Dr. Chester E. Jenney Accepts Call to First Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Dr. Chester E. Jenney of Decatur, Ill., a veteran of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, has accepted a call to become pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here and will take up his work in St. Louis at the end of May.

Dr. Jenney, who is 41 years old, is a graduate of Union Theological Secinary, New York City. He first came to St. Louis in 1910 from Abilene, Tex., and served as pastor of the Grace Presbyterian Church here for three years. Upon assuming the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church at Decatur, Dr. Jenney, by his energetic methods, built that parish into the largest communion in the Ilinois Synod. Dr. Jenney was granted a leave of absence by his Decatur congregation to serve with the American army in France.

OPERA CONSERVATORY MAY BE ESTABLISHED

Announcement Made by Nelson Cunliff During Municipal Chorus Concert.

A Municipal Opera Conservatory, for the training of all-St. Louis casts, principals as well as choristers, will be established here next September, if, as every indication promises, the impending season of civic opera proves as successful financially as it has been in the past.

This announcement was made to the cheers of a large audience last night, at the Odeon, by Nelson Cunliff, president of the Civic Music Association and chairman of the Productions Committee of the Municipal Theater Association. The occasion was perhaps the most interesting event of "Music Week"—the first public appearance of 190 candidates for positions in the summer opera chorus, who have been under instruction at the Municipal Opera Chorus Training School, at Jefferson Memorial.

It is the eventual purpose, said Cunliff, to give summer opera exclusively with local talent, from prima donna roles down. The Municipal Opera Conservatory, he continued, would be the only institution of the kind in America, and would serve as nucleus for an eventual National Conservatory of Music, to be established in this city.

Higher Musical Standards.

The speaker, referring to an estimated total of $20,000,000 spent here for music annually, pleaded for higher musical standards. We should have more symphony concerts, he continued, and grand opera every year. We should have a Municipal Auditorium, spacious enough to afford accommodations for every music lover in the city, at reasonable prices, and an annual Music Festival, beginning next Spring, with leading directors and performers participating.

The chorus, under the direction of its instructor, William A. Parson, sang "On Parade," from Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts;" "Night Has Spread Her Pall," from the Gilbert & Sullivan opera, "The Yeomen of the Guard," and selections from Kalman's "Spring Maid" and "Sari." These are four of the eight works to be given at the open-air theater in Forest Park during June and July. All are new to the municipal opera repertory except "Sari," which was presented last year.

It is about five weeks before the season opens, and the confidence with which the chorus delivered these memorized excerpts is an omen of preparedness such as no previous season has been able to boast. If there was little evidence of delicate shading, such as one would expect in concert singing, it was to be remembered that these choristers have been trained for outdoor work, in which power, good tone quality and unusual clearness of enunciation are principal requirements.

Gilbert-Sullivan Chorus.

All of these were present: the fresh and ringing young voices pealed forth with fervent enthusiasm, and the diction—this is extremely rare in ensemble singing—was so clear that not many words were missed. The chorus from "The Yeomen of the Guard"—which, by the way, was Sir Arthur Sullivan's favorite among all the Savoy operas—was particularly well done.

Four St. Louis singers, appearing first as soloists and then in a quartet, won high favor with the audience. Oliver Smith, tenor, gave Cadman's "All the World Is Spring Today" and Burleigh's "Little Mother of Mine." Miss Olga Hambuechen sang "Sleep" and "I Breathed to a Rose," by William A. Parson, who was at the piano. Mrs. Bertha Black Bassford, soprano, offered Grieg's "Ich liebe dich" and Arditi's "Kiss Waltz." Raymond Koch sang the toreador aria from "Carmen."

An orchestra of 20 pieces, supplied by the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association and directed by Frank Gecks, attempted the overture to Von Suppe's "The Beautiful Galatea," selections from "Tales of Hoffman" and the triumphal march from "Aida."

GHIO WILL CONTEST SETTLED OUT OF COURT

When the suit of John Ghio and Martin Ghio, contesting the will of their mother, Mrs. Marguerite Ghio, was called for trial in the Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday it was announced that the controversy had been settled outside of court in a manner satisfactory to the plaintiffs, and that they would consent to having the will adjudged genuine, which was done.

Mrs. Ghio, who was the widow of James C. Ghio, died Dec. 20, 1920, leaving $5 each to her sons, with the explanation that they had been amply provided for by their father. She left her estate, valued at more than $100,000, to her two daughters, Mrs. Olivia Dunn of Chicago and Mrs. Joseph McMenamy of Los Angeles, and to various churches and charitable organizations.

The will of James Ghio, who died in 1914, provided that at the death of his wife his estate of $500,000 should be distributed equally among his four children. His wife possessed a large estate of her own.

PHYSICIANS PAID TOO LOW BY CITY, CUNLIFF ASSERTS

Inadequate Salaries Make It Difficult to Get Men of Ability, Welfare Director Reports.

TELLS OF NEED FOR PLAYGROUND FUNDS

Juvenile Delinquency Increased Where Places Were Closed, or Lacked Supervision, He Says.

Director of Public Welfare Cunliff, in his annual report, submitted yesterday to the Board of Public Service, states that "the inadequate salaries paid by the city make it very difficult to obtain professional men of ability and experience to fill important positions in the Public Welfare Department. He states that while physicians in private practice and in institutions similar to those of the city receive from $10,000 to $15,000 a year, the city scale is from $2500 to $3000 a year.

"The public seem to feel that social service work is entirely a work of charity, therefore, must be done cheaply," says the report. "This idea is wrong. The people of our city want their needs attended to in a competent manner, desiring the best of attention, and I feel they are willing to pay good salaries where they obtain good service.

"The severe cut in the appropriations during the past year has had one very good effect. It has called for the elimination of all dead timber in the various city organizations and has distributed equally the burden of municipal service, and each employe has taken up his burden and done well the work placed before him."

Tells of Playground Needs.

"In the Division of Parks and Recreation the lack of financial support has been more keenly felt than in probably any other department—not that it has affected so much the personnel of this wonderful organization, but the work for which it was designed and created has had to suffer because of lack of funds to carry on. Where in former years the juvenile delinquency was held down in these districts in which there were playgrounds, at the present time juvenile delinquency seems to be greater in playground districts than elsewhere. In analyzing this I find that this is true because playgrounds have been located in the most thickly populated districts, and districts in which there are the most children; owing to the state of finances during the past year these playgrounds have all been closed or without supervision. Where the playgrounds have been open they have been open without supervisors or play leaders and the children have been at liberty to do as they pleased.

"The records of the Juvenile Court for those years in which we have had playground workers the year around, compares with the present time in which we have had playground workers for but three months of the year, is a remarkable tribute to the efficacy of trained playground supervision."

In the hospital division, Cunliff points out that contracts have been let for one new hospital building at Koch Hospital for treatment of tuberculosis and the present building will be completely overhauled and rearranged. In addition, an ordinance has been passed creating a training school for nurses there and plans are under way to follow this up with the creation of a visiting staff of physicians who will work in harmony with hospital authorities and provide patients at this institution the best medical attention obtainable.

Sanitarium Overcrowded.

At the city sanitarium, the report states, the population of 2705 patients is over 1000 more patients than the building was designed to accommodate and more than 100 patients are sleeping on the floor because there is not bed space in the building. The director recommends that arrangements be made to have State institutions take care of the overflow or it will be necessary to arrange with outside institutions within the next three weeks to take care of additional patients being received at the institution.

The city hospital is in need of a thorough study as to organization, personnel and efficiency, which will require new legislation, the creating of new positions and the abolishing of old, according to the report. A bill was introduced at the last session of the Board of Aldermen establishing the position of Assistant Superintendent of the City Hospital, but was not passed.

Commenting on the City Workhouse, the director says, "this institution affords a problem that has as yet been unsolved. It is still a workless workhouse." We are in this institution supporting and maintaining many prisoners who have committed crimes who should have been sent to Jefferson City and there maintained at the expense of the State. He recommends the purchase of an industrial farm outside the city limits to take the place of the workhouse.

Relief for Idle Urged.

The report recommends that if it is possible, the city continue its work for the relief of the unemployed this year and that some thought be given to keeping the Municipal Lodging House open through the entire year, provided that adequate work may be be found so that those accommodated at the lodging house shall give some service for the benefits received. He recommends that better sanitary conditions be provided in the lodging house. The Health Department, the report states, has had a comparatively light season due to the decrease in infection diseases during the winter. This has been fortunate, because with the small number of men assigned to this division, "we would have been unable to handle the usual number of cases. The director says that during the last six months this department has rid the city of more than 500,000 rats. The anti-rat campaign is just as important as the anti-fly, mosquito or tuberculosis campaigns, the report states.

"Larger quarters and additional personnel are badly needed to maintain the efficiency of the venereal clinic, which has rendered great service," the report says the number of cases handled in recent months is double that of the corresponding period in any preceding year.

PROFESSOR TO TAKE BRYAN'S $100 BUT WANTS RETRACTION

Botany Teacher Asks That "Cowardly Evasion" Statement Be Taken Back.

By the Associated Press.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., April 29.—Dr. P. O. Spangler, professor of botany at West Virginia University, said today he had decided to accept the $100 sent him under protest by William Jennings Bryan as a reward to any college professor who would harmonize the Darwinian theory of evolution with the Bible.

In a letter to Bryan the professor called on him to retract a statement that the biologist was "guilty of cowardly evasion." Faculty members, students and residents of the city who heard Bryan's lecture and Prof. Spangler's reply are "willing to sign a statement that the proposition had been answered as laid down by Bryan," declared the professor.

Accepting the check, Prof. Spangler wrote: "I hardly expected to win the prize. However, I am glad I undertook it since I was able to show even you how untenable your stand is where you insist on interpreting the facts of biology as you do."

The five new questions submitted to Prof. Spangler by Bryan were answered in the letter. Replying to the first question as to whether he believed he descended from an ape, Prof. Spangler said:

"No—the biologists of today do not teach that man descended from the ape of today, and no one believes it except those ignorant of the facts of biology."

"Yes," was his answer to the other questions, which were: Do you believe in biblical miracles; the supernatural as recorded in the Bible; the virgin birth; resurrection of Christ and his appearance to His disciples.

SUPREME COURT ISSUES WRIT IN LIBERTY CENTRAL TAX CASE

Whether Trust Company Shall Pay $43,000 or $85,000 Is Practical Point at Issue.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 29.—Whether the Liberty Central Trust Co. of St. Louis will pay $43,000 or $85,000 in taxes this year is the practical point at issue in litigation in which the State Supreme Court en banc today issued a writ of certiorari against Assessor William Buder and the members of the Board of Equalization of St. Louis. Application for the writ was made by John L. Johnston of St. Louis as a shareholder in the Liberty Central. The writ was made returnable in 30 days, the case to be argued at the October call of the court.

The trust company owns certain real estate in St. Louis of a book value of $2,225,436, from which it contends certain exemptions should be deducted, to the end that it pay taxes on $1,720,000 of real estate. The Assessor and the board, however, have declared, according to the petition for certiorari, that the trust company should pay on a total real estate value of $3,415,570, which, according to the application, means that, instead of paying $43,000 in taxes, the institution would have to pay $85,000 if the ruling of the board stands. It asks that the Supreme Court order Buder and the board to bring their records before the court for review.

The legal point at issue is whether the real estate, for which deduction is sought, is represented by corporate stock of the trust company, upon which taxes are paid as such at par value.

O'FALLON FILES FOR STATE SUPREME COURT NOMINATION

Speaker of House Enters Republican Primary—Is Second Member of His Party to Announce Candidacy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 29.—Speaker Samuel F. O'Fallon of the House of Representatives today filed his declaration of candidacy for the Republican nomination for State Supreme Judge, Division No. 2. O'Fallon is the second Republican to file for Division No. 2, in which two Judges are to be elected, Judge Higbe, Republican, having filed for re-election. Several Democrats have filed for Division No. 2.

O'Fallon, who resides at Oregon, Mo., has represented Holt County in the Legislature for five terms, during two of which he was speaker. Previously, he had been Prosecuting Attorney and Probate Judge of Holt County, a confidential investigator of the Department of the Interior and an Inspector of Indian Schools under President Roosevelt.

FORMER EMPLOYE ADMITS HE KILLED CARNIVAL OWNER

Prisoner Says "Honest John" Brunen's Brother-in-Law Promised Him $1000 for Murder.

ALLEGED INSTIGATOR ARRESTED AT HOME

Ford Coupe, Seen Near House on Night of the Shooting Gave Police Clew in the Mystery.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., April 29.—The mystery that attended the killing, March 10, of "Honest John" Brunen, a wealthy carnival proprietor, in his home at Riverside, near here, was cleared today.

Charles M. Powell, who has been a prisoner in the Burlington County jail here since April 4, and who withstood innumerable cross-examinations by Prosecutor Kelsey and Chief of Detectives Parker, broke down this morning and confessed it was he who, under cover of darkness, stepped up with a shotgun to a window at which Brunen was sitting, placed the weapon within six inches of the pane, and let go a load of heavy deer shot that almost tore "Honest John's" head off.

Powell said he was hired to do the killing by Harry C. Mohr of Camden, a brother-in-law of the slain man. All he got for the job was $150, although he had been promised $1000, Powell said.

Mohr Arrested at Home.

Immediately after the confession, Mohr was arrested at his home, brought here and placed in jail, charged with first degree murder. He denied instigating the killing.

Mrs. Brunen, toward whom attention was directed soon after the murder because of a letter written by Brunen to his sister, in which he said "I think Doty (his wife) is figuring to do away with me," has been entirely eliminated from suspicion, according to Prosecutor Kelsey and Detective Parker. They are convinced she had no knowledge of the crime.

Suspicion was directed toward Mohr soon after the murder. This was because some women of Riverside noticed a little Ford coupe parked in a narrow lane a couple of hundred yards from the Brunen house. A man with his hat pulled over his face sat in this. A few moments after Brunen was shot, a second man ran to the car and the machine sped rapidly toward Camden. Mohr owns a Ford coupe, Parker learned, and his account of his whereabouts at the time of the killing was not satisfactory to the detective.

Powell is 28 years old, married and has a small child.

Tries to Kill Himself.

During his weeks in jail, the prisoner denied he knew anything about the killing of Brunen. But within the last few days he began to break down. Last night he admitted he had been with Mohr in Riverside 24 hours before Brunen's death.

After telling this much, Powell tried to kill himself by battering his head against the stone walls of his cell. This morning he sent word to Detective Parker that he would make a clean breast of the whole affair. His confession ran thus:

Powell, who was an employe of Mohr, was discharged last year. Mohr knew this. Mohr went to him five or six months ago and told him that he wanted Brunen out of the way; that the carnival man was abusing his (Mohr's) sister, Mrs. Brunen, and his mother, and was making their lives miserable.

Powell refused to have anything to do with the affair. But Mohr kept after him repeatedly. Then, before Christmas, Powell was out of work and had no money. Mohr staked him to small sums each week.

Just before the holiday season, Mohr drove Powell to Philadelphia and gave him money with which to buy a shotgun and some shells. Mohr took the gun to the Brunen property in Riverside and hid it on the upper floor of the showman's garage.

Promised $1000 for Job.

Twenty times Mohr and Powell went to Riverside but Powell always lost his nerve and refused to do the job. At last, on March 9, Mohr insisted that Powell was under heavy obligations to him because of the money he had accepted and also promised that if Powell would kill Brunen he would give him $1000 in cash. Powell, on receiving this offer, agreed.

The night of the shooting Mohr drove Powell to Riverside and parked his Ford in the little lane. Mohr pulled down his hat and remained in the car. Powell went to the garage, which was unlocked, got the weapon, loaded it, went to the window near which Brunen was sitting, and fired.

He ran across the field opposite the Brunen house, threw away the stock of the gun and jumped into the car with Mohr. They drove to Camden and crossed to Philadelphia, meanwhile throwing the rest of the gun in a creek where it was subsequently found. They returned to Camden that night.

Next morning Mohr called at Powell's house and gave him $50. Two days later he gave him $100 more. When Powell asked for the rest of the promised $1000 Mohr told him he would not get it.

UNPAID-FOR WEDDING SUIT SAVES WOMAN FROM BIGAMY

Sheriff Strips Groom of Raiment While Reminding Bride of Her Husband.

A glad day was yesterday for a St. Charles man with a new $22 wedding suit and about to acquire a wife and seven children, until Sheriff Grote came along and changed it into a sad day by taking away his wedding suit and, so to speak, snatching away the wife and seven.

It was all fixed up for the man, who is 30, and the woman, who is 34, to be married, with her seven young ones thrown in for good measure and there probably would not have been a hitch in the program if the man had not neglected to pay for his wedding suit. He bought it Wednesday and was to pay for it Thursday, but he did not. The clothing store man waited until yesterday and then he sent Sheriff Grote to get the money or the clothes.

When the Sheriff arrived at the man's home the woman was there and they were all dressed up and ready to go, with the man shining in the suit that was not paid for. The Sheriff ordered him to take it off, and while he was doing it reminded the woman that she already had one husband. She said she knew it, but he wasn't living with her and she saw no harm in taking another who would stay. Grote told her that was against the law of the land and she said in that case she guessed there would be no wedding bells for her. The Sheriff carried the suit away and the bride-elect betook herself back to her home.

MUNICIPAL THEATER DOWNTOWN OFFICE TO BE OPENED TOMORROW

Missouri Association to Open Meeting Here Tonight.

The Municipal Theater Association will open downtown offices tomorrow morning on the mezzanine floor of the Arcade Building, and a ticket office for the sale of seats for this summer's opera season will be installed later in the same building.

It is reported that advance subscriptions for the season, which opens June 5, approximate $30,000. Reservations for the entire cycle may be made now, and locations will be assigned in the order of receipt. The prices are the same as those of last summer.

The stage and musical directors will reach St. Louis next week, and begin active rehearsals of the chorus. Singers to the number of 45 and 16 dancers will be chosen from a body of 200 candidates who have been in training for several weeks, at the Municipal Opera Training School, at Jefferson Memorial.

Man Hurt by Team and Wagon.

Otto Clainer, 58, a bookbinder, of 1417 Dodier street, when crossing from the east to the west side of Broadway, a short distance north of Branch street, late yesterday afternoon, was injured by a four-horse wagon belonging to the Christ Hilke Hay & Grain Co., 3801 North Broadway. Clainer was taken to the city hospital where his injuries were said to be fractured ribs, lacerations of the left hand and possible internal injuries. Adam Page, a negro, driver of the wagon, was held.

SEVERAL CITIES PUT UP CLOCKS TOMORROW

New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston Among Those With Summer Time.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Daylight saving will begin at midnight tomorrow in more than 500 of the nation's largest cities, in about 200 smaller cities or rural communities and in every nook or corner of several states, notably on the Atlantic seaboard.

Railroads will operate on standard time, unless a bill now before Congress which would give them permission to use daylight-saving time tables, is passed. But banks and stock exchanges and business radiating out of New York and the four or five great cities along the coast will be on daylight-saving time.

New York State, after an active year of organized farm opposition, is not following in the footsteps of its large cities. New York, Albany and Buffalo will be on daylight time, but such places as Syracuse and Rochester, agricultural as well as industrial centers, have repealed local ordinances and will continue to live by the old clock during the summer.

Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maryland and New Jersey, however, will be on daylight-saving time on a practically statewide basis. Where local ordinances govern conditions, action has been unanimous to "save an hour."

Big Cities Under Plan.

In New York City, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Boston, Baltimore, Pittsburg, Washngton and Chicago, the clocks will go ahead an hour at midnight or shortly afterward. And in all these cities action by the local councils was unanimous, except where State laws took care of the change.

Connecticut last year passed a law providing for daylight saving only by local ordinance. New London and New Haven alone adopted such ordinances, but this year Hartford has joined their ranks, and daylight saving will become almost State-wide by action in cities and rural districts all over the State.

Rhode Island joined Massachusetts in a State law for saving daylight at the last session. All Maine's large cities will save the hour, but most of New Hampshire will leave its clocks alone tomorrow.

Chicago is the center of a Middle West belt, which will have daylight time. The city decided last year to change its clocks by a vote of the people and the ordinance has not been attacked since. To keep pace with the largest city on the lakes, such places as Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit, Racine and Milwaukee have adopted time-saving ordinances. Lansing, last year on regular central time, will change this year.

Plan Followed Abroad.

Most of the leading buisness centers of Europe have adopted daylight saving permanently. Paris will continue it this year, but discard it in 1923 under a new law. London took to saving daylight on March 26, while all the cities of Belgium and France will join her tomorrow, or already have done so. Germany, by a national law, holds aloof and will conduct all its business and trade on its usual time standard.

The situation in New York State is peculiar. In the first year of Gov. Miller's administration, the "farm bloc" passed a bill repealing the State daylight saving law, but permitting it by local ordinance. All the large cities had daylight saving last year, but many have changed for the coming summer.

Most notable among such cities are Rochester, Syracuse and Oswego. After one of the hardest local fights the city has ever known, Syracuse, on April 10, passed an ordinance against tinkering with the hands of the clock. This was followed by action in nearby smaller cities, such as Ogdensburg, Watertown, Oneida, Ithaca, Cortland and Auburn. Binghamton later agreed to remain on standard time, so that the central part of the State will be almost entirely served by the "winter clock."

Effective in Resort Cities.

The principal seaboard summer resorts will be on the new time. Atlantic City, Newport, Narragansett and Bar Harbor will save daylight.

Banks in New York will operate on the daylight time, as will the Stock Exchange and all other business. Trains will be run on old time, unless the new bill is passed by Congress, but as was the case last year there will be a special time table arranged for commuters which will get them into the city on time.

FREE CONCERT BY BAND OF 600 PIECES TODAY

Other Events Announced for the Closing Day Here of "Music Week."

"Music Week" comes to an end with today's observances, which will include a concert at the Municipal Theater, beginning at 11 o'clock this morning, by two bands of 500 and 100 pieces. The former is said to be the largest band ever assembled in this city. The performers are supplied by the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association. Admission will be free, and the program follows:

Coronation March from Le Phophete —Meyerbeer
Overture to Tannhaeuser...Wagner
Idyl. First Heart Throbs..Eilenberg
Valse di concert, Invitation to the Dance ....Weber
Marche funebre ....Chopin
Selections from Serenade....Herbert
Nocturne, Monastery Bells......Wely
March, Stars and Stripes Forever —Sousa

Other events of the day will be a concert by the American Legion band from 4 to 6, at the Government Hill Pavilion in Forest Park; a recital, between 5 and 7, at the Artists' Guild, under the auspices of the Musicians' Guild of St. Louis; an organ recital by Walter Wisman at the Holy Cross Lutheran Church, at 7; and a musical program at the Maple Avenue M. E. Church, at 8.

The American Legion band, directed by P. F. Crow, will play Grafulla's march, "Washington Grays," Gobani's "Echoes From the Metropolitan Opera House," selections from Friml's "Tumble In," and F. H. Losey's march, "Call of the Wild."

The students of Concordia Seminary celebrated "Music Week" with a musicale given last night at Holy Cross School. The program included orchestral and band music, vocal and instrumental solos, a piano duet and glee club selections.

An orchestra of 45 students at the Strassberger Conservatories, under the direction of Frank Gecks, will give a concert tonight at the South Side branch, Grand and Shenandoah avenues. Admission is free. The program will comprise Schubert's overture to "Rosamunde," Vevin's "A Day in Venice," Haydn's "Surprise" Symphony, and German's dance music for "Henry VIII."

ANTIPOLYGAMY AMENDMENT CAMPAIGN SET AFOOT HERE

Two Women and Man Will Make Supporting Speeches in Churches for Next Six Weeks.

Mrs. Lulu Loveland Shepard of Salt Lake City, Utah; Dr. J. M. Tibbetts of Boston and Miss E. A. Lilley of Washington, D. C., composing a campaign party that is touring the nation under the auspices of the National Reform Association of Pittsburg, in an effort to obtain an amendment to the Constitution of the United States making polygamy a Federal crime, are in St. Louis for a six weeks' stay, speaking in the churches.

Today at 11 a. m., Mrs. Shepard will speak in the Mount Auburn Methodist Church, Hodiamont and North Market street; at 3:30 p. m. she will speak to women only in the Bethel Evangelical Church, Greer and Garrison, and at 8 p. m. in the Second Christian Church, Eleventh and Tyler; Tuesday at 8 p. m. she will speak in the King's Highway Christian Church, King's highway and Labadie; Thursday at 3 p. m. to women only in the Grand Avenue Methodist Church, Grand and Connecticut, and Friday at 8 p. m. in the same church to both men and women. Dr. Tibbetts will speak today at 11 a. m. in the St. Luke's Evangelical Church, Russell and McNair; at 3:30 p. m. at North Side Y. M. C. A., and at 7:30 p. m. in the McCausland Avenue Presbyterian Church, 1517 McCausland avenue.

They deal in their addresses with the Mormon kingdom, its missionary propaganda, polygamous teachings and practices, as well as its political, commercial and financial power.

BAKERS' STRIKE ORDER HELD PENDING MEETING

Union Officers and Employers Will Confer Upon Proposed Cut in Wages.

About 1000 members of Bakers' Union No. 4, meeting yesterday at Triangle Hall, 4100 South Broadway, decided to hold a strike order in abeyance, pending a meeting to be held this afternoon between officers of the union and proprietors of bakeries. After the conference, if a strike is decided upon, business agents of the union will go to each baking plant in the city where union workmen are employed and notify them to quit work.

A strike is likely, members of the union at the meeting yesterday declared, unless employers agree not to enforce a proposed wage cut ranging from $2 to $6 a week. The men have voted, 99 to 1, not to accept the wage cut. The union's contract with the employers expires at midnight tonight.

Otto E. Fischer, national organizer of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' Union, will address the workers today. It is expected that the local union will become affiliated with the national organization during Fischer's stay in the city.

About 400 of the 1200 members of the union are employed in small retail bake shops, others being employed in wholesale establishments.

The employers have said they will insist on the wage reduction. Peter Beisel, president of the local, has compiled statistics showing bakers here are paid less than those in other large cities.

ROME "DeLuxe" QUALITY

"DeLuxe" The Bedspring LUXURIOUS

The Vicious Circle

When a person is run down nervously, his or her digestion often fails and grave functional disorders arise, which still further complicate the nervous trouble. Physicians say that a person in this condition is in a "Vicious Circle." The relieving of this condition is a matter of grave concern to physicians.

Many of them start the cure by prescribing absolute rest, and this search for complete rest has revealed that complete relaxation is not possible on the average bedspring.

The ordinary coil, woven wire or national bedspring is not only uncomfortable but wastes energy. It even causes serious illness by distorting the spine and causing nerve pressure. It sags into great hollows; presses prominent parts of the anatomy and totally fails to support other parts. Sleep on such a bedspring is restless, broken by constant shifting in an attempt to release cramped muscles. So doctors insist that the bedspring must be designed to mold itself to every physical curve of the body, supporting every part equally and gently.

Only such a bedspring allows complete relaxation. In strict agreement with the doctors' standard the Rome De Luxe Bedspring was designed. It cannot sag—it gently supports the relaxed body without strain or twist. The body naturally falls into the most restful position on the gently yielding De Luxe.

See the De Luxe at your dealer's. Comparisons will prove that it gives a world more of luxurious comfort than any other bedspring at any price. The De Luxe does not wear or tear the mattress. Barfoot's Wildness and Lavan's Error Help Chicago in Scoring Deciding Runs in Seventh Inning.

ALDRIDGE BAFFLES HORNSBY IN PINCH

Cardinals' Slugger Called Out on Strikes With Tying Run on Second in the Eighth Frame.

By J. Roy Stockton,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

CHICAGO, April 29.—"You can't get a hit with your bat on your shoulder."

That little ditty, a favorite with Lord Byron, when his singing lordship was calling balls and strikes in the National League, aptly describes the why and wherefore of the Cardinals' defeat at the hands of the Chicago Cubs, this afternoon, 4 to 3.

With the tying run on second base in the eighth the mighty Rogers Hornsby stood immobile at the plate and let a third strike sail neatly over the outside corner. All the potential power of that mighty war club availed nothing with the bludgeon on Rogers' shoulder. It might just as well have been Bill Doak's bat, or Bill Sherdel's for all the good it did. That was one instance. The other, not so striking, was in the ninth inning. Heathcote, the first batter, drew a base on balls and then Austin McHenry, who gloried in four hits Friday, stood with his bat on his shoulder blade, while Aldrich slipped over a third strike. Both batters of course protested that the strike was not a strike, but any pitched ball that an umpire calls a strike is a strike and that's that argument.

Aldrich was the bravest person in the park and deserved the victory. Besides holding the Cardinals to seven hits he pitched thrice to Hornsby with men in scoring position, when most of the spectators were fearful that Rogers would knock him out of his rompers. But on one occasion Rogers lined to Statz, the next time he popped weakly to Kelleher and the third time he watched the third strike mentioned above.

Barfoot's Wildness Aids Cubs.

Any pitcher with that amount of courage, after Hornsby had broken all reco [illegible] for long distance hitting yesterday, certainly was entitled to the red badge of fiction. Besides his courage, Aldrich had a world of speed and mixed with it some of the most tantalizing and effective slow balls and curves that have been looked at askance by the Cardinals this year. So it must be said that despite the fact that any one of half a dozen breaks might have turned the score the other way, the Cubs earned their narrow margin of victory.

Clyde Barfoot started for the Rickeymen and would have finished on the long end had it not been for his wildness and an error by Lavan. He, too, allowed seven hits, but three of the swats came in the seventh inning, when he also hit a batter, and this had to be the inning when Lavan turned the only mscue of the game. The combination gave the Cubs two runs, which decided the affair.

In handing out the days' praise, one Arnold Statz, center fielder of much speed and cleverness must be given a large share. He romped first to one garden wall and then to another, plucking long drives out of the air as carelessly as one might pluck wild flowers.

Statz Turns Star Plays.

In one inning this Statz person from the Pacific Coast turned two apparently destined three baggers into abrupt putouts. To start the third inning he chased back and while on the dead run caught Ainsmith's mighty wallop. It was a line drive and Statz had to step on the gas to keep ahead of the ball. Then after two were down and Smith had doubled to right, Statz made an even more remarkable catch. Fournier met the ball with all his power and it sailed for right center. "Get that one, you fathead," yelled an irite Cardinal rooter, peeved at Statz's capture of Ainsmith's drive and Statz did get that one. He was almost against the brick wall when he leaped into the air and came down with the ball, taking it over his shoulder. It was one of the most brilliant catches ever witnessed and it took gerat daring to negotiate it, with that solid brick wall so near. Those were two of three great plays by Statz. In the next frame he raced back and shared a liner from Hornsby, with Stock on second base.

The catch was made in territory so deep that Stock went from second to third without the slightest danger.

It was one of those close exciting games which make baseball what it is and the weather man kindly favored with a warm sun and comfort for spectators. About 10,000 persons attended and not a one budged until the last man was out.

Cardinals First to Score.

The Cardinals scored first in the second inning when Hornsby walked, was sacrificed to second and scored when McHenry singled to center on a hit-and-run. That was all the St. Louis scoring until the eighth when Ainsmith poked one into the left field seats for a homer, his third of the series and his fourth of the year. Toporcer batted for Barfoot and his hit to right bounced off Callighan's shins for a double. Smith singled to right, sending Toporcer to third and "Specs" scored on Fournier's infield out. Then Stock flied to Statz and Hornsby watched a third strike.

Barfoot continually was in the hole. The Cubs counted in the second on Callaghan's single, an infield out and Krug's double over McHenyr's head. Then in the fifth Barfoot hit Krug the first batter and O'Farrell singled. Aldrich forcer Krug at third and Statz came so near beating out a bunt that the Cubs wanted to mob Quigley for calling him out. Barfoot then walked Hollocher purposely, but the strategy went awry when he could not find the plate for Krug and walked him, forcing in a run.

In the seventh O'Farrell singled to center and Aldrich sacrificed. Lavan mussed up Statz's grounder and Hollocher's single scored O'Farrell. Kelleher singled, scoring Statz. That was all of the scoring and sufficient.

Haines probably will work this afternoon against Alexander, though Rickey may switch to Walker or Goodwin.

Manager Rickey and Pitchers Doak, Barfoot and Sherdel departed for St. Louis tonight.

Hoyt and Huggins In Fight; Yanks Lose to Red Sox

Pitcher Takes Punch at Manager After Being Defeated by Boston, 5-2.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 29.—The Boston Americans broke their long losing streak here today, winning a 14-inning game from New York 5 to 2. Hoyt got into a hot argument with Huggins after the fourteenth inning and took a punch at the New York manager, because he had been ordered to pass Smith, filling the bases. Baker and Woods, the trainer prevented a row. Score:

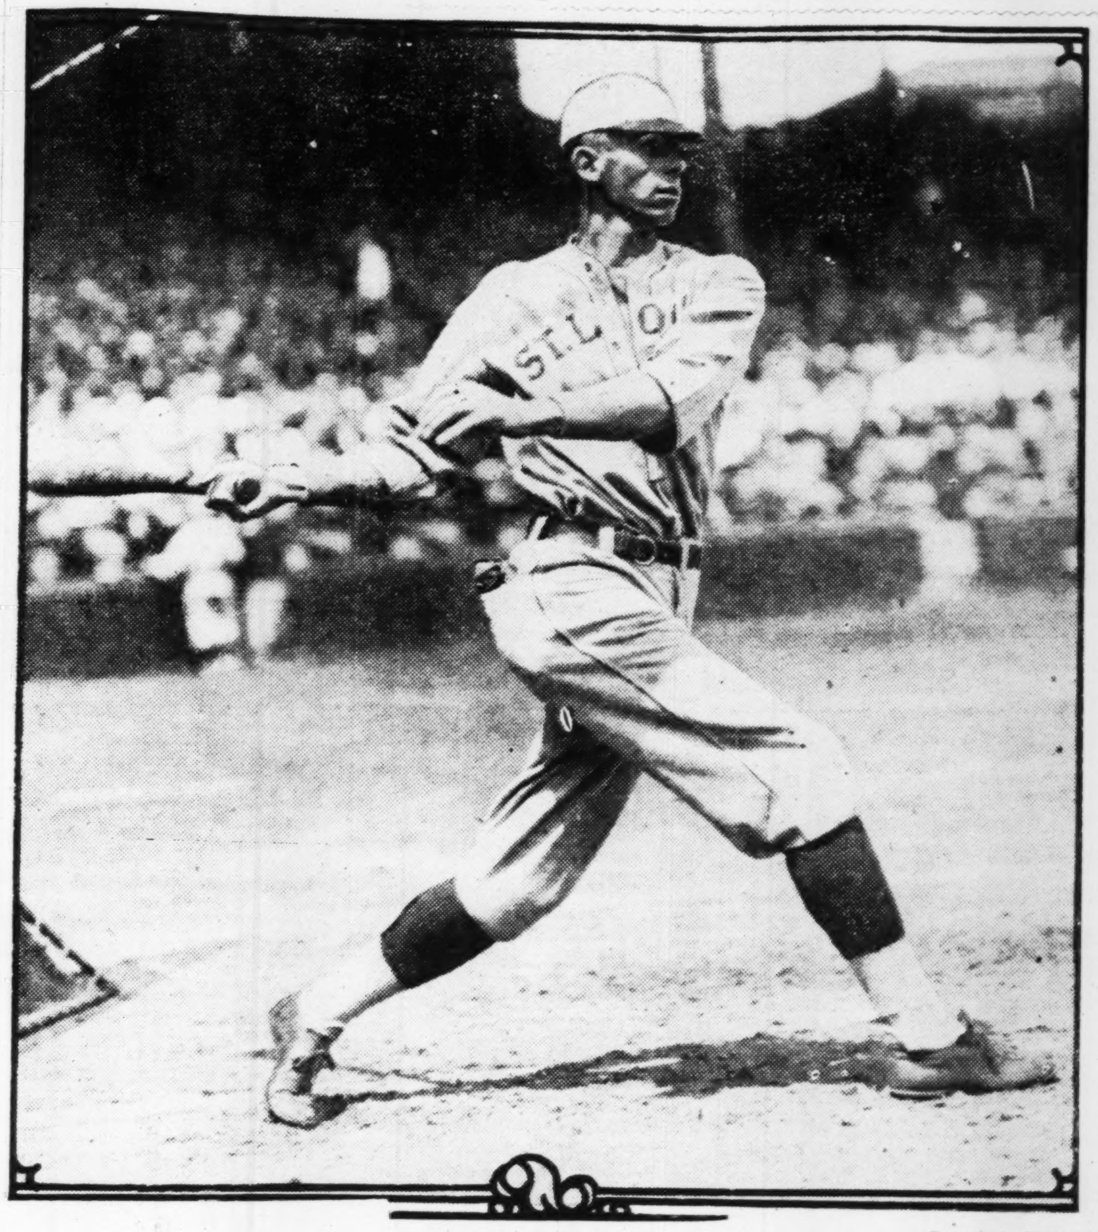
Ruth Will Have to Step Some to Overtake Him



KENNETH WILLIAMS,
Whose two home runs yesterday won from Cleveland, increased his record to nine homers in the last seven games.

Increased Confidence Williams' Only Reason for Home Run Spurt

"I Used to Wonder Whether I Could Hit Certain Pitchers," Browns' Slugger Explains, "but This Year I KNOW I Can"—No Change in Batting Form to Explain It.

Kenneth Williams, whose nine home runs in seven games have caused the baseball public to wonder whether "Babe" Ruth's crown is on straight, is 12 days ahead of the position occupied by Ruth in the home-run ranks at this time a year ago. "Babe" finished the season with 59 circuit drives to his credit, but he had a far less auspicious start than the man who is now threatening the security of his position.

Ruth failed to make his ninth home run last year until May 10. Williams' two of yesterday gave him nine for the season.

Last year Williams made a total of 24, which gave him a tie for second honors with Meusel, Ruth's teammate.

"Confidence is my only explanation," Williams said, when asked if he knew of a reason for his increased effectiveness at bat. "I feel that there isn't a pitcher in the league that I cannot hit. That feeling is no doubt due to the fine play of the entire team; but my entire mental attitude has changed. I'm not wondering if I can hit an opposing pitcher; I know $ can; I feel that he is perhaps afraid of me and may be that's the reason I'm hitting on all cylinders this year.

"No, my batting form is not changed. I still stand with my left foot on the rear line of the batter's box, draw my bat back as the pitcher winds up and then whack away. I attribute al limprovement to increased confidence."

Rivals Meet in New York May 20.

So there you have Williams' own explanation of how he has hit nine home runs in 7 days and created a mark for Ruth to shoot at. Ruth has never made more than five home runs in April and he has never driven out three in one game as Williams did Saturday a week ago.

Baseball fans are looking forward with real eagerness to the meeting of the two great sluggers in New York when the Browns open a series there May 20. Ruth's suspension will end on that day, and the "King" will have an opportunity to judge the style and merit of his rival.

Williams differs as completely from Ruth as day from night. "Babe" is a huge fellow, flabby and totally devoid of the speed that an all-round star should have. Williams is 6 feet 1 inch tall, weighs 177 pounds and is fast enough to have stolen nine bases in the 15 games played by the Browns thus far.

He is batting .431 for 15 games with 25 hits in 58 times at bat. Nine of these hits, more than one-third, have been home runs. He has scored only 13 runs, nine of which have been his own circuit wallops. His average last season wos .347.

Williams is 28 years old and was born in Grant's Pass, Ore., where he still spends his winters. He played his first professional ball in 1913 as third baseman of the Regina (Western Canada League) club.

The following year he went to Spokane in the Northwestern League and was purchased by the Cincinnati Reds to report in the spring of 1916. He played 71 games in the National League that year, but turned in a batting average of only .242.

In the following year he played 10 games and was then returned to Spokane again. He was with Portland in the Pacific Coast League in 1917 when he made 26 home runs and was purchased by the Browns for delivery in 1918. He played in only one game here before entering the army.

How Williams Made 9 Homers in 7 Days.

WILLIAMS' unsurpassed home run record of nine during the month of April follows:

April 22—Browns 10, Chicago 7. Made three home runs, with one man on base each time. Two off Righthander Acosta and one off Southpaw Davenport.

April 23—Browns 4, Chicago 3. Williams made one home run off Righthander Hodge with bases clear.

April 24—Browns 6, Detroit 2. Williams made one home run off Southpaw Oldham with one on base.

April 25—Browns 5, Detroit 3. Williams made one home run off Righthander Ehmke with one on base.

April 28—Browns 3, Cleveland 2. Williams made one home run off Southpaw Mails with no one on base.

April 29—Browns 6, Cleveland 5. Williams made two home runs off Righthander Coveleski, once with one on base and again with bases clear.

Yankees Release Roth.

NEW YORK, April 29.—The New York Americans today announced the unconditional release of Bobby Roth, outfielder, procured from Washington last year in a deal for Pitcher George Mogridge and Outfielder Duffy Lewis. Roth was suspended indefinitely at the New Orleans training camp of the Yankees for breaking training. Roth has played on every club in the American League with the exception of St. Louis and Detroit.

Williams Hits Two, Giving Him Nine In Last Seven Games

Johnny Tobin, Also Bumps One for Four Bases Off the Shoots of the Great Coveleskie—Vangilder in Form.

By Joseph F. Holland,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

KENNETH WILLIAMS, who behaves like a carload of enthusiastic "TNT," made two home runs, yesterday. That, in itself, is sufficient to lend the impression that the Browns took the second game of the series from Cleveland 6 to 5, in ten innings. But it does not indicate that Elam Vangilder pitched another of his sterling games, nor does it show that through their victory the Browns are today only one game out of first place.

It was not within the province of the devastating "Kenny" to administer the final wallop that won yesterday's game. That remained for Vangilder and Frank Ellerbe, who came through with hits in the tenth that entitled them to a slight reflection of the glory that is Williams'. However, Ken's home-run drive that tied the score in the ninth and his earlier circuit smash that performed a like service in the fifth, formed the keystone of Vangilder's victory arch.

With one out in the first half of the tenth, Vangilder paved the way for victory with a long double to left center. He ambled over to third on Tobin's out at first and himself scored the winning run of his fourth straight victory, when Ellerbe punched a single to right. This drive pleased the 16,000 in attendance quite as much as had Kenny's tying wallop. It was the punch that enabled the Browns to take advantage of Boston's victory over the first-place Yankees, to gain a full game on the leaders.

Williams' two circuit clouts gave him a record of nine in seven games. The absolute coolness of the slugger in the pinch and the timeliness of his vicious drives captivated the crowd, which wildly applauded both achievements.

Indians First to Score.

Four scoreless innings opened the game, but Vangilder wilted a bit in the fifth and the Indians scored two runs. But the lead was short-lived, for Williams fell upon the first ball Coveleskie pitched to him, in the Browns' half, and crashed it into the right field bleachers. Tobin, on third with his triple, counted ahead of Kenny and the score was tied.

The Indians tomahawked the toiling Vangilder for a run each in the sixth and seventh periods, but Johnny Tobin tore off a Williams' smash in the seventh which, combined with an error and a two-base hit, to tie the score for the second time, at 4 all.

Indians Regain Lead in Ninth, Only To See Williams Tie It With a Homer

With commendable perseverence the Indians took the lead for a third time in the first half of the ninth when Wood singled, took third on O'Neil's hit and scored on Jamieson's sacrifice fly.

It was as nothing with the St. Louis "Siege Gun" batting in the ninth. Sisler opened with a rifle shot to Sewell, but was out at first. Williams, who had been a victim of Coveleskie's slow ball, in the seventh, refused to bite at the teasing floaters and waited until Covey's fast ball came hurtling to the plate. He caught it squarely, lifted it over the right field fence onto Grand avenue. Williams jogged around the paths, cheered by some 16,000 hoarse-voiced worshipers.

The Indians, seeing three leads wiped out, rather dejectedly awaited the appearance of the Brown "punch" that would terminate the torture. It came up in the tenth and was received with all the customary courtesies.

Vangilder Shows Stamina.

Far behind the line of artillery effort, Elam Russell Vangilder, machine gunner, toiled for 10 innings without a letup. He held up the Indian advance on a number of occasions, but on others it overpowered and smothered him. He was always strong enough, however, to keep pace with his batting support and finally jumped out from his defensive position into the front line and himself led the attack.

In his last two times at bat he drove out vicious doubles; the final drive paved the way for a termination of hostilities.

The Indians are not without laurels. They made 12 hits off Elam, the total number of swats that the Brown pitcher gave in winning his first three games. He took a slugging all the way through and proved his nerve and courage beyond doubt. His last trial came in the tenth, when Sewell tripled with two out. Then Van got Gardner on a weak foul to Severeid.

Coveleski was subjected to a much more severe shelling. The Browns made 14 hits, including three home runs, four doubles and one triple.

TRAYNOR'S HOMER AIDS PIRATES IN WINNING

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 29.—Pittsburg won from Cincinnati today, 7 to 3, on a free hitting contest. Rixey was hit hard in the fifth inning and forced from the box when singles by Maranville and Bigbee, Bohne's error and Traynor's home run into the right field bleachers resulted in four runs. Score:

DAVIS AND BAGBY ARE TODAY'S HURLING FOES; KOLP BROWNS ALTERNATE

"Dixie" Davis, the generous Southerner, is the likely pitching nominee of Lee Fohl in the third game of the series with Cleveland today. "Dixie" gave 11 bases on balls in his last out, although he beat the White Sox 10 to 7, with the ninth-inning assistance of Urban Shocker.

Ray Kolp, who stopped the Tigers for eight innings, in the second game of the series after relieving Danforth, is the alternate.

Jim Bagby, the most methodical bit of baseball flesh in existence, will probably be Speaker's choice to terminate the run of defeats. The Browns have shown a great liking for fast ball hurlers and "slow and easy" Jimmy may have some success.

Ray Is Defeated; Records Smashed In Drake Relays

Watson, Former Kansas Aggie Star, Noses Out Illinois A. C. Flyer in Special Mile Race by Two Yards.

ILLINOIS TEAM SETS NEW WORLD'S MARK

Urbana Quartet Covers Four Miles in 17 Minutes, 45 Seconds — Angier Sets Javelin Standard.

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 29.—The biggest upset of the Drake relay meet here today was the defeat of Joe Ray, of the Illinois A. C., holder of seven world's records, by Ray Watson, an undergraduate of the Kansas Aggies, in a special one mile match race in 4m. 24 2-5s. Watson shot into the lead at the start, retaining it for the first quarter mile. Ray passed him in the second quarter and held the advantage until they turned into the stretch. Then Watson, with a burst of speed, pushed ahead of Ray as they were within 75 yards of the finish and broke the tape a victor by two yards.

Sensational racing and brilliant performances in the field events resulted in an avalanche of broken records.

A world's record was shattered in the four-mile relay, a new American mark was set in the javelin throw and a new intercollegiate record was created in the running high jump. Two standards for the Drake games were shattered and two were tied.

The University of Illinois team clipped six and a fifth seconds off the world's record for the four-mile relay, covering the distance in 17m. 45s. The former record of 17m. 51 2-5s. was made by the Boston Athletic Association team at Easton, Pa., nine years ago.

Angier Sets New Record.

The Illinois team was composed of Howard Yates, captain; Russell Wharton, John Patterson, and Gordon McGinnis. Yates, although beaten to tape by Krogh of Chicago in the first mile, covered the distance in 4m. 27 3-5s. Patterson ran the second mile in 4m. 25 2-5s. and McGinnis, running third for Illinois, covered the distance in 4m. 22 3-5s., finishing nearly a lap ahead of the field. Wharton, the anchor man, stepped the fastest mile of the race, breaking the tape in 4m. 22 3-5s. His nearest rival was 150 yards in the rear at the finish.

Milton Angier, another Illinois performer, shattered the American record in the javelin throw when he heaved the shaft 202 feet 9¾ inches, breaking the former record of 197 feet 7¾ inches made by James C. Lincoln of the New York Athletic Club in New York in 1920.

The new high jumping record created fell to the honor of Lloyd Osborne, also of the Illinois team, who cleared the bar at 6 feet 6 inches in the running high jump, a height never before reached in intercollegiate competition according to Knute Rockne, the Notre Dame football coach, and referee of today's games.

More Records Are Broken.

After bagging the lion's share of the honors, the Illinois team finished its day's work by setting a new record for the Drake quarter-mile relay, winning the event in 3m. 20 2-5s. The former record was 3m. 21 3-5s. The Illinois half-mile team tied the Drake record by winning the event in 1m. 28 4-5s.

Honors for beating other Drake records went to Cedar Rapids, Ia., High School team, which set a new mark of 8m. 27 4-5s for the two-mile event and 3m. 31 1-5s. for the mile. The team also tied the Drake record for the half mile high school relay, covering the distance in 1m. 34 2-5s.

Perhaps the most thrilling race of the day was the one-mile college relay, which went to Centre College of Danville, Ky., in 3m. 22 2-5s. Berryman, after running a punishing race in the second quarter, collapsed. He set a desperate pace and made up at least 30 yards for his team.

Everett Bradley of Kansas carried off individual honors by winning first places in the shotput and running broad jump. Brutus Hamilton, the University of Missouri all-around star, while failing to win a first place, was second in the javelin, third in the discus, fourth in the shotput and tied for second in the pole vault.

RING VIRTUE REWARDED WHEN HARRY SCHUSTER GETS TWO LOCAL BOUTS

Harry Schuster, the Milwaukee middleweight, fought so hard for so little on two occasions here that he won the regard of two local promoters who have matched him for bouts in the near future.

Harry will make his bow in the main event Wednesday night at the Armory show of the Business Men's A. C. against Ora Dean, with whom he is scheduled to box 10 rounds. On May 8 he will box the semi-windup at the Coliseum against Buddy McHale, with whom he is down to travel eight rounds. This bout will be the secondary feature to the Andy Chaney-Harry Kabakoff match, which was closed definitely yesterday, Matchmaker Lee Herman of the Angelica Club announced.

Schuster fought twice here, both times against Frankie Martin. Although the paid admissions wouldn't have made a Salvation Army tambourine jingle, both men went at it as though the world's title were at stake. They fought two serious and sanguinary encounters. Reports from Milwaukee speak highly of Schuster.

The Armory program Wednesday will also include bouts between Gran Whalen and Harry Ritter, and between Mike Kramer and Frankie Osner.

Opening at Local Golf Clubs.

The Algonquin, Sunset and Bellerive golf clubs celebrated their season openings yesterday. The regular greens and tees at the various clubs were used for the first time this season. The heavy rainfall has helped the greens and fairways and the courses are in wonderful condition.

Surf Rider, Left at Post, Closes a Strong Third

Kentucky Derby Candidate Makes Favorable Impression in Test at Lexington.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 29.—The Kentucky Jockey Club inaugurated spring racing in Kentucky here this afternoon, with the largest attendance in the history of the course.

The attraction of the card was the $3000 Ben Ali handicap, a mile and one-sixteenth event for 3-year-olds and up. This race brought forth seven starters and resulted in a victory for United Verde, a 4-year-old son of Golden Maxim—Yankee Tree.

The first race of the day for a sprint affair of six furlongs, the William S. Barnes Memorial, in which Centimeter was the winner. Surf Rider, a candidate for the Kentucky Derby, was practically left at the post, but under a masterful ride of E. Scobie managed to get up in time to cop the short end of the purse.

Gentility Is Scratched.

Form players got a jolt in the fourth race when Glyn, highly regarded, failed to get in the money. The scratching of Gentility in this event left a fair bunch of contestants.

The nightcap was a victory for Will Perkins, with American Boy returned for the form players the winner.

Between races Deadlock was worked a mile in 1m. 41 1-5s. He was under restraint all the way and finished the work pulling up. He negotiated the last three quarters in 1m. 14 2-5s.

Jockey E. Scobie was fined $25 for working a horse between the races.

OLYMPUS APPEARS TO BE DERBY RELIANCE OF H. P. WHITNEY STABLE

By Beating Great Handicap Horse Boniface He Established Real Derby Class.

BALTIMORE, April 29.—Whether between this and May 13 the colts Bunting and Whiskaway, which have made promising 2-year-old beginnings, demonstrate that they are of genuine Kentucky Derby quality, or whether they slip, Harry Payne Whitney is sure of at least one Derby starter—Olympus, son of Royal Eagle and Paradise II, a half-English, half-American gelding of substantial architecture and dazzling speed.

Olympus, at Havre de Grace the other day, defeated Boniface, Polly Ann and Bunga Buck in an overnight handicap at one mile and 70 yards. He shouldered 105 pounds on this occasion and conceded 14 pounds by the scale to Boniface, 18 to Polly Ann and 19 to Bunga Buck. Bunga Buck had shown first-class distance running form in Maryland last fall and earlier in April. Olympus stopped him in half a mile. Then Boniface, the second best handicap horse of the first class about just now and one of the stoutest campaigners of the racing of half a dozen years—he has won upward of $100,000 in stakes and purses for Commander J. K. L. Ross of Montreal—moved up to teach the Whitney stripling his manners and was himself and was trimmed by a head after a long, hard drive. Polly Ann, a smart mare, finished a distant third.

It takes a masterful 3-year-old to beat seasoned campaigners of the class of these horses in April. The merit of Olympus' performance was confirmed last Saturday when Boniface defeated the redoubtable Exterminator in a renewal of the $5000 Philadelphia handicap, Havre de Grace's best spring distance race for 3-year-olds and over.

Olympus is for the Derby only. Being a gelding he is not eligible to start in the Preakness renewal.

Olympus possesses all the physical qualifications of a distance runner. His pedigree is one of the stoutest in the American stud book.

CHAMINADE IS VICTOR OVER PERPETUAL HELP

Chaminade College won its fourth straight game of the season yesterday at the college campus when it defeated the Perpetual Help nine of the Municipal League by a score of 10 to 2. Aubuchon pitched an excellent game for Chaminade and made four hits in four trips to the plate.

The score by innings follows:

Team.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	—	R.	H.	E.
Chaminade	3	0	0	2	2	1	0	x	10	10	1
Perpetual Help	0	0	1	0	0	1	0	—	2	5	4

Batteries—Aubuchon, C. Wentker and Scherer; Walter, James and Ducker.

British Bar Shotput.

Oxford and Cambridge have decided to abolish the hammer throw and the shotput, substituting the 120-yard hurdle, pole vault and javelin throw in future intervarsity meets.

Illinois Trims Buckeyes.

COLUMBUS, O., April 29.—Illinois won its second Western Conference baseball game here today by defeating Ohio State, 4 to 3, in a pitchers' battle. It was Ohio State's second defeat in a Conference game this year.

Lucky Hour Had Bad Luck Here

The Chesapeake Stakes for three-year-olds, one mile and a sixteenth, purse $5,000. At post 4:55. Off at 4:57. Start good. Won handily, place driving. Time, 1:48 1-5. Winner b. c. 3 yrs. by Pennant-Frillery. Owner, H. P. Whitney. Trainer, J. Rowe, Jr.

HORSE	PP	Wt.	St.	¼	½	¾	Str	Fin	Jockey	Betting
Bunting	2	112	2	1½	1½	1½	1	1	Morris	$4.80	$2.30

*Sailing Along	4	105	4	3	3	3	2	4	Lang

*Added starter.

Bunting broke well, forced all the pace and won handily. Lucky Hour was much the best and should have won, but was very poorly ridden. Schuttinger kept him in on the rail and was repeatedly shut off. He finished full of run. Superlative closed fast. Sailing Along ran a good race.

St. Louis Women Roll Poorly in National Event

Toledo Team With Score of 2019 Bowls Into First Place in Tourney.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOLEDO, O., April 29.—Amid much pomp and ceremony, the fifth annual tournament of the Women's National Bowling Association opened here tonight. Two St. Louis teams and four from Toledo had the honor of rolling the opening games. The St. Louis ladies spent all day sightseeing in Detroit, which probably accounts for their low scores.

The Missouri Pacific Freight Claims made the high St. Louis mark of 1656, while the Missouri Pacific Woman's Engineers shot 1624. The Navarre Alleys, Toledo, took the lead with a 2019 count.

Eighty-four teams are scheduled to roll, which is two better than last year's total at Cleveland.

St. Louis is after the 1923 tourney and will likely land it. Toledo is a St. Louis booster.

Tonight's St. Louis scores:

BILKA DEFEATS MARVEY IN FEATURE BOUT OF AMATEUR BOXING SHOW

All four bouts on the card at last night's amateur boxing show at the South Broadway A. C. went the full three rounds and were decided by the judges. The best contest of the evening was between the 158-pounders, Leo Bilka and Ed Marvey. Bilka won after Marvey had floored him in the first round. The judges based their decision on the fact that Bilka carried the fight to his opponent after the opening round and finished in whirlwind fashion.

The results:

112-pound class—Eddie Kaiser, S. B. A. C., won from William Sincoff, Business Men's A. C. Judges' decision. Clifford Woodall, unattached, won from Frank Wurtz, S. B. A. C. Judges' decision.

158-pound class—Leo Bilka, S. B. A. C., won from Ed Marvey, Century A. C., Collinsville, Ill. Judges' decision. Frank Blummer, Maccabees A. C., won from George Mueller, S. B. A. C. Judges' decision.

James Solari and Robert Courtney were the judges. Fred Gilmaster acted as referee.

THUMSER HONORED WITH SECOND W. U. CAPTAINCY

Walter Thumser, Piker track, basketball and football star, was elected to his second varsity captaincy within the week yesterday when he was chosen Washington University's basketball captain for 1923. Thumser had been elected captain of the track team a few days before.

Thumser will play his third and last year of varsity basketball next year. He plays running guard and was selected by several judges as a member of the All-Valley team of 1922.

ENGLISH LACROSSE TEAM LOSES ITS FINAL MATCH

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Although defeated 6 to 1 by the Crescent Athletic Club this afternoon in Brooklyn, the Oxford-Cambridge Lacrosse team will carry back to England the International Lacrosse cup, the first trophy offered as an incentive to overseas competition in what originally was an American Indian game.

By concentrating their strength in defensive work the Englishmen managed to hold the fast Crescent eleven to a low enough score this afternoon to give the invaders a margin of five goals in the total points they have scored against 10 adversaries they have met in this country. The total score is 64 to 59.

HUNTER WINS MATCH IN PRINCIPIA NET TOURNEY

Tom Hunter, singles tennis champion of Principia Academy, easily won his first round match in the school tournament yesterday by defeating Littleton Price, 6—2, 6—1. Tom Green and Jack De Witt, other members of the tennis team, had no trouble in winning their matches.

The results of first-round play follow: Austin Bruce won from Marvin Casmir by default; James McRoberts defeated Ralph Ewing, 6—1, 6—0; Allen Kemp defeated Wilbur Harrison, 6—3, 6—2; Tom Green defeated Gordon Davis, 6—1, 6—0; Karl Berninger defeated Jack Frisky, 6—2, 6—0; Alfred Platt won from Jimmie Allen by default; Tom Hunter defeated Littleton Price, 6—2, 6—1; Martin Niemoeller won from Robert Tober by default; Maurice Lewis won from Leslie Huetman by default.

COCHRAN AVERAGES 50 FOR 500 POINTS

Welker Cochran, who is conditioning at Peterson's parlor here for his coming 18.2 balkline championship match with Jake Schaefer, scored 500 points in 10 innings for an average of 50 yesterday. The challenger had a high run of 187.

Tomorrow night Cochran and Peterson will start a match of 3000 points, 500 points to be played each night. The match is open to the public.

Bunting Lucky to Defeat Favorite In Eastern Stake

Lucky Hour's Rider Loses Stirrup as Barrier Goes Up in Chesapeake.

CROWD HISSES JOCKEY

Shuettinger Has Only Partial Control of His Mount During Race.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 29.—Bunting, H. P. Whitney's futurity winner of last season, won the Chesapeake stakes of $5000 in his first start of a new racing year here today, and so qualified for the rich Preakness stakes of $50,000 on May 13—a race for which Jimmy Rowe is pointing the son of Pennant—Frillery.

The test, however, was not entirely convincing to many in the crowd, who could not understand Andy Schuttinger's sloppy ride on the Lexington stable's Lucky Hour.

Few knew that the boy lost his stirrup, as the barrier flashed up, and consequently was handicapped all through the running. Under the circumstances Schuttinger hardly deserved the hissing which lasted for two or three minutes after the finish.

Bunting went right to the front and after racing Sailing Along into submission came away to win handily by a length in the comparatively slow time of 1:48 1-5 for the mile and a sixteenth.

Best Horse Beaten, Many Say.

Many there were who did not hesitate to express the opinion that Lucky Hour was much the better horse of the two, but that question must be left open for some future race to settle. It is true that Schuttinger was little help to his mount and that Lucky Hour finished second largely on his own courage, but the fact remains that Bunting did everything required in a way that earned him many friends.

Jimmy Rowe announced that Bunting would be shipped back to Brookdale Farm tomorrow where he will get his final preparation for the Preakness.

Lucky Hour was the favorite at odds on, but Bunting, too, had a strong following at 13 to 10.

Man o' War's Brother Loses.

My Play, a full brother of Man o' War, was beaten in the third race, a handicap of six furlongs, by Mercury, which ran in the colors of the Vulcain Stable. It begins to look as if My Play had been overrated by his early victories here. He had no excuses this afternoon and was all out to beat Wellfinder for the place.

Bunga Buck, which has been racing all winter, is still fresh enough to be dangerous. He beat a fair field in the fourth event including Missionary, which seemed to find the journey too far.

The followers of Chick Lang had a profitable day. The boy rode three winners—L'Effaire, Tartantula and Bunga Buck. They paid well, too.

HARVARD AUTHORITIES O K "BIG THREE" RACE

CAMBRIDGE, April 29.—A race between varsity 150-pound crews of Harvard, Yale and Princeton received the sanction of the Harvard athletic authorities today. It will be held at Derby, Conn., on May 20, as part of the regatta which will have as its feature a three-cornered varsity eight race between Yale, Princeton and Cornell.

Penn's Two-Mile Relay Team Sets World's Record

Meredith, McMullin, Holden and Brown Cover Distance in 7:49 2-5.

LECONEY PROVES STAR

Lafayette Sprinter Ties Duffey's Record for Games, Doing 100 in 9 4-5 Sec.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—Racing to victory in the world's record time of 7 minutes 49 1-5 seconds, the University of Pennsylvania two-mile relay team captured chief honors on Franklin Field today in the twenty-eighth annual relay carnival of its own institution after a thrilling battle with Pennsylvania State and Georgetown runners. This contest and time was the outstanding feature of a series of team and individual track and field competition such as is seldom witnessed outside the Olympic games.

While Pennsylvania with its record-breaking team stood foremost in the limelight, Cornell, Syracuse and Georgetown won relay titular places of prominence and Earl Thomson of Dartmouth; Alfred Leconey of Lafayette; Ralph Hills, Princeton; Murphy of Notre Dame and Leroy Brown of Dartmouth captured chief honors in the individual events.

The new world's record was established by the Pennsylvania quartet, consisting of George Meredith, E. McMullin, John Holden and L. Brown, and supplanted by a full second the time of the famous Oxford-Cambridge University of England combination consisting of W. Tatham, H. B. Stallard, W. R. Milligan and B. G. Rudd, running under the title of the Achilles Club. The English team's time of 7 minutes 50 2-5 seconds was made on the same track two years ago after a gruelling race.

Earl Thomson, the Olympic star, running his last big meet for Dartmouth, proved that he had lost none of his speed by capturing the 120-yard hurdle race from a classy field of hurdlers in 15 seconds flat, thus equalling the time made by Bob Simpson of Missouri University at Franklin Field in 1916. A few minutes later he went out for the discus throw and hurled the platter 131 feet 3½ inches for another first place.

Summaries:

JAVELIN THROW—Won by Bronder, University of Pennsylvania; distance 187 ft. 11 in.; second, Hoffman, University of Michigan, 182 ft. 5 in.; third, Betzmer, University of Delaware, 169 ft. 9½ in. Bronder's heave broke the meet record, the old mark of 183 ft. ¼ in., also having been made by Bronder last year.

RUNNING BROAD JUMP—Rose, Pennsylvania, first, distance 23 ft. 4¾ in.; G. How, Pennsylvania, second, 22 ft. 10 in.; Reid, Brown, third, 22 ft. 2¾ in.

TWO-MILE COLLEGE RELAY CHAMPIONSHIP OF AMERICA—Won by University of Pennsylvania (G. Meredith, McMullin, Halton and Brown). Time—7:49 2-5. (New world's record.)

ONE-HALF MILE COLLEGE RELAY CHAMPIONSHIP OF AMERICA—Won by Georgetown (Legendre, Birch, Byrd and Gaffey); second, Ohio State; third, University of Pennsylvania. Time—1:30 3-5.

SHOT PUT—Won by Hills, Princeton, distance 46 feet 5 inches; second, Beers, University of Maryland, 44 feet ⅛ inch; third, Thompson, Princeton, 43 feet 1 inch; fourth, Jordon, Yale, 42 feet 5½ inches.

HIGH JUMP—Won by Murphy, Notre Dame, height, 6 feet 2 inches; second, Brown, Dartmouth, 6 feet 2 inches; third, Chamberlain, U. of Virginia, 6 feet. (Murphy and Brown tied for first, the former winning on the toss of a coin).

SOUTH ATLANTIC I. A. A. MILE CHAMPIONSHIP—Won by University of Virginia (Gammon, Talbot, Bohannson and Baker); second, Georgetown; third, Johns Hopkins. Time—3:23.

120-YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Thomson, Dartmouth; second, Barron Penna State; third, Knolling, Wisconsin; fourth Kauffman, Penna State. Time 15 seconds.

THROWING DISCUS—Won by Thompson, Dartmouth, distance 131 feet 3½ inches; second Ashton, Westminster College, 131 feet; third, Marshall, Princeton, 129 feet; fourth Thompson, Princeton, 126 feet.

ONE MILE COLLEGE RELAY CHAMPIONSHIP—Won by Syracuse (Stone, Monie, Smith and Woodring); second, Princeton; third, Chicago; fourth, Massachusetts Tech. Time 3:19 2-5.

JAVELIN THROW—Won by Angier, Illinois, distance, 202 feet 9¾ inches (correct); Hamilton, Missouri, 170 feet 3 inches; second, Eastburn, Iowa, Wesleyan, 166 feet 1 inch; third, Moes, Notre Dame, 166 feet fourth.

SPECIAL ONE MILE MATCH RACE—Won by Ray Watson, formerly of the Kansas Aggries; Joie Ray, Illinois A. C., second. Time 4:23.

POLE VAULT—WON BY GARDNER, Yale, height 12 ft. 9 in.; second, Gouldbeck, Cornell, 12 ft. 6 in.; third, Atkinson, Cornell, 12 ft. 3 in. (Five men tied for third place at 12 ft. 3 in., Atkinson winning on the toss.)

100-YARD DASH—WON BY LECONEY, Lafayette; second, Lovejoy, Cornell; third, Graeb, Columbia; fourth, McKim, Princeton. Time, 9 4-5s., tying carnival record made by Arthur Duffey, Georgetown, in 1900 and 1902.

YALE'S VARSITY CREW BEATEN BY COLUMBIA

NEW YORK, April 29.—Columbia made a clean sweep of the annual regatta with Yale on the Harlem River this afternoon winning both the Varsity and Junior varsity races over the Henley distance of one and five-sixteenths miles.

Columbia won the Varsity race by four lengths, finishing in 7m. 30s. to 7m. 40s. for the Blue crew. Columbia began with a stroke of 38, lowered it to 32 and finished in a burst of speed with a timing of 33.

LILAC TIME.

IN California's sunny clime
They're planning for a gala time
And for the nonce neglect the rose and smilax;
But in another month or so
The native sons expect to grow
A bumper crop of long and flowing lilacs.

The natives of the Golden State
Are making plans to celebrate
The advent of the famous "Forty-Niners."
The men are raising lambrequins
Upon their former shaven chins
To emulate those tough and hardy miners.

A flowing mustache they will grow,
The Charlie Chaplin style must go,
And eke the dinky baseball-nine abortion.
To celebrate the famous rush
The ones who raise the longest brush
Will be awarded prizes in proportion.

So failure or success will hinge
Upon the crop of facial fringe
Because the "forty-niners" wore 'em always.
The "Lord Dundrearys" will appear,
And reaching 'round from ear to ear
Again we'll see the justly famous Galways.

Trolley League To Open Today

New Teams Are Added to Complete an Eight-Club Organization.

The Missouri Illinois Baseball Association, popularly known as the Trolley League, will open its season with four games this afternoon. The schedule for today is as follows: Roberts Coke vs. Alton, at Alton; Ben Millers vs. Tri-Cities, at East St. Louis; Collinsville vs. Belleville, at Belleville; Maxwell Motors vs. Car Builders, at Mount Vernon.

Two teams have been added to the league circuit, increasing it from a six to an eight-club organization. The new members are the Roberts Coke team and the Car Builders. Further changes are the substitution of the White Roses for the Bs, as the Belleville club and the Tri-Cities for the Butchers as the East St. Louis representative.

The Maxwell Motors, champions of last season, will be under the leadership of a new manager, Fred Moore. "Mutt" Ens, who handled the Maxwells last year, is now in charge of the Alton Blues. The White Roses will be directed by Walter Devoy. Jimmy Feeney will continue to handle the Ben Millers.

NAVY CREWS RETURNED VICTORS IN 3 RACES

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 29.—Rowing in far better form than their opponents, the Navy varsity eight-oared shell crew defeated the varsity eight of Massachusetts Tech by five lengths in a race over the Henley distance course of one mile and five-sixteenths of the Severn River this afternoon. The Navy second and third varsity crews both outdistanced Tech's second varsity over the same course, the former crossing the line with a three-length lead and the third crew having a margin of one one-twelfth a length over the Bostonians.

The time of the respective crews at the finish was: Navy varsity 7m. 40 2-5s.; Tech varsity, 8m.; Navy second varsity, 8m. 13 3-5s.; navy, third varsity, 8m. 24s. Tech second varsity, 8m. 26s.

CLAIRE WINS 5 EVENTS FOR KENTUCKY STATE

By the Associated Press.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 29.—Kentucky State's track team defeated the University of Tennessee in a dual meet here today by a score of 60 to 51. Claire with five firsts was the individual high point scorer of the meet, winning the century, the 220-yard dash, the broad jump and the high and low hurdles for the Kentuckians. Tennessee sprung the biggest surprise of the day in winning the mile relay after Kentucky had led for the first three laps.

Pikers Romp Over Mizzoo Team for Double Victory

Washington Captures Opener, 17—8, While Second Is Won by 4—3 Score.

Washington University cohorts yesterday enjoyed the rare spectacle of seeing the Pikers in a double triumph over the Missouri Tigers, in baseball, 17 to 8 and 4 to 3. It was the first victory in a major sport the Pikers have negotiated in a year against Missouri and the first time in many years that it was done twice on the same day.

Both games were seven-inning affairs and were replete with unusual happenings. The first of these was the ruhling of Frank de Bolt, who pitched both contests for the Pikers, retiring for a rest only in the last two innings of the first game. He allowed 12 hits and six runs and struck out 11 batters during the 12 innings he worked, while his single and triple in the second engagement figured in the scoring.

The Tigers connected with De Bolt's offerings for three circuit clouts, two of them in the second game. Taylor opened the afternoon's festivities by rapping one to far center; Hays smashed one to right in the fifth inning of the second game, making the score 1 up, while Capt. O'Reilly counted one in the seventh. No runners were on base at any time.

Wild and Woolly Is Right.

The first game was a wild and woolly affair, with the Pikers scoring in every inning. Harrison, who started for Missouri, was about as effective as a good speech in Congress and after he had allowed four hits, four passes and six runs in one and one-third innings, Coach Jones yanked him. Packwood, who replaced Harrison, was worse, allowing six hits, nine bases on balls and 11 runs. The Tigers gathered five runs in the sixth and seventh off Trautwein, who replaced De Bolt.

The excellent playing in the second game was in complete contrast with the first. Harrison, who resumed pitching for the Tigers, settled down and hurled good ball, allowing only seven hits.

The Pikers scored a marker in the second on a walk, sacrifice and single, but Hays' home run tied it up in the fifth. A walk, double, triple and an error in the Pikers' half of the fifth won the game, although Missouri scored in the sixth and seventh.

The Pikers have not lost a contest this year and are in first place in the conference race with six victories, including triumphs over Iowa State, Oklahoma and Missouri. They will play their first contests away from home next week when they meet Ames and Nebraska.

BIG CROWD INDICATED BY ADVANCE SALE FOR FIGHT ON DERBY NIGHT

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 29.—Although one of the principals is little known to fame, the advance sale for the bout between Former Champion Pete Herman and Tommy Ryan, the Pennsylvania Thunderbolt, is sizzling. All sorts of out-of-town and local seat orders have been received.

The bout will be held in the spacious Armory and the prices range from one to 10 bucks. The answer to the demand for this comparatively unimportant bout is the fact that it is scheduled to take place on Derby eve, when the city will be thronged with visitors. Last year Pal Moore outpointed Joe Lynch, then champion, before a big crowd, despite a heavy rainfall early on the evening before the Derby.

Murchison's Telegram Asking Paddock's Reply To Challenge Unheeded

LOREN MURCHISON, Illinois Athletic Club, former St. Louis boy, yesterday told the Post-Dispatch that he had wired Charles Paddock, world's champion sprinter, asking what he (Paddock) intended to do as to the challenge issued to Paddock on behalf of Murchison by the Illinois Athletic Club, to race at five distances for the world's sprint championship, on neutral ground.

Murchison said Paddock had not yet replied to his telegram nor had he answered the Illinois A. C. challenge, notwithstanding offers of expenses to Paddock and his trainers have been made the title holder.

Murchison is in training for the event and will be seen in St. Louis May 6, in the municipal championship sprints. He will compete in the Central A. A. U. and National championships also.

Webster Athletes Win Over Central

Mid-City Track Men Score Only Three Firsts Against County Stars.

Webster Groves High School had little trouble in winning its dual track meet with Central High at Francis Field yesterday morning. The county lads captured the senior events, 73½ to 26½, and the junior 62½ to 33½.

The Centralites were able to place first in only three of the 20 events. Gibson and Hart starred for Webster in the senior contest, gathering between them a total of 29 points. Central's only first place in the senior events was won by Benish in the 440-yard dash. Lacy of Webster was high junior with a total of 18 points. For Central, Felkin won the 50-yard dash and Goldberg the shot-put.

County League Schedule.

The St. Louis County Baseball League announced the following schedule for today: Manchester at Gumbo, Pershing at Creve Coeur, Webster at Maplewood.

Central Defeats Cleveland, 6 to 3 And Goes to Lead

Mid-City Batter Strikes at Wild Pitch and Three Runs Score.

Central High School took the lead in the Interscholastic League yesterday when they bombarded Wallie Reinhardt, leading pitcher of Cleveland High, for a 6 to 3 victory. Roland Riehl, twirling for the Central nine, gained his third victory of the season. In the other half of the weekly twin bill at High School Field, Yeatman defeated Soldan, 7 to 6.

Central took kindly to the offerings of Cleveland's ace and piled up a five-run lead in the first two innings. The opening inning brought three runs for the Red and Black. With the bases full and two strikes called on him, Fanning swung at a wild pitch and ran to first base. By the time the Cleveland team had recovered three Midcity men had crossed the rubber.

In the next stanza Riehl and Williamson singled. The next two batters were retired, but the runners scored when Bruere was safe on an infield error. Central scored its final run in the seventh on a hit, walk and fielder's choice.

Two singles and a walk counted one for Cleveland in the second. Walks to Pickering and Leopold followed by some wierd throwing by the Central infield netted two in the fourth.

Eihcler Hits Home Run.

The Yeatman-Soldan argument was full of excitement. The game was anyone's until the last Soldanite had been retired. Soldan started to treat Stremmel's offerings rudely in the first inning. Teddie Eichler poled a homer over the right field fence on the second ball pitched. Fisk's single, following two errors, accounted for the other West End score of the initial period.

Yeatman, not to be outdone, scored four runs in its half. A walk to Schurr, singles by Harding, Yeck and Schacht, with an infield error, were responsible for the tallies. Two singles and an error gave Yeatman one in the third. Singles by Yeck, Farrell and Cinciaola, mixed with an error, gave Yeatman its final runs in the fifth.

Soldan took the offensive in its half of the fifth. Eichler singled, Anderson walked. Fisk was safe on and error, Lingo beat out an infield tap and then Johnson poled a double. Again in the eighth Soldan made a bid for fame, but Stremmel grew stingy and allowed but one run to result from three safe blows.

Yale Defeats Pennsy.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 29.—Yale defeated the University of Pennsylvania baseball team here today, 8 to 3. Although outhit by the visitors, Yale managed to roll up a substantial score by bunching hits and hitting with men on bases.

"Listen Buddies; Bank your Bonus!"

"BANKING your Bonus" simply means that you are building a surplus to guard against emergencies. It means that you will be immune to the jars of the unexpected and alive to the opportunities around you.

If you cannot "bank" all of it, put away at least a substantial part. Remember, it may be easier to spend than it is to save, but every dollar you save now will buy more later on. Then, too, once spent, it is gone forever.

Bring in your check when you receive it—we will cash it for you—or credit part of it to your account.

Power of Courts to Declare Acts of Legislature Unconstitutional Is Fundamental Feature of Judiciary.

THIS is the eighth article in the series Prof. Loeb is writing for the Post-Dispatch on the new Constitution, to make which delegates will assemble in Jefferson City next month. The series will be continued from day to day until it is completed. Prof. Loeb has been one of the most earnest agitators for a new organic law for the State and is widely known as an authority on constitutional subjects.

THE JUDICIARY.

NO department of State government is of more significance to the individual citizen than that to which is delegated the function of administering justice. The Constitution may guarantee personal and property rights, but in order to secure their recognition by others it may become necessary for the individual to appeal to the courts for their protection. It is through the courts that the criminal legislation of the State is enforced and by means of their jurisdiction that controversies between persons are settled. Under the American system, however, the judiciary goes further and safeguards the individuals against the Government itself. This is not confined to the restraints upon illegal action by the executive which are common in European countries, but extends to the representatives of the people in legislative action.

The power of the courts to declare acts of the Legislature unconstitutional and void is a fundamental feature of our judicial system. It constitutes the greatest protection for individual freedom, but on account of the limitations that it places upon the activity and efficiency of the government it should be exercised with great care and only where the members of the court are convinced of the clear conflict between the statute and the Constitution. The great powers exercised by the courts and their intimate relation to individual rights make it essential that the judicial system should be so organized as to secure honest and impartial decisions without delay and with a minimum expenditure of time and money. This ideal is expressed in the statement "that right and justice ought to be administered without sale, denial or delay," which was incorporated in the first Constitution of Missouri and has been carried over into each succeeding fundamental instrument.

Dissatisfaction With System.

It is quite evident, however, that there is considerable dissatisfaction with the existing judicial system and a profound belief that the above ideal has not been realized. The fact that, whatever may be the cause, cases may not come to a judgment in the trial courts for many months and that upon appeal two or three years may be required to obtain a decision from the court of last resort is certainly an evidence of a delay which in many instances amounts to a denial of justice. When it is considered that the expenses attending prolonged litigation are excessive it is not unnatural that some may conclude that the constitutional mandate that justice shall be administered without sale has also been violated. It is probable that popular discontent with this condition has had as much influence as any other factor in bringing into being the constitutional convention of 1922. That body will undoubtedly be called upon to consider proposals for remedying existing defects in our judicial system. A sketch of the historical development of our judicial organization will throw light upon these defects and furnish a basis for understanding the proposed remedies.

Development of Organization.

The early State Constitutions did not undertake to define judicial organization and procedure in detail. In most cases provision was made for a Supreme Court, but as is true of the Constitution of the United States the organization and jurisdiction of the court and of inferior tribunals were left to legislative action. The Judges were appointed either by the Legislature or Governor and usually held office during life or good behavior. Georgia was the only State providing for popular election of the Judges. In the new states as well as in some of the older ones this situation soon underwent a change. Due in part to the democratic movement, to dissatisfaction with the administration of justice and to distrust of the Legislature the Constitutions began to contain sections providing for the organization of all of the different grades of courts. They also included provisions relating to the jurisdiction and procedure of the courts.

These regulations became in time a source of embarrassment, as they prevented the Legislature from making changes needed on account of the growth of judicial business and the appearance of new conditions. Resort was accordingly made to the process of constitutional amendment and revision, with the result that the article dealing with the judiciary increased in size and detail. In the most recently revised State Constitution, that of Louisiana, adopted in 1921, this article covers 18 printed pages and provides in detail for city and other courts as well as for those of wider jurisdiction. Popular election has succeeded appointive tenure for the Judges in all but a few of the older states and in only three of these are the Judges still given term during good behavior. Most of the states recognize the three grades of inferior, intermediate and supreme courts, though there are wide variations from the general plan and numerous differences in detail among the states.

Three Grades of Courts.

The original Constitution of Missouri established three grades of courts, though specific provisions regarding organization were made only for the two higher classes, inferior courts being left to legislative discretion. The Circuit Court was an intermediate court, with superintending control over all inferior courts. The Legislature was required to divide the State into convenient circuits, for each of which a Circuit Judge was to be appointed by the Governor. The Supreme Court consisted of three Judges appointed by the Governor. Supreme and Circuit Judges held office during good behavior, but could be removed on impeachment proceedings or as a result of a two-thirds vote of each house of the General Assembly.

Third Method Provided.

As will be shown presently, the plan of constitutional amendment provided a third method of removing Judges. Equity jurisdiction was conferred upon a Chancellor, but this office was abolished by the first group of constitutional amendments, adopted in 1882, and its functions conferred upon the Supreme and Circuit Courts. While the Constitution did not fix the salary it established the same minimum of $2000 that was provided for the Governor and prohibited any reduction in the compensation of a Judge during his continuance in office. The minimum salary had been strongly opposed in the constitutional convention and the constitutional amendments of 1882 struck out this provision, leaving the Legislature free to fix the compensation subject to the qualification regarding reduction of salaries of existing Judges.

Second Group of Amendments.

A second group of amendments proposed in 1833 was chiefly concerned with changes in the tenure and terms of Judges and clerks of courts. It was proposed to take the Thoughts on the State of the World by Chauncey M. Depew on His 88th Birthday

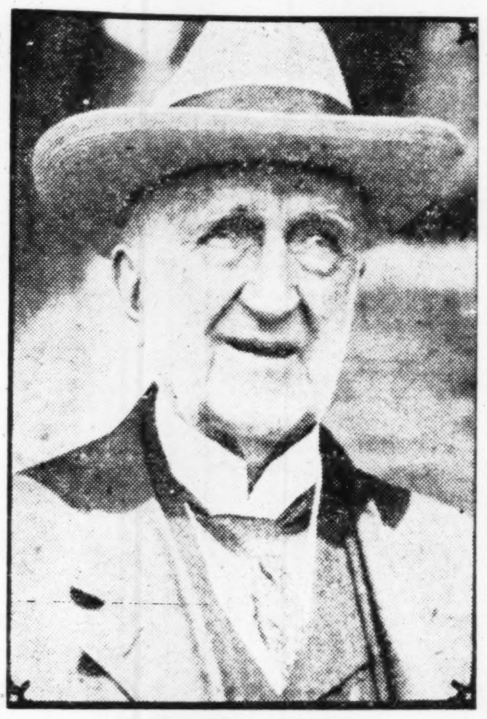
HUMANITY NOW IN THE MIDST OF ITS GREATEST ERA

America, a Great, Unselfish Figure at Versailles, Comes Into Its Own With the Disarmament Treaties—Mistake to Think We Can Isolate Ourselves From the Rest of the World, Because the World War Made Us One With Free Peoples Everywhere—Sees Menace in Allied Debts and Thinks We Should Forget Them.



CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW.

Declares That Perpetual Youth Is Within Ourselves and That It Is a Good Thing to Go Out and Mingle With Our Fellows of All Levels and Conditions—Warns Against Growing Practice of Overloading the Constitution With Measures That Should Be Left Entirely to the Legislatures of the Sovereign States.

Depew Long Ago Barred All But Cheerful Subjects From the Family Circle

HEALTH and longevity come from the easy rules of moderation and temperance in all things, but there are mental and temperamental experiences more important. I found, as everybody does, many years ago, that every member of the family brought back in the excursions of the day, in business or shopping or society, sorrowful news or irritating experiences. I had a rule adopted that all disagreeable matters should go over until the next day, and everyone as far as possible contribute something out of the day's adventures which would help, for that circle at least, the gayety of nations. The universal objection I hear when stating this rule is that it is impossible, and yet if you get into the habit, it is the easiest of accomplishments. There is always something, on the trolley or in the railroad car or in the hotel or the office, which helps for this duty of the closing of the day.—CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 29.—For the thirty-first successive year the Montauk Club in Brooklyn was host to former Senator Chauncey M. Depew on his birthday, this time his eighty-eighth. It is the club's custom to give this dinner each year on the first Saturday night following its distinguished fellow clubman's natal day. This fell on last Sunday, so the dinner call was issued for tonight. The former Senator, still in fine health and vigor, as usual made a speech, and from it have been culled the following mellow thoughts on the state of the world today:

THIS is certainly a unique occasion. It has no duplication anywhere in the country or in the world. Two more years and a third of a century will have passed in these greetings. Among the occasions in one's life for joyous celebration, none equals the birthday. All who participate make the recipient happy by felicitations upon his past; his present and his future. They want him to live forever, and in the full enjoyment of his health, his faculties and life. Up to 50 years, life is speculation, imagination and hope; from 50 to 70, realization of the fruitful period and still rich with activities; from 70 on it is retrospective and reminiscent. Happily, from the generous consideration of the good Lord, I am, in entering upon my eighty-ninth year, enjoying all these periods.

The Age of the World.

When I was a youth, the whole world accepted Bishop Usher's calculation that man had been upon the earth 4000 years. Scientific investigation and discovery of remains have satisfied the present generation of scholars that man has been upon the earth in his present form at least 10,000,000 years. Of nine tenths of that period we have no history. The archeologist, whose intense industry is doing so much, is finding cities overlaid upon other cities and these built again on prior cities, which develop that during the greater part of this time there was high civilization at different periods. When we come down to historic times, we find there are centuries hardly worth recording and the people not progressing, but marking time.

Wells' "World Going to Smash."

H. G. Wells is one of the most prolific and one of the most brilliant writers of our generation. He has condensed all history into two volumes. It is a wonderful work, but I cannot agree with many of his conclusions. I believe in supreme leadership, and that whole eras can be accounted for in the achievement of one superman. Mr. Wells is an iconoclast and smashes idols. For him, Caesar and Bonaparte have been greatly exaggerated. I had the pleasure of hearing Mr Wells make a speech at a large dinner soon after his arrival in this country. It was a pessimistic address. He said: "The world is going to smash and there is very little hope for the future." Called upon afterwards, I disagreed with him, as I do now. The situation is tragic to a degree, if you take in the whole world. Nevertheless, there are evidences everywhere of returning sanity and of recuperation, because of hope and mutual assistance. As long as the United States is developing so finely, and not only repairing its own losses, but helping the rest of the world; as long as the British Empire with its self-governing colonies is doing the same, the English-speaking peoples of the world will prevent its going to smash.

I said then, as I say now, that the inspiration of youth is its idols. The more numerous and the greater these idols are in one's memory and in one's library, the more there is of growth and achievement. They may differ according to environment or temperament or race, but the world could not lose its great authors and heroes, nor could any nation develop on secure lines whose people had not been brought up on the achievements of those of supreme intelligence who had made its history. No pessimist can take away from us our Webster, Calhoun and Clay, Washington, Lincoln, or any of our great authors of the English tongue.

Most Fruitful Event in History.

In reading recently a work by a distinguished Irishman, I was impressed by the few eras which have marked the story of time. Caesar crossing the Alps led to a new civilization and commerce in the world. A Chinese Emperor, to keep out the barbarian hordes who centuries ago were living upon exploiting the peaceful Chinese, built the Great Chinese Wall. That turned the activities of these barbarians to the West and they wiped out the decadent Roman Empire. The Turks, after they had conquered Constantinople and destroyed the Byzantine Empire, closed all the trade routes to the East. To find new highways, Columbus crossed the Atlantic. The discovery of America in 1492 was the most productive and fruitful event in history. It gave Great Britain her mastery of the sea, and, according to this great Irish publicist, the discovery of America so tightened the grip of England upon Ireland, because Ireland stood across her ocean outlets and commerce, that it made the freedom of Ireland impossible for 700 years. In the development of the world, God, for His own purposes, kept this great continent practically uninhabited until the time of Columbus. The European wars and difficulties of navigation enabled the settlers here to work out in their own way, as could have been done nowhere else on the globe, a system of civil and religious liberty. That system is today crossing the borders and capturing the vision of the inhabitants of all nations. If the discovery of America tightened the grip of England upon Ireland, it also provided a home and a new Ireland for the Irish people. There are more Irish in the United States, with their descendants, than there are in Ireland. With their wonderful capacity for government and for politics, they are a power in every state and community in our country. They still govern our City of New York.

Preferable Period to Live in.

I once had a long conversation with Mr. Gladstone, or rather listened to a monologue from this great statesman, in which he discussed the fascinating question, in what period, if one could have made the selection, he would have preferred to have lived. Mr. Gladstone said: "I would have selected the half-century of my activities."

This remark was made just after he had passed his home-rule bill through the House of Commons. He was in a jubilant mood. He said: "The reason that I selected this half-century is because it is a period of emancipation. For Great Britain it had been an expansion of its suffrage, a liberalization of its economic laws, the freedom of the Irish church, and, as seemed probable, home rule for Ireland. For France it had been the permanence of the French Republic. It had been the emancipation of the serfs in Russia and larger powers in representative government in continental countries. In the United States, it had been the emancipation of the slaves, and the reunion of the states upon the basis of the Declaration of Independence. Certainly this was a marvelous period. Yet, my friends, take our 50 years. They have no equal. We have been the heirs of all that rejoiced Mr. Gladstone, but we have been witnesses and participants in triumphs for civilization and liberty. We have seen the disappearance of three families who, whether their representatives upon the thrones were good or bad, great or foolish, absolutely controlled the destinies of Europe, and largely of the world, for centuries. The Romanoffs, the Hohenzollerns and the Hapsburgs are gone forever. The divinity which in all ages has surrounded the throne and the King has disappeared. In its place has come an advance in popular suffrage and representative government.

The Conference at Versailles.

We have passed through the greatest tragedy of modern times. We have rejoiced in the success of right, civilization and liberty. The struggle has cost 50,000,000 lives, and has left enormous burdens of debt upon all nations, and devastation and chaos among many. But we are now witnessing and participating in the efforts for reconstruction. The conference at Versailles to settle the affairs of the world was partially successful. The same ambition, greed and jealousy which have marked all the conferences for treaty-making in history predominated at that gathering. While continents were being divided, islands distributed, boundaries fixed, nationalities disintegrated and new ones created, the United States stood there alone, asking nothing, seeking nothing, except the welfare and liberty of mankind.

After two years of efforts, some success and many failures, an inspiration came to President Harding. It can be called by no other name. It can be ascribed to no other source. A conference could not be held in London because of the suspicions of France, nor in Paris, nor in Italy, nor anywhere in Europe, Asia or Africa, without starting with the inherited jealousies of generations of conflict. The City of Washington was absolutely free from any heredity of ambition or strife. The people of America were comprised of men and women of all nations who were enjoying here the blessings of American liberty and united in hoping for the rehabilitation and happiness of the countries from which they or their ancestors came. So that public opinion in the United States was united solidly and enthusiastically for world peace.

Beyond any period in history, statesmen when they meet together are now more impressed by and responsive to public opinion. Under these conditions, the conference at Washington became the most important assemblage of all time. The great Powers were there with their ablest representatives. They expected the usual processes of slow development, long debate and difficult agreements. The genius of the American spirit, the inspiration of the solidity of American public opinion, changed the diplomacy of the ages. After an illuminating speech by President Harding, Mr. Hughes, instead of presenting a program for debate, said: "The United States, in the interests of peace and lifting the burdens of nations, is willing to scrap so much of its sea power. Your share on the same ratio will be so much. Will you accept it?" Then came another surprise, showing the influence again of the inspiration of the occasion and the environment. Great Britain had more at stake than any other nation, and yet in 30 minutes, and without consultation with his own Government, that veteran and enlightened statesman, Mr. Balfour, said: "Great Britain accepts." The representatives of other nations soon followed. The ruinous competition on armaments, which was a perpetual threat to the peace

Washington Idea of Statesmen Talking Personally to Press Representatives Followed at Genoa

Custom of Group Conferences Begun by Roosevelt, Developed by Wilson and Harding.

By CHARLES G. ROSS

CHIEF WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT OF THE POST-DISPATCH

WASHINGTON, April 29.

GENOA, as indicated by dispatches telling of Lloyd George's address to newspaper men from all over the world, has put the stamp of its approval on the Washington "press conference" idea. It has now become the European as well as the American fashion for heads of state, Cabinet Ministers and diplomats to emerge periodically from their seclusion, face the press of the world in the persons of its representatives on the spot, give their views, candid or otherwise, on this or that topic of public interest and submit themselves to a bombardment of questions.

Sometimes these views are given in confidence, sometimes for publication. If for publication, they are used in either of two ways or a combination of both, according to the terms of the agreement between the interviewers and the interviewed. The preferred method, of course, from the viewpoint of the newspaper men, is that of direct quotation of the speaker, with his name given. The other is that of giving the information with the source concealed or disguised.

Interviews With President.

It is the latter method which is followed by the Washington correspondents in their professional relations with the President. They see him at the White House twice a week, on Cabinet days, and submit questions in writing. The President reserves the right to lay aside without comment any question that he does not care to discuss. Rarely, however, does he do this. On nearly every topic that is brought up he appears to do his best, as a newspaper man, to satisfy the desire of a fellow craftsman for information. The President knows news and knows how to tell it succinctly. That, coupled with his uniform courtesy, makes the privilege of attending the semiweekly White House conferences one of the most pleasant experiences of Washington newspaper life. Any duly accredited newspaper man may be admitted.

Unless the President gives his express permission, nothing that he says may be quoted as coming from him. The information may be used, however, on the writer's own authority, as expressive of the views of the administration. Some of the most significant news stories that go out of Washington emanate from the Tuesday and Friday conferences at the White House. The hour of the former is fixed at 1 p. m. and of the latter at 4 p. m., so that the afternoon papers will have the advantage on one day and the morning newspapers on the other. To the President, himself a newspaper man, it was not necessary for the correspondents when they arranged the hours in conference with him, to dilate upon the desirability of dividing the "breaks" between the "mornings" and the "afternoons."

Idea From White House.

The idea of frank conferences between public servants and the people, as represented by the press—the idea that we are now seeing copied, to the great prospective betterment of international relations at Genoa—is believed by old-time news writers here to go back to the White House at Washington and to the time of Roosevelt. Presidents before Roosevelt, of course, talked with newspaper men, but the interviews in those days were sporadic and limited largely to the correspondents in whom the executive, by reason of previous acquaintance, reposed special confidence. McKinley, for example, was in the habit of seeing only certain correspondents, with whom he was personally acquainted. The group interview, open to all the members of the corps, was unknown.

Roosevelt began the custom of having the newspaper men at the White House in large numbers and talking to them in the Cabinet room while he was being shaved. Taft carried on the practice of giving periodical interviews, and under Wilson it became further established and systematized. Wilson began by seeing the correspondents twice a week, as Harding does now, and continued so doing till a short time before America entered the war. Then the conferences became embarrassing because of the presence of representatives of German newspapers at a time when this country was on the verge of war with Germany. Questions were asked which the President felt that he could not answer; even his silence, when he did not answer, might be considered to have some significance. He solved the difficulty by discontinuing the conference.

Conferences Under Harding.

Under Harding the conference idea has been revived and brought to full flower. Not only the President, but all his Cabinet members, have their regular hours for seeing the press "en bloc." Outside the Harding conferences, those held by Secretary Hughes are the best attended and of greatest interest. Hughes often talks with remarkable frankness about the attitude of the administration toward international affairs, but, like the President, he may not be quoted except with his permission. He has an amazing faculty for making things clear.

Most of the Washington corps of newspaper men would agree with an estimate of Hughes spoken on the floor of the House the other day—that "when Charles E. Hughes finishes talking about a subject, it seems there is nothing more to be said."

The Hoover conferences rank close up in point of attendance and interest. It is not true, as sometimes said, that Hoover doesn't look a person in the eye. He does, and he talks well and to the point. Facts and figures flow from a well-ordered mind. Hoover always leaves the impression of knowing exactly what he is talking about.

The publicity arrangements at the arms limitation conference grew naturally out of the system already in vogue in Washington. It was merely expanded to meet new requirements. The correspondents themselves, with the co-operation of the State Department, built up a publicity machine that functioned with an efficiency and smoothness astounding to the foreign newspaper men.

Instead of segregating the correspondents according to nationality, as was done at the Paris conference, they threw the whole lot together in one big press section. Americans, Englishmen, Italians, Chinese, Japanese, Dutchmen, Australians, New Zealanders, Canadians and the rest mingled in one press room and exchanged views. The French rarely came in—perhaps that was one reason why their viewpoint failed to get the sympathetic attention they thought it was entitled to. A great gain toward a better understanding among the peoples of the world was made through this friendly intermingling of newspaper men.

Publicity of Arms Conference.

Delegates and spokesmen of the delegations regularly talked to the correspondents and submitted to questioning. One could go, in the course of a few hours, from the popular "open house" of Lord Riddell, the personal representative of Lloyd George, to a meeting with Senator Schanzer of Italy, thence a few doors away to an interview with Kato, and top off the tour with calls upon Secretary Hughes and President Harding. This is not to say they all told, always, what was in their inmost minds. There were secrets at this conference, as at all international gatherings. But the mere fact that they came out from the cloistered diplomatic halls to give an accounting, if only a partial accounting, to the world's public, represented a long step forward from the old ways of diplomacy.

Baron Shidehara put it neatly at a

Our Forgotten Heroes.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Grant celebration should remind us how ungrateful we have been to the memories of our own heroes and national celebrities. What have we done to honor Grant, Sherman, Benton, Blair, Vest, Clark, the explorer, and Eads and many others? All of these, excepting Grant, are buried here and considered it "home." Grant was married and his children were born here. All we have to show are three insignificant statues of Grant, Benton and Blair and none at all of the others. Even the headstone over Sherman in the cemetery is insignificant. Washington has just dedicated one of the world's greatest monuments to Grant and has a magnificent equestrian statue of Sherman overlooking the White House grounds. We have not even named a prominent street for either of them. Vienna contains hundreds of great statues of the great men of the world in every field of human endeavor, including Americans. Surely we have enough wealthy people, especially old families in St. Louis, to honor our national celebrities, as well as themselves, and to add needed beautification to our city, by imitating Vienna at least to the extent of remembering the great ones at home.

In the meantime, our poverty-stricken city Government could rename Twelfth street Grant boulevard in memory of the spot where he sold his humble wagon loads of wood when he was a Gravois road farmer. Skinker road could be called Sherman boulevard and De Baliviere avenue Jefferson boulevard. Jefferson avenue could be renamed Twenty-sixth street. Many other needed changes in our street nomenclature could be suggested, if space permitted.

Bonus and Doughnuts!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

DO THE overseas soldiers ever think of the thousands of "Thank Yous" that those doughnuts received, made by the Salvation Army lasses? Remember how they were "there" to do at all hours for our comforts and cares? Isn't it a shame that they still have guard duty and we don't?

Efficiency was their watchword as they wedged in, brotherly, with all welfare organizations overseas, and made many a bright hour for us. Their peace program is even more heroic today, wedging, Christianlike, into our big cities and doing the biggest of things for humanity.

Therefore, fellow ex-service man, let's fall in; count the moment we receive our bonus check the "Zero Hour" of opportunity to surprise the Salvation Army with a donation from our State bonus. Keep them in their regular work instead of tinkling the little donation bell next December. This is a challenge to the St. Louis buddies, as the ball can be started rolling here by even a dollar donation and will put wonderful momentum in such a righteous cause.

EX-SOLDIER WHO WAS "OVER THERE."

The Next Senator.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE watched with interest your capable editorials relating to the qualifications of our next Senator from Missouri. You have stated in your columns that we need a man who will protect the State from the ever-encroaching menace of Federal power over states' rights; that we must have a man who will stand for strict enforcement of the law, but one who will insist upon constitutional enforcement of the law. You have repeatedly taken the position that we need intelligent representation without the rancor and bitterness of partisanship, and that above all, we stand in need of clear-sighted, constructive statesmanship.

Our next Senator from Missouri should be a young man, vigorous and effective, one who has not been identified with any of the party factions. He should be able to support the administration in whatever constructive measures are before Congress.

You have frequently in your columns printed the speeches of a young officer of this State, and commented favorably, in your editorials, upon the positions he has taken, with regard to our vital State necessities as herein outlined. There is, in my opinion, no man better qualified for our next Senator than Jesse W. Barrett, the present Attorney-General.

SALUS POPULI.

The American Spirit.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

LET me commend you on the admirable editorial in the Sunday paper entitled "An Argument Against Wage Cuts." It is expressive of the big and free spirit that America stands for—that splendid live-and-let-live sentiment that should always be the prevailing instinct of all true Americans. M. J. TOOHEY.

Voices and Pains.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I AGREE with Mr. Garland that the voices heard by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle are not from the dead, but they are from the living.

I have for the last three or four years heard these voices. I know now that they come from people around me.

Besides these voices I feel pains that are very severe at times. I was told that these pains were put on me by the people from whom I hear these speeches. Mediums and spiritualists have worked against these men for me, but with no results.

WOMEN IN POLITICS.

President Maud Wood Park of the Pan-American Conference of Women, whose session in Baltimore has just been concluded, observed that some people were inclined to say of the woman in politics: "You are all dressed up and nowhere to go."

There is a valuable suggestion in the foolish question. Where is the woman in politics and public life going? How is she to exert that influence which contributes so much to the welfare of mankind of which we hear so much in eloquent and moving utterances? What part will she play in practical politics?

Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador, with startling frankness, said to the members of the Pan-American Conference and the League of Women Voters in Washington: "The trouble with all of you is that you are too ignorant. Unless you get out of this ignorance you are a positive menace. You must get to studying the things that vitally affect the nation, for there are problems, which are of particular interest basically, that you should know and understand."

Nothing truer or wiser could be said. It is true of men as well as women, but it has a special application to women in politics because they have just come into the field. They represent a great new electorate, equal in number to the electorate of men, which hitherto has controlled politics, badly enough, it must be admitted, on account of the ignorance of a large per cent of the men.

Some of the things that women talk about accomplishing through the votes and influence of women in politics do not belong to the domain of politics and can never be accomplished by political measures. They belong to the domain of morals and can only be accomplished by moral suasion and spiritual regeneration of the individual citizens. They fall within the sphere of social and spiritual redemption and attempts to accomplish them through governmental power are not only futile, but are contrary to the principles and functions of government and are destructive of free institutions.

In order that electors may exercise their political power intelligently and effectively for good government it is necessary for them to know the basic principles upon which all wise and sound government is founded. It is necessary to know and understand what are the proper functions and the limitations beyond which it cannot go without invading the rights and destroying the safeguards of free government.

The prime function of government is to establish justice between man and man and to maintain liberty—the liberty of the individual citizen in so far as his liberty does not infringe upon the rights and liberty of others. This function is fundamental to good government and the other functions pertaining to the common interests of the people are subordinate to it. The field of governmental activity in caring for the interests and accomplishing ends common to all the people must be restricted by safeguards for the preservation of justice and liberty.

For this purpose constitutional safeguards have been set up to prevent the encroachment of government upon the rights and liberties of the individual and the encroachment of the Federal Government upon the rights and just powers of state and local governments.

In order that women who are entering upon the exercise of political rights may exercise their power and influence for the welfare of themselves and all the people they should study not only the practical issues and the measures which are brought up for decision and the methods by which political power may be exercised effectively, but the basic principles of republican institutions and the proper functions of government. They should be able to judge the significance and meaning of issues and the value and effectiveness of measures and methods in the light of a thorough understanding of sound governmental principles and of the wise boundaries of governmental functions.

The tyranny of majorities is as obnoxious and destructive as the tyranny of autocracies and despots. If electoral majorities are ignorant or misguided as to political principles, governmental functions and public measures they menace the public welfare and may undermine just, free government. If this great republic is destroyed it will be destroyed by ignorant and misguided voters who may have the best possible intentions.

The study of how to cast a ballot should be combined with what can and ought to be done through the ballot box without violating the principles of free government. A study of the Declaration of Independence and the Federal Constitution with its history will throw abundant light on this subject.

LET HIM BE RESPECTABLE.

The Migratory Workers' Union, says its secretary, John Kelly, "detests the appellation 'hobo.'" There is bromidic humor in this popular designation of a class of workers whose lives are disentangled from all those mouth-filling labels of respectability which appear in the home-town obituary. There is no humor in it for the class of workers to which it is applied, a class which faces more than its share of difficulties, without having them augmented by gratuitous slander.

The industry of the country should be grateful that there are migratory workers. Moreover, it should be glad that these workers want to be respectable. Frequent change of location and employment invites irresponsibility, idleness, mendicancy. Shall we add to temptation the curse of a damaging epithet?

What does the casual worker do? He toils in the lumber woods, in the harvest fields, in the mines and factories, on the sea and Great Lakes and on construction projects everywhere. He supplies service where he is needed and relieves the labor surplus where he is not needed. He is a circulating medium that stabilizes the labor market—and at his own expense, both in railway fare and in sacrifice of the comforts of home and family. Society unthinkingly adds to these handicaps the stigma of a slanderous appellation.

Thus, the declaration of principles adopted by the Migratory Workers' Union at its national convention in Cleveland, on the whole, is interesting and in part may be commended. It calls for Federal health inspection of construction camps, abolishment of prison contract labor, a shorter work day, free transportation to and from jobs, abolition of privately owned employment bureaus and a general change in the prevailing vagrancy laws.

It is the lack of the common essentials of decency in the migratory worker's life and the ill-conceived public attitude toward him which incubated that truculent host of desperation, the Industrial Workers of the World. Shall we protect the migratory worker in his rights and encourage the legitimate aspirations of the M. W. U., or shall we call him a "hobo" and make of him an I. W. W.?

RUSH THE RIVER PROGRAM.

If the great program of river improvement approved by Congress in 1910 had been carried out the United States today would have an approximately adequate transportation system and no harassing railroad problem at its vitals.

The program, known as the 1910 plan, which was to have been completed in 1922, was admittedly pretentious. The Ohio River was to be made navigable from Pittsburg to its juncture with the Mississippi at Cairo; the Mississippi from New Orleans to Minneapolis; the Missouri from Kansas City to the Mississippi. And this great tri-river ocean would have been to St. Louis what the Adriatic was to Venice in her heyday.

The program has not been carried out. Only a fraction of the contemplated expenditures has been made. The convulsion of the World War accounts largely for the shelving of the project. There have been other contributing factors, however, chief among which has been the failure of the people of the Mississippi Valley States and their Representatives and Senators to appreciate the invaluable asset they had in their rivers and the great monetary losses inflicted upon them by the expensive and inadequate service of the railroads.

A concrete instance of the financial injury done the Middle Western farmer through neglect of our rivers was given by Congressman Newton of St. Louis in his stimulating address at the fourth annual meeting of the Mississippi Valley Association at Kansas City the past week. The time was at the close of the World War when there was an eager, profitable wheat market. Kansas had an abundance of wheat. But Kansas did not get that wheat to market. The railroads could not carry it. They did not have the cars. That temporary breakdown of the railroads cost the farmers of Kansas $20,000,000—the sum fixed by Congress 12 years ago as necessary to make the Missouri River from Kansas City to its mouth an operating, dependable railroad for the farmers of Kansas and for the farmers of many other states.

River improvement, river navigability means railroads. The Kansas farmer, recalling the attractive wheat market he could not reach in the fall of 1919 because the railroads could not furnish cars, is able to appreciate that fact, and, thrifty Puritan that he is, should instruct his Senators and Representatives to join in the fight for river appropriations. But the farmers of the whole Mississippi basin and all the manufacturers and jobbers—in short, everybody in the great Middle West—should be as interested in river development as the Kansas farmer. As was pointed out at the Kansas City convention, the Mississippi and Ohio rivers, improved and functioning, will carry the flour of Minneapolis to the Eastern market and carry it cheaper than the railroads. And this is true of all the commodities produced or consumed in the valley.

The money required for the completion of the 1910 program should be provided and the work pushed to conclusion without delay. Further, public sentiment should approve the suggestion advanced by Senator Reed at the "river rally" luncheon in St. Louis Friday that, in addition to the funds necessary for the Mississippi-Missouri-Ohio project, the Government should expend $25,000,000 annually in extending the improvements of all our rivers and maintaining them at the point of highest transportational efficiency.

The comparatively few millions invested in river development will flower into billions which consumers will share with producers because the service of transportation will be furnished economically.

The whole Mississippi Valley should get its shoulder behind the program of river improvement and development.

INTOLERANCE ON A RAMPAGE.

A number of prominent clergymen and laymen of New York Protestant churches, including Methodists, Baptists and Presbyterians, have organized a militant association, under the name of the Evangelical Protestant Society, to fight "Roman Catholic encroachments upon American institutions." Specifically, the call for charter members sets out:

> The objects of this society are to defend and promote Evangelical Christianity in co-operation with evangelical churches and to defend American democracy against the encroachments of Papal Rome. This movement is designed to be nation-wide and international. It is to be a fight absolutely in the open, and its work will be constructive rather than destructive. It is to be a sustained and permanent effort working through the various evangelical bodies of this country, and it is the purpose of the organizers to fight the Romanist evil in three practical ways, as follows:
> 1. By intensive evangelism throughout the length and breadth of the country.
> 2. By pitiless publicity, showing them up to the American public, including their own members.
> 3. By combating them in a political way along the lines employed by the Anti-Saloon League.

When one considers the growing activity of a large portion of the Protestant churches in politics and their zealous pursuit of law as an aid in compelling universal conformity to their views of personal conduct, the New York movement need cause no surprise. It is but the enlarging circle of the wave of intolerance that characterizes the times.

Many well-intentioned persons will be deluded, no doubt, but those given to reflection will ask themselves whether the expressed zeal for the preservation of American institutions isn't founded upon total ignorance of the meaning of those institutions. One of our cardinal tenets is that of "live and let live" with respect to religions, be they Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Roman Catholic, Buddhist or Mohammedan. Especially does the Constitution forbid the passage of any act abridging the freedom of religious worship, yet the Evangelical Protestant Society proposes "to use political methods along the lines employed by the Anti-Saloon League" to stamp out Catholicism, as certain of the Protestant churches, through this league, have tried to banish liquor.

Is it intended that there shall be a twentieth amendment to the Constitution which shall read:

> Sec. 1. The teaching or profession of the Roman Catholic faith within the United States and all territories subject to the jurisdiction thereof, is hereby prohibited.
> Sec. 2. The Congress and the several states shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

So-called Christians who can lend themselves to such a movement are not only in dire need of evangelization themselves but likewise stand in need of instruction in American citizenship.

MORE EFFICIENCY.

IT is a payroll robber
  Who stoppeth one alone.
This thing is common nowadays
  Though formerly unknown.
At any rate, all ye with grief,
  Prepare ye now to groan!

He does not ask for money—
  A custom some time back.
Not he—he merely points his gun
  And rudely grabs the sack.
Or say a word, and lo the world
  Turns permanently black.

But getting on, he grabs it—
  The newest thing in crime.
The pay of many other men
  In [illegible] of the time.
A tale too terrible, you'll say,
  This melancholy rhyme?

It is—but to our muttons:
  The robber takes the sack
And hastens to a waiting car.
  This last a Cadillac.
Description usually vague
  Except the car was black.

Then gongs and bells awaken—
  The cops, it seems, dissent,
But no one yet has seen the way
  A payroll robber went.
And anyway, what time the cops
  Get there the swag is spent.

One of our playful publishers tells us we cannot hope to read understandingly the labor news now beginning to appear in some of the more liberal dailies without having a pocket dictionary of words peculiar to some of the more picturesque labor movements. Thus, we are told that in Eugene O'Neill's play "The Hairy Ape" one of the characters asks another: "Why don't you join the wobblies?" Most people in the audience stir uneasily at this, but those who have come equipped with the aforesaid dictionary and a pocket lamp may very soon make out that by wobblies the author means members of the I. W. W. Wob is also a member of the order, and wobblyism is the philosophy of wobs and wobblies. Now you know all about it.

It is nice of Emerson Hough to say that St. Louis is the most important city historically in the region west of the Alleghenies, but let us hope the compliment will not greatly dispose us to let it go at that. Fascinating as our history is, the interval since we made any is alarmingly great. There are things in government quite as picturesque as those of discovery and pioneering. Thus, Cleveland is trying an entirely new form of government for a big city. Detroit is trying public ownership of her street railway system. While applauding old times, we will need the spirit of new things, and we think Mr. Hough will notice that before he has been here long.

SEEING ST. LOUIS ON SUNDAY MORNING.

An electric cluster on Twelfth street side of city hall still burning at 10 a. m.

A statue of the Father of His Country on Washington avenue. No, I didn't know it was there, either, until Sunday a. m., but it is; atop of a building at Fourteenth street.

A negro man and woman at Eleventh and Morgan streets having a verbal domestic battle. The man finally walked north on Eleventh street, leaving the honors to the last-word female, as usual.

A gathering of motor-cycle riders at Twelfth and Chestnut streets, nearly all with side car and a lady passenger. Pretty good way to take an outing, at that.

Sidewalk at Fourteenth and Chestnut full of theatrical trunks and more or less sprightly chorus ladies. Used to wonder what they did when they got elderly and f—stout; but don't any more, because I still see them in the chorus.

Union Station—observation platform on Alton Limited crowded. Gee, I wish I was going somewhere.

Johnson street—must have been named after the noble Jack, as his is the only color I see.

The Grant revival should encourage parents whose children are not conspicuous for good marks in school. Grant was always at the wrong end of his class, and you may guess from his letters what sort of English he wrote. Each of us has his usefulness in the world. Grant found his, and in the end he proved infinitely more useful than his schoolmates. It is a nice thing to be capable of fine marks in school, but that is by no means the end of the race. We have that brought home to us forcibly when we recall the story of Grant.

RADIOPHONE IN HUMAN PROGRESS.

From the San Francisco Bulletin.

THE real story of human progress is told in such things as the art of writing, printing and the moving picture—the greatest invention since the art of printing was introduced—and the story of the near future will include the radiophone that already is doing more than could possibly have been done by the telegraph or telephone. Writing, printing, moving pictures and radio—the story of these is the story of civilization told in the larger language of world development. The moving picture and radio are the greatest mechanical achievements of modern times. By means of the movies the whole world and all that is happening in it is brought to the smallest village on the map. It has done more for the better understanding among races and nations than anything since Guttenberg fashioned his types. The moving picture speaks all languages and talks to the whole human family. Radio does even more, for it gives immediate hearing to all sounds within its radius and very soon that radius will be the whole surface of the globe. The lashing of the waves upon the rocks of the Atlantic coast will be heard as distinctly on the shores of the Pacific at the radio concert on the roof of the Fairmont Hotel. The speaker's audience is no longer the limited number assembled in a room—it may be made to include all that have radio receivers, and soon the receiver will be among the first of the necessities in every household. Some people appear to think that radio may go as far as to dispense with newspapers, but there need be no fear that the press is undermining its own existence in making the radiophone popular. News can be disseminated by radio, but all the members of a family will not want the same news at the same time. While father is listening to the politics, mother will be impatient for the women's budget, and while brother is enjoying the sporting news sister will be wanting the fashion or society items. All cannot get what each wants at the same time, even if all news were sent out simultaneously. But radio will give all that have something to sing and all that have something to play a nation-wide and soon a world-wide audience.

FRANCE AND THE NEGRO.

NORVAL P. BARKSDALE of Kansas City in L'Opinion (Paris).

FRENCH civilization produced Toussaint L'Ouverture, Alexander Dumas, Rene Maran and a host of other French writers and artists who had colored blood in their veins. Among the Teutonic nations men of colored blood, no matter how gifted and cultivated, encounter nothing but obstacles and discouragements. Just now we have here a talented negro comedian, Charles Gilpin, who received lately a letter threatening him with death if he ventured into any Southern state. I greet the negro of France. He knows true liberty; he knows what it is to live. * * * Recently I have read in French magazines articles by L. Bertrand, A. Albert-Petit, C. Furbin, L. For this we love you. We shall never forget that in your land we have learned to appreciate the truth that your motto—"Liberty, Equality, Fraternity" [illegible] a mere trio of empty words. They [illegible] true sentiment of the French nation. [illegible] French friends, is why your colonial subjects are contented and do not revolt against your [illegible] that is why we black men elsewhere [illegible] and why we are ready to flock to your [illegible] if you ever have need of us.

Week of Weddings Brought to Close With That of Miss Janet Gregg, Who Became Bride of Asa Brookings Wallace; Ceremony in Which White Was Striking Feature, Performed at Christ Church Cathedral.

A WEEK crowded with beautiful weddings was brought to a fitting conclusion with the marriage yesterday of Miss Janet Gregg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Dudley Gregg, of Brentmoor, and Asa Brookings Wallace. The ceremony was performed at 5:30 o'clock at Christ Church Cathedral by the Rev. Dr. George D. Norton of St. Michael's and All Angels Church, and was followed by a large reception at the Gregg home. It was an all white wedding, the only color note being in the pink roses and snapdragons carried by the bride's attendants, and the pink waxen roses on their lace hats.

The bride, who was one of the popular debutantes of the winter, wore a gown of white satin adorned with quantities of rose point lace. A high monk's collar of the lace defined the boat-shaped neck, and bands of it trimmed the long chiffon sleeves. A feature of the skirt was a flounce of the rose point edged in orange blossoms which fell in folds from the lowered waistline diagonally to the hem. A court train of satin depended from the shoulders, over which fell a similar one of lace, weighted with clusters of orange blossoms.

The tulle bridal veil, studded with rose point medallions, was arranged under a Russian headdress of the lace, and her flowers were orchids and lilies of the valley in a shower. She wore Mr. Wallace's wedding gift, a bow-knot of diamonds set in platinum.

Mrs. Clarence King, formerly Miss Marion Gregg, the matron of honor, was gowned in filmy white lace and a hat similar to those of the other attendants, of lace, trimmed with a lace scarf drawn around the crown and falling to the knee on the right side. Pink roses caught the lace to the brim. The bridesmaids, Miss Eleanor Simmons, Queen of the last Veiled Prophet ball; Miss Mary McKeen, whose engagement to Thomas K. Niedringhaus Jr. has been announced; Miss Mary Etta Randolph and Miss Elizabeth Taylor of Little Rock, Ark., and Misses Grace and Janet Wallace wore gowns fashioned alike of white crystal beaded crepe made with high round necks and sleeveless. The skirts were quite long with wide draperies of chiffon. They all carried pink roses and snapdragons in arm bouquets tied with wide pink ribbon.

Mahlon B. Wallace Jr. served his brother as best man, and the groomsmen were Boyle O. Rodes, Whitelaw Terry, Charles Mulliken, Thomas K. Niedringhaus Jr., Sidney Allen, Dixon Porter of New York and Clarence King.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Gregg was decorated with pink roses and blue delphinium, and the open porch off of one of the rooms was canopied, forming an out-of-door reception room. The bridal table was decorated in white lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Wallace presented her attendants with leather jewel cases, and Mr. Wallace gave his best man and groomsmen gold-mounted leather cigarette cases.

Mrs. Wallace is a graduate of Mary Institute, and attended Bryn Mawr.

Mr. Wallace is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace of the Price road. He is a member of the St. Louis Country Club and the St. Louis Club.

Society is interested in the military and civilian horse show to take place at Jefferson Barracks May 25, 26 and 27, under the auspices of the Jefferson Barracks officers and the St. Louis Riding Club.

This is the first horse show held in St. Louis since 1912. The annual horse show previous to that time vied with the Veiled Prophets ball in popularity with the elite.

Lovers of the horse will have an opportunity to view high-classed animals at their best, and a special field is being arranged for the event on the grounds of the barracks. It is to be one of the most brilliant social events of the early spring, and will be the opening of social activities between the military post and St. Louis society. Music will be provided by the band of the Sixth Infantry.

Among the prominent persons who are sponsoring the event are: Mmes. Howard Bailey, E. B. Bakewell, Paul Bakewell Jr., Harry Block, Phil. H. Brockmann, Adolphus Busch III, August Busch Jr., William H. Cocke, W. R. Compton, George L. L. Davis, John T. Davis, Albert R. Dillingham, George L. Dyer, E. A. Faust, Philip B. Fouke, James M. Franciscus, Lindsay Fransiscus, F. D. Gardner, Thomas W. Garland, Frank V. Hammar, W. L. Hemmingway, Lon. O. Hocker, Granville Hogan James A. Hooke, Breckinridge Jones, Henry W. Kiel, Max Kotany, E. J. Krause, Wm. J. Lemp, A. J. Lindsay, John G. Lonsdale, L. J. Mauran, W. C. McBride, N. A. McMillan, Carl F. G. Meyer, Charles Moore, Richard Morey, E. L. Musick, George Niedringhaus, E. D. Nims, Louis Nolte, Chas. Parsons Pettus, J. Scott Porter, George T. Priest, T. G. Ratcliffe, Aaron S. Rauh, John C. Ried, George W. Simmons, W. D. Simmons, Tom K. Smith, H. W. Soper, D. S. Stanley, George F Steedman, E. J. Walsh, Julius Walsh Jr., James A. Watson, M. L. Wilkinson, R. E. Wilson, Claude Yeorman and Halesy E. Yates.

The following will be patronesses of a performance of Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple," to be given Thursday night at the Odeon by Thyrsus, the Washington University dramatic club: Mmes. W. B. Arthur, Theophilus Conzelman, David R. Francis, Frederick A. Hall, Robert McK. Jones, W. E. McCourt, W. R. McKenzie, George Niedringhaus, Lindsay Pyle, W. H. Petring, Aaron S. Rauh, Wallace Renard, A. L. Shapleigh, Edmond Wuerpel, Sarah Tower, Newton R. Wilson, J. A. Waterworth, Lon Hocker, Lee Meriwether, R. A. Kissack, Operschelp, and Miss Edith Fenton.

Flower headdresses, worn by Sicilian girls in the festivals of their own land, will form the patterns for the coronets which a group of young girls here will have for the roof garden dance to be given May 13, by the Big Sisters of St. Louis. These girls will wear summer frocks adorned with flowers to match those of their headdresses, and long Sicilian veils will hang from the crowns of their heads to their heels.

The girls will be members of two of the committees for the dance, and they will be divided into groups each of which will have its own leader. The girls are Misses Sylvia and Angela Black, Dorothy Lentin, Arline Schwartzkopf, Virginia and Theodora Bennett, Lucia Beck, Violet Dames and Dorothy Smith.

The dance will be the first open air event of its kind this season and will be the formal opening of the Statler Hotel roof garden for the summer. It will be both a dance and a card party. Card players will have tables on the seventeenth floor of the hotel, where a special garden will be installed for their benefit. The players will be permitted to choose the game for each table and will pivot without progressing. Mrs. George Dietz is chairman of the card party and her assistants are Mmes. R. L. Sanford, Frank G. Jonah, W. H. Wright, L. L. Renfrow, B. R. Fuqua and Charles Stockhausen.

Refreshments will be served throughout the evening and flowers and cigarettes will be sold. All the proceeds will go to the Big Sisters' Organization to make up the year's budget of that organization.

Another wedding of interest yesterday was that of Miss Adelaide Bohn of 4932 Forest Park boulevard, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bohn, and Merlin Henry Stauf, son of Mrs. Margaret Stauf, of 5825 Nina place, which took place at 9 o'clock at the Cathedral, the Rev. Father Gilfillan officiating. A breakfast for the bridal party followed at the home of the bride.

Mrs. Stauf was attended by her sister, Miss Lydia Bohn, as maid of honor. Edmund J. Bingle Jr., of New York, was best man. The bride, who is a graduate of the Sacred Heart Convent, wore her traveling dress of dark blue tricotine, with a hat of black straw. Her flowers were a corsage of orchids. Miss Bohn was gowned in gray crepe de chine with trimmings of dark blue, and a blue and gray straw hat to match. She also wore a corsage of orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Stauf have departed for New York on a honeymoon trip and upon their return will make their home at the Orient apartments.

One of the largest teas of the past week was that given Friday by Mrs. Walter H. Petring of 6 Washington terrace, and her daughter, Miss Mildred Petring. Two hundred guests called between 3 and 6 o'clock. The hostesses received before a background of lilacs and pink roses and the tea table was decorated in the same blossoms. Those who assisted in serving were Misses Elizabeth Bradshaw, Elise Meyer, Gayle Anderson, Marie Stifel, Dorothy Wiggins, Estelle Lieber, Helen Petring, Emma Petring, Mmes. Frederick Emmons Niedringhaus and Grant Webster.

Mrs. Joseph Huey Hughes of Dallas, Tex., who has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bagnell of 12 Westmoreland place, has departed for her home. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes have built a home in Highland Park, a suburb of Dallas corresponding to Brentmoor here, and will take possession in June.

Mrs. Oscar Johnson of 38 Portland Place was hostess to a group of prominent women Friday when arrangements were made to conduct a flower market May 12, at some downtown location yet to be selected, for the sale of garden flowers and garden seedlings and plants. The proceeds will be used to finance the work of the Missouri Welfore League. Among the women who accepted Mrs. Johnson's hospitality were Mmes. Joseph W. Bray, Walter Shields, George Hellmuth and Misses Carol Bates and Eleanor Horton.

Mrs. Joseph Gilman Miller of 28 Westmoreland place, accompanied by Mrs. Hiscock of Springfield, Ill., sailed on the Paris last week for a summer abroad.

Miss Catherine Louise Crunden daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Crunden of 4426 Westminster place, will sail on the Lapland for Europe June 17. She will be a member of a party chaperoned by Miss Noland of the Foxcroft School in Virginia. Mrs. Crunden and her daughter have recently returned from Hot Springs, Va., where they have spent several weeks, and Mrs. Crunden will leave St. Louis tomorrow for St. Paul to visit another daughter, Mrs. Wallace Cole.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene B. Stinde of 4944 Lindell boulevard will entertain guests at the dinner dance Wednesday evening which formally opens the Sunset Hill Country Club. Included in the party will be Mr. and Mrs. George B. Gannett, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Penn Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Lake Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Hilmer.

Mrs. John Drew of New York is the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Horace Happel of the Clayton road.

Mrs. J. Lionberger Davis of Brentmoor has as her guest her mother, Mrs. George Vietor of New York, and the visitor was entertained last week by a round of informal parties.

Miss Demaris MacBeth of 3703 West Pine boulevard gave an informal buffet supper following the second performance of the Junior League Follies Tuesday evening. The guests were members of the cast

Several couples in the young married set in society have purchased lots in Skinker Heights opposite St. Michael's and All Angels Church, and ground has been broken for homes to be built. Included in the number are Mr. and Mrs. John S. Lionberger, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Scott.

Mrs. John T. Davis Sr., of 17 Westmoreland place, will depart this week for Washington, D. C., to visit her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis, for a fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Davis, 18 Westmoreland place, their daughter, Miss Alita Davis and their son, Samuel C. Jr., will spend two months in Europe. They will sail in June, and return in August, when they will go to their summer home in Winter Harbor, Me., for a month.

Mrs. W. Palmer Clarkson of 2 Windermere place gave a bridge party and shower Thursday for her niece, Miss Blanche Turner, whose marriage to Eston Randolph will take place May 27. There were four tables for cards.

Mr. and Mrs. Erastus Wells of 53 Kingsbury place and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McKittrick of 4328 Westminster place will spend the summer at Pointe-aux-Barques, Mich.

Miss Katherine Cushing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Cushing of Webster Groves, whose marriage to Theodore Gupton of Kansas City will take place May 9, has been the honor guest at a number of prenuptial parties. Friday afternoon Misses Marion and Dorothy Kron gave a tea for 50 guests in her honor. Miss McLean Young served. Wednesday evening Miss Young gave a kitchen shower for the prospective bride.

Yesterday Mrs. Norman Chivvis, Miss Cushing's sister, gave a luncheon for her and there are several parties planned for the coming week.

Mrs. Frank Mebane, who, as a member of the American Committee on Devastated France, visited in Serbia and Rumania, will lecture on "The Balkans" at the College Club Saturday afternoon, May 5. The gown worn during her lecture will be an embroidered peasant costume, a gift of the Queen of Rumania.

The "French Salon" will have its last meeting of the season at the home of Mrs. Horace Soper, 4731 Westminster place, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The program will consist of a group of French songs of all periods, sung by Mme. Pernet McCafty.

Three plays will be given by the Theatre Francais of the Alliance Francaise at the Little Theater of the Artists' Guild May 9. They are "La Peur," by Felix Duquesnel; "Les Coteaux du Medoc," by Tristan Bernard, and "La Mort de Moliere," by Maurice Rostand. The actors are: Mmes. Paul Blackwelder, Guy Study, Odette de Lecluse; Messrs. Jean Tanty, Henri de Lecluse, Franz Stoffel, Marcel Boulicault, Lester Stanhope, Russell Stanhope. Mrs. Everett Pattison and Mrs. Henri de

Capital Busy Entertaining Pan-American Delegates

Several Missouri Women Among Hostesses; Conventions of Daughters of 1812 and League of American Pen Women Draw Many Visitors

The Post-Dispatch Bureau,
No. 20 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Many Missourians are numbered among the hosts of the visiting Pan-American delegates who came to Washington on Friday and captured the town. By a special arrangement the hospitalities were divided between a number of Washington hostesses, thus relieving the strain on any particular one. Mrs. James A. Reed, Mrs. Selden P. Spencer, Mrs. John B. Henderson, and Mrs. Joseph Folk were among those who entertained at elaborate luncheons in honor of the visitors.

Lady Astor was the center of attraction. Everyone was eager to see the American girl who had made her way into the English Parliament and made English history by so doing. At the sessions of the Pan-American conference in Baltimore and at those held in Washington the cry on every tongue was "Which is Lady Astor?" There were not many who guessed without assistance that the fair-haired little woman, almost childlike in appearance, modishly gowned in gray or blue, with big, smiling, blue eyes, was the distinguished woman whose game is world-wide. But when the realization came, her conquest was complete.

"Homecoming" for Lady Astor.

"This is coming home," she exclaimed when thousands of handkerchiefs waved at her in the familiar Chautauqua salute when she appeared on the platform at Baltimore. And she waved back her

MISSOURIANS IN WASHINGTON SOCIETY

coroneted bit of real lace enthusiastically in return for the greeting.

Mrs. Selden P. Spencer and Mrs. Edgar Ellis alternated as State hostesses at the attractive Missouri booth in the book fair of the League of American pen women this week. A delegation of 15 Missouri women came to the pen women convention and more were present at the convention of the United States Daughters of 1812 which was meeting in Washington, and on every hand one meets the beribboned delegates eagerly studying guidebooks or searching for lions of the genus home on the Washington streets.

Mrs. Cleveland A. Newton, wife of Representative Newton, and Mrs. Edgar C. Ellis, wife of Representative Ellis, both of Missouri, entertained on last Tuesday at Mrs. Newton's home at a tea in honor of Mrs. Herbert S. Hadley, wife of a former Governor of Missouri. All the delegates from Missouri to the National Congress Daughters of the American Revolution were guests, including Mrs. John Trigg Moss of St. Louis, ex-vice president general of Missouri; Mrs. R. H. Connelly of Kansas City, State historian; Mrs. George Kirt, of Chillicothe, State regent. The receiving rooms were decorated with spring flowers. Assisting were the ladies of the Missouri delegation in the House and Senate and Mrs. Albert W. Jeffries, Mrs. Charles F. Keyser, Mrs. Will Goodykoontz, Mrs. Howard Reeside, Mrs. John Langley, Mrs. Homer Hoch, Mrs. John H. Smithwick, Mrs. Adam Wyant, Mrs. Hugh C. Smith, Mrs. Harry Lee Hogan, Miss Millspaugh, the Misses Hawes and Miss Keyser.

Gen. Pershing Gives Luncheon.

Gen. Pershing has been a host again. His latest luncheon was on Sunday in honor of Marshal Joffre of France and his charming wife and daughter. Gen. Pershing had a most distinguished company to meet his French guests. The General has just returned from a long riding trip through Virginia. While en route to Washington he stopped off at Wakefield Manor, the beautiful country place on the Rappahannock of Major-General and Mrs. George Barnett of the United States Marine Corps. With him was Col. Richard Marshall, U. S. A., his aid.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Coontz, who are also Missouri folk, have had a charming guest in Miss Katherine Collins of Seattle, Wash., at Wardman Park Inn. The Rear Admiral and Mrs. Coontz entertained at dinner for her on Tuesday, and Thursday she was the guest of honor at a dinner given by Hugh V. Tennant, secretary to the Ambassador of Great Britain.

International Foundation Launched.

Mrs. James M. Thomson, daughter of the late Speaker Champ Clark, is announced as one of the honorary committee of the International Foundation, a movement just launched in Washington which has for its object the banding of women together all over the world for the "service of humanity." Missouri women will be honored in the acropolis to be built in Washington wherein the great women of each state and country are to be memorialized on tablets.

Although Mrs. John B. Henderson has engaged in entertaining the Pan-American delegates, yet she is not well enough to participate in other social activities and will enter the Takoma Park Sanitarium on Sunday for a much-needed rest.

Reward Offered for Slayers.

A reward of $100 has been offered for the capture and conviction of the robbers who shot and killed Patrolmen Bernard Mengel and Michael O'Connor on April 22, by Laclede Council, Knights of Columbus. Both men were members of the lodge.

Stop Punishing Yourself

Many people create their own misfortunes—for instance, your eyes—perhaps you, like thousands of others, suffer from headaches caused by visual defects. Perhaps you have suspected your eyes might be at fault, yet through neglect from day to day you are possibly permitting a trivial visual defect to develop into a truly serious condition.

Stop punishing yourself right now! I have perfected a system of EYE EXAMINATION so thorough and efficient in its results that I can quickly determine without drops or drugs or any annoyance to you, the exact nature of your visual defects, and the proper Glasses to correct them.

Over 30,000 people are wearing my Glasses.

The Store Opens on a Sale
That Is Positively Sensational

Prepared thoughtfully and thoroughly—and then done radically and in a wide, sweeping way—as would be expected when Sterns say "sensational." This is merely an announcement on a great event—a plain statement of facts—a statement from a source where you know only facts are advertised—and where a mammoth sale of this nature is well worth attending. It's an occasion for savings on a large scale—splendid merchandise from special purchase and regular stock that will impress any and everyone.

SHOES

Better "Buys"
for Better Buyers

YOU want real style, lasting value and perfect-fitting shoes. And they must give you service and hold their shape. But neither price nor the appearance of ordinary shoes can guarantee all this to you. You must look for one thing more—a reputation, a name, QUEEN QUALITY, stamped on the sole. QUEEN QUALITY is the sign of a better shoe, a better value, a better service. It makes your buying easy. And your satisfaction certain.

One of the widely favored, trimly tailored oxford styles, to dress your feet smartly, fit them beautifully, and give you lasting wear.

nist. The participants included Irma Wolf, Ethel Finkelstein and Jacob Cohen.

Mrs. A. F. Ewers of 3411 Pestalozzi street, entertained the Camp Holiday Girls at a tea Friday afternoon in honor of Miss Sara G. Holliday of Burlington, Ia. The affair was given at the College Club. Mrs. R. E. Gruner, Mrs. Charles Gilbert and Miss Georganne Tracy assisted at the tea table.

George Block of 3617 Delmar boulevard will depart Sunday night for Kansas City to attend the photographers' convention to be held there from May 1 to 8.

WOMEN'S CLUB NOTES

Mrs. John S. Payne, president of the Eighth District Federated Women's Clubs of Missouri, has issued an invitation to the clubwomen of St. Louis and surrounding towns and their friends to attend a lecture on "Our Animal Allies in the World War" to be given tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Soldan High School auditorium, by Ernest Harold Baynes, representative of the American Museum of Natural History. The talk will be illustrated by animated pictures of those unreasoning soldiers of the great war, the horses, mules, dogs, carrier pigeons and other beasts and birds, without whose faithful assistance the task of winning the war would have been more difficult.

The Confederate Dames Chapter of the U. D. C. will be entertained by Mrs. William M. Sloan, at the Glen Echo Club at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Assisting hostesses will be Mrs. J. W. Fristoe and Mrs. F. M. Starr.

The regular meeting of the Woman's Chamber of Commerce will be held Wednesday at the Planters Hotel. There will be a business meeting at 10:30 a. m., luncheon at 12:30 and a round table talk on civic needs of St. Louis. Officers of various clubs will lead these discussions. Following this, there will be an informal reception for new members.

The annual reciprocity meeting of the United States History Club will be held at the home of Mrs. A. Raymond Gould, 5216 Vernon avenue, Wednesday, May 11, at 2 p. m. A program has been arranged. Groups of songs will be given by Mrs. Grace Johansen and Miss Lola Braxton. Miss Ione Zuhlke, violinist, will play, and there will be a reading by Miss Catherine Snodgrass. Mrs. Rosalind M. Day will be the accompanist.

Invitations have been issued for a reciprocity meeting of the Delvers Study Club to be held at 2 o'clock, May 1, at the Crode Studio on Hamilton avenue. Mrs. John Zahorskey is the president of the organization. The program will be given by Mrs. Frank Howard, violinist, and Miss Lilian Harlan, reader.

1000 U. S. Army Blankets

Ideal for Campers, Fishermen, Automobilists, Boy Scouts, Etc.

While These 1000 Last, Each $2.20

These are all O. D. and khaki U. S. Wool Blankets, measure 66x80 and weigh from 3¾ to 4¾ pounds. About 50% of them have the initials U. S. stamped in the center, the others are plain. Part of these have never been reclaimed, while the others are in first-class condition. They bear the mark of the American Woolen Mills, Depot Headquartermaster, Philadelphia, Pa. We understand that they cost the U. S. Government $4.30 to $4.80 in thousand lots, and we have not seen anything in St. Louis to compare with them at these prices.

WIDOWS GIVEN $24,350 THROUGH POLICE CIRCUS

Passbook Showing Bank Deposit of $4870 Handed to Each of Bereaved Companions of Two Policemen and Three Firemen.

Bank passbooks showing $4870 each on deposit were presented yesterday to the widows of two policemen killed by payroll robbers last Saturday and of three firemen who lost their lives April 17 in a collision of a fire truck with an automobile and a street car. Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust Co., handed the passbooks to the five widows.

The total, $24,350, represented the proceeds of benefit performances of the police circus Thursday at the Coliseum. The beneficiaries are Mrs. Bernard Mengel, 511A Wilmington road and Mrs. Michael O'Connor, 3420 Montana avenue, widows of the policemen; and Mrs. Michael Kane, 900 Grove avenue; Mrs. John Haas, 1028A Forest avenue, and Mrs. Eugene Carton, 3411 Bell avenue, widows of the firemen.

Police Chief O'Brien, Fire Chief Panzer, Adam Koeln of the firemen's organization; John Riley of the Police Relief Association, and members of the Benefit Committee attended the presentationo at offices of the Mercantile Trust Co. Mrs. Nora O'Connor was comforted by her son, Vincent, 11 years old, and her daughter Frances, 12, when she burst into tears on receiving her book. Mrs. May E. Carton was accompanied by her 11-year-old daughter, Virginia. The widows asked the Post-Dispatch to express their deep appreciation to all who had helped in the benefit.

The policemen's widows will receive, in addition, $3000 each from the Police Relief Association, and a year's salary from the department, $1680 for Mrs. O'Connor and $1380 for Mrs. Mengel, whose husband returned to the force eight months ago as a probationary.

The widows of the firemen will receive $30 monthly from the firemen's pension fund and $750 each from the Mutual Benefit Association of the firemen's organization. Virginia Carton also will get $7.50 monthly toward her support. Additional subscriptions are expected to raise the proceeds of the Coliseum benefit to $25,000. About 24,000 tickets were sold, and it is estimated that 15,000 persons attended the performances. Chiefs O'Brien and Panzer and Edward Sullivan and David Russell of the Benefit Committee expressed their thanks to the public for the attendance at the circus. Russell announced that persons who were unable to get in at the Coliseum may use their tickets for admission to the Monday and Tuesday matinees at the Fox-Liberty Theater.

The Board of Aldermen has under consideration a $500 reward to be offered on behalf of the city for the capture of the slayers of O'Connor and Mengel. The Automobile Dealers' Association has offered already a like sum for their arrest and conviction, and the South Side Trust Co. anounced a $250 reward for the capture of each. An additional $100 was posted for the same purpose by the Laclede Council, Knights of Columbus. Both policemen were members of that council.

SECRETARY OF LABOR TO VISIT ST. LOUIS THIS WEEK

James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor in President Harding's Cabinet, will visit St. Louis next Saturday and Sunday, as the guest of Clarence H. Howard, honorary president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Davis, who formerly was an iron worker in a Granite City steel mill, will arrive at 5 p. m. Saturday, and will be the guest of honor at a dinner of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Statler at 6:30 p. m. Members of the Senior Chamber and of the Advertising Club and local union officials will be invited. Mayor Kiel, M. L. Wilkinson, John E. Turner and Oliver A. Selle, president of the junior organization, will speak.

Secretary Davis will visit the East St. Louis Moose Chapter Sunday afternoon. A reception will be held Sunday night at the Francis home, Newstead and Maryland avenues, by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, to which heads of all civic organizations will be invited.

How to Make Perfect Strawberry Jam in 10 Minutes

New Certo Process Astonishes Housewives

Never Fails, Requires Only One Minute's Boiling, Retains all the Color and Flavor and Makes More Jam From Same Amount of Fruit

Strawberries are now plentiful at a low price, sugar is cheap and housewives are putting up strawberry jam as never before. Best of all, the brand-new and never failing Certo process for making jams and jellies has eliminated every reason why any housewife should hesitate to make such a delicious conserve. Anyone can now make perfect strawberry jam in 10 minutes, at a very low cost, with all the flavor and color of the fruit retained.

The new Certo process is very simple: Crush well in single layers about two quarts of ripe berries, using wooden masher and discarding all green parts. Measure 4 cups crushed berries and 7½ leveled cups (3¼ lbs.) sugar into good-sized preserving kettle. Mix well; stir hard and constantly. Bring to vigorous boil and boil hard one full minute, continually stirring. Take from fire and add ½ bottle (scant ½ cup) Certo, stirring it in well. Let stand 5 minutes only, by the clock, stirring occasionally; skim and pour quickly into sterilized glasses. Result is 10 half-pound glasses of strawberry jam for total cost of 97 cents (strawberries at 30c a box and sugar at 6c. a lb.)

The former guess work and worry of making jam or jelly is now past. The Certo Process is endorsed by government authorities and cooking experts; it insures perfect results with every batch. It is also very economical, requiring only one minute's boiling and thereby makes two-thirds more jam or jelly than the old method. It also makes all kinds of jam or jelly, some you have never tasted before, like pineapple and rhubarb jelly, or combinations like strawberry and pineapple, etc. Many housewives with no little pride are exhibiting the new flavors and better quality of jams and jellies made with Certo.

Certo is absolutely pure—contains no gelatine or preservative. Housewives have received it with open arms because it is so certain, so economical, so simple, and so useful. They are recommending it to all their friends. Get a bottle of Certo with Certo Book of Recipes containing the above and nearly 100 other recipes, from your grocer or druggist at once. Extra copies sent free if you write to the Pectin Sales Company, Inc., 112 East Avenue, Rochester, N. Y. Try Certo right away with fresh fruit like strawberry or pineapple. Then you will do all your preserving the new and modern way—the easy, economical and better Certo Process.

ELVA MAGNUS GETS DIVORCE FROM PAUL C. TROMBLEY

Mrs. Elva R. Trombley, who appears on the stage as Elva Magnus, was granted a divorce yesterday from Paul C. Trombley, 27 years old, a traveling salesman, living at the Statler Hotel. Her maiden name, Magnus, was restored.

Miss Magnus testified that she married Trombley in Clayton at midnight, Sept. 26, 1919, after they had left a St. Louis cabaret where she was a singer. They separated Dec. 12 of the same year. She charged nonsupport and desertion.

Miss Magnus, after the separation, played with the "Jack O'Lantern" company and more recently with the company head[ed] by Miss Elsie Janis, which she [illegible] several weeks ago. In past seasons she has played minor parts in various productions of the Municipal Opera Association and last summer had a principal role in "San Toy."

BRIDGE PARTY ROBBERS GET 35 YEARS EACH

Harrington, 21, and McHale, 19, Who Confessed, Are Sentenced, and Crowley, 19, Implicated by Them, Is Held in Chicago.

Sentences of 35 years' imprisonment were imposed yesterday by Circuit Judge Wurdeman at Clayton upon Frank T. Harrington, 21, of 6201 Famous avenue, and Michael McHale, 19, 3009 Elm avenue, after they had pleaded guilty to participation in the bold holdup and robbery of a bridge party of women in the home of Probate Judge Samuel D. Hodgdon, 228 Sylvester avenue, Webster Groves, on the afternoon of April 11.

The Webster Groves police will go to Chicago to bring back [illegible] Crowley, 19, named by Harrington and McHale as the third robber, and who was arrested Friday night in company with his 16-year-old bride, who was Ruth Nickens, an usher at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater and a daughter of James Nickens, a carpenter, of [illegible] North Seventeenth street.

Harrington was arrested by the Webster police in a chase following the robbery, and McHale was arrested several hours later. Both made written confessions that Crowley was the third robber. No trace of him was found, however, until Friday afternoon, when Truman Nickens went to police headquarters to tell of the elopement Wednesday of his sister. He gave Chief of Detectives Hoagland the Chicago address which Ruth had sent to her parents, and a wire to the Chicago police caused the arrest.

The girl's parents said steps would be taken to annul the marriage. Ruth told the Chicago police that she had believed her husband to be a stock broker. "Pray for me to be happy and good," she wrote to her mother Thursday. "He is kind to me and we are very happy. I pray every night." Her mother explained that Ruth had been a regular attendant of the Tyler [illegible] Sunday School.

Harrington and McHale said Crowley was the youth who introduced himself at the Hodgdon residence as the gas man, and then forced his way in with a revolver and kept watch over the women on the first floor while his companions searched the second floor. Harrington said also that he and Crowley were two of the three robbers who on March 27 robbed the home of Louis [illegible], [illegible] Pershing avenue, of jewelry valued at $[illegible] after locking Mrs. [illegible], a maid and a laundress in a closet.

Heads Anti-Tuberculosis Society.

WEBB CITY, Mo.—Dr. [illegible] Hazelwood will assume duties as superintendent of the Jasper County Anti-Tubercular Society Hospital next June 1, Mrs. C. C. Cummings, secretary of the board, announced here recently. Dr. Hazelwood is a tubercular expert.

TWO IN STOLEN COUPE HELD

Two men were arrested by University City police Friday night when they were found in a car stolen April 22 from Dennis Dunn, of 6202 Westminster place. The car, a mud covered coupe, was stopped at Ferguson and Bartmer avenues. The men, who said they were Michael Foley, 20, of 4463 Delmar boulevard, and Edward Quillivan, 22, of 1344 North King's highway, were turned over to the St. Louis police.

Quillivan told the police that he owned the car, but it was established that it had been stolen.

EDITOR TELLS OF REJECTING STATE PRINTING PROPOSAL

Owner of Pike County Paper Says He Was Approached by Politician, Who Offered to Get Contract for Him.

SAYS PROPOSITION DIDN'T LOOK RIGHT

Secretary of State Says It Was Attempt to Peddle Influence With Him Without His Knowledge.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 29.—How James W. Gill, secretary of the Republican County Committee of Montgomery County, a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1920 and for many years the Republican boss of several counties in the Ninth Congressional District, attempted to sell a contract for the legal publication of the constitutional amendment ballot, has been related by Bonham E. Freeman, editor of the Bowling Green Times, and partly confirmed by Gill.

The letting of such contracts is solely within the discretion of Secretary of State Becker, who today repudiated Gill, and who, Gill said, had no knowledge of the proposal he made to Freeman.

Early in March, Freeman said, Gill approached him with a proposition to enter into a contract, by which Gill would agree to obtain for Freeman the publication in Pike County, and Freeman would divide with Gill the amount he received from the State, estimated at approximately $3000.

Details of Proposal.

"I told Gill," Freeman said, "that the proposition did not look right, that it had earmarks of a penitentiary offense, but Gill said he could obtain the contract for me, and that he would not be spending his money traveling around Missouri conferring with rural editors on the matter unless he knew what he could do."

Freeman said Gill had typewritten copies of the contract he wished Freeman to sign, and that Gill left one copy with him, saying he would return a few days later to obtain Freeman's answer.

Freeman immediately wrote to Gov. Hyde, relating his conversation with Gill, and two days later received letters from Hyde and Becker, Hyde saying Becker had informed him that Gill was acting without his knowledge and on his own responsibility, and Becker saying about what Hyde quoted him as having said.

Gill, talking by telephone from his home in Montgomery, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had discussed the constitutional amendment matter with Freeman, and that if Freeman had entered into the agreement with him, he would have tried to obtain the printing for him.

Gill's Version of Incident.

"But I would not have gone to Becker for it," Gill said. "There are other ways than the direct line to do things. I never have talked to Backer about the constitutional amendments, had no understanding of any character with him, and he did not know of my talk with Freeman until the Governor showed him Freeman's letter.

"Anyway, my talk with Freeman was more 'kidding' than anything else. Of course, I don't know whether I could have obtained the printing, but I think I could. I did not talk to any other country editors about the printing."

Becker said today that he had written to Freeman following Freeman's letter to the Governor, and that he had heard nothing more about the matter.

Statement by Becker.

"I told Freeman that neither Gill nor anybody else had any authority to represent me in any matter, printing constitutional amendments or anything else, and that when the time came for letting the printing, I would let it in the regular way," Becker said.

"I of course am not to be held responsible for attempts made to sell supposed influence with me. Anybody who is gullible enough to accept the statement of anybody that he can control my conduct will unquestionably find that he was mistaken.

"One of the surest ways for a newspaper publisher not to get the printing is to agree with any person to split the money he would get for it."

Gov. Hyde said he had no knowledge of the matter, except that he had received a letter from Freeman, had informed Becker about it and had replied to Freeman's letter.

NATIONAL HOSPITAL DAY TO BE OBSERVED HERE ON MAY 12

National Hospital day, May 12, will be observed by all the hospitals of St. Louis and Missouri. They will keep "open house," at specified hours of the day, afternoon or evening, and the staffs will acquaint visitors with their work, endeavoring to show the effort made to prevent as well as cure disease.

This will be the second annual observance of the day, and it is expected that 500,000 persons will visit 4000 hospitals in the United States then. Many of the hospitals will have special exhibitions.

Dr. Louis H. Burlingham, superintendent of Barnes Hospital and president of the Missouri Hospital Association, is State chairman for National Hospital day, and Dr. B. A V[illegible]s, superintendent of the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium, is city chairman.

Thoughts on State of World by Chauncey M. Depew of the world and an increasing burden of taxation to already overtaxed nationalities, was done away with. It was the finest achievement in modern times of a parliament of the Powers.

Hay on International Treaties.

John Hay, when Secretary of State, said to me one day when some of the treaties which he had prepared with great care had been defeated in the Senate, "There never will be another treaty made between the United States and any foreign Power because under our Constitution it takes two-thirds of the Senators to ratify a treaty. A treaty is the result of much labor, care and thought by the experts of the State Department, who are trained international diplomats. It is impossible for a body of 96 men, whose time and mind are occupied with domestic matters of the highest importance and the greatest political significance, to grasp all that there is in a treaty and all that has induced the President, the Secretary of State and the Cabinet to commend it." The prophecy of the brilliant Secretary of State has not been fully verified, but in the recent debate over the four-Power treaty which came out of the conference, it has found much justification.

The Four-Power Treaty.

Probably the greatest menace to peace on and about the Pacific Ocean was the treaty of alliance between Great Britain and Japan. It aroused suspicion and irritation in the United States and it spurred Japan to unusual commitments in naval expansion because of the backing of the British Empire, and that so reacted upon the United States as to induce an ardent pacificist administration and a pacificist Secretary of the Navy like Secretary Daniels to propose a scheme of naval construction which ultimately would have made the United States the strongest naval Power in the world, and with an expenditure for naval expansion beyond the total cost of government before the great war. The four-Power treaty did away with the British-Japanese alliance. It bound the great Powers on the Pacific Ocean to peace and friendship for the next ten years. It stopped the necessity for naval construction, and on the part of the United States, for vast fortifications upon the Philippines and our eastern islands. It bound the four Powers, if any dispute arose, before any action, to meet in conference in an effort at settlement. There was in the treaty no alliance, no commitments as to force, just the conscience and the honor of the great Powers to maintain peace and act justly with one another.

United States Cannot Isolate Itself.

It is said that when Columbus landed on our shores, the Indian chief turned around to the members of his tribe and said, "Ladies and gentlemen, we can no longer hide. We have been discovered." The United States cannot continue in a position of isolation from the world. Its entrance into the world war, its contribution to the victory for liberty and civilization, its efforts at the Versailles conference, its triumphs at the conference at Washington, have placed us in a position from which there is no retracing. We not only have our responsibility to civilization, but we have also, as the greatest of productive countries, with a large surplus of agriculture and manufactures requiring a market, the necessity of aiding in the adjustment of international difficulties and the rehabilitation of the industrial forces of the world.

In this connection arise some very interesting questions. European Governments owe to the United States, with principal and interest, about eleven billions of dollars.

I recently had an opportunity while in Washington to discuss these questions with Senators and Congressmen. I found that this European debt is regarded by many as a real asset upon which to base important enterprises and large expenditures. In a way it is a national menace, because propagandists and promoters say: "It is not necessary to impose any further taxes or economies for our scheme. The money is in the debts due us from Europe, and will cost the American people nothing."

This belief was so strong among the advocates of the soldiers' bonus that the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon, incurred grave danger of having articles of impeachment presented against him because of his statement that the debt could not be utilized at present for any purpose. The advocates of an unprecedentedly large subsidy for the American merchant marine were reaching out to utilize the European debt and also placed bombs under the chair of the Secretary of the Treasury. Promoters of vast schemes for water power, for swamp drainage, for irrigation, road building and forestry are looking at it with eager and avaricious eyes.

Financial Burden of Europe.

Great Britain by a tremendous effort has balanced her budget, and financiers estimate that if the economic adjustment of the world is favorable she can within 25 years begin to pay on the principal. France is making heroic and wonderful efforts to balance her budget. Her national debt before the war was the largest in the world, over $6,000,000,000. It is now over $60,000,000,000 with one-seventh of her territory and productive power destroyed. France loaned $4,000,000,000 to Russia and $3,000,000,000 to her other allies. Germany owes her in reparation debt $20,000,000,000 for property destroyed. French financiers say: "As soon as these sums are collected by us we can pay the United States, but not before." The debts to us from some of the other nations are, of course, hopeless. France also is burdened with the maintenance of an enormous army and navy, because of the failure of the allies to carry out the promises made in the Versailles conference to protect her from further invasions of old enemies or new ones.

Review of Europe's Debt.

Just at present, the sentiment of the country treats this as an ordinary transaction between a debtor and creditor. The business opinion of the people is that the debt differs from no other obligation and should be paid, principal and interest. It is not popular to doubt this view of the case, but on this platform we are at liberty to speculate and permit the broadest view and entertain every consideration of any situation. Therefore, just for a moment let us review how this debt was accumulated. The war began in July, 1914, and ended in November, 1918. We entered it in April, 1917. The purposes for which the allies were fighting against the aggressions of the German Empire and its allies were the same in 1917 as they were in 1914. Germany was determined to conquer continental Europe, to reduce Great Britain to submission and then to assail the last vestige of representative liberty, the United States. During the early years of the war the allies furnished men, and the United States sold to them vast quantities of munitions and provisions, and millions of allied soldiers were killed and wounded fighting for the liberty of the world. These supplies were furnished by our manufacturers at the prevailing profits of the time, which were very great, and the Government, in the way of income taxes, collected over 70 per cent upon those profits. Now that the adjustments and settlements of the victory for the right are being made the United States is the only one of the allies which is free from peril as to its future economic condition. Undoubtedly, if given time, Great Britain can pay her portion of this debt. With the tremendous burdens, devastated territory and diminished productive power, it does not seem possible that continental nations can ever pay either interest or principal. We legislate and will continue to legislate as to the uses in our domestic affairs to which we can put these vast sums as if they were soon available. Various methods have been suggested by financiers of utilizing this indebtedness for the rehabilitation of European industries, for the opening of European markets and for the stabilization of international exchange. Certainly the constructive genius which has done so much and is doing so much for prosperity and remunerative employment ought to be able to solve this problem.

"A Billion Dollar Country."

The first time appropriations for carrying on our government for a year passed a billion of dollars was during the speakership of Thomas B. Reed. He met the outcry of extravagance by saying, "This is a billion dollar country." That pleased the national pride, and from thinking in millions we began to think in billions. Russia thinks in trillions, and according to Thomas H. Dickinson, 750,000 rubles are worth a dollar. Germany thinks in billions, and it requires a thousand marks to buy an American dollar. The same conditions exist in Austria. If our budget system is to be a success, if taxation is to be reduced, if economic conditions are to be healthy and unemployment is to be followed by prosperity, the dollar must be the basis upon which we build in government and personal affairs.

Perpetual Youth Is in Ourselves.

There are many things which have occurred since our last meeting which are fruitful for thought, consideration and discussion. I am met every day on the street by men and women who have got the idea that I have discovered the secret of perpetual youth, and who anxiously ask what is the secret. In a broad way, it is in ourselves. There is such an infinite amount of human nature in the world, and it is so open and discoverable in its many phases which give pleasure and help longevity, that I am amazed everybody doesn't learn to practice the methods of friendly intercourse.

Shunning Fellow Mortals.

I have several times in coming home from Europe met American families of great wealth who believe that they can acquire for themselves an ancestry equal to the longest genealogy of European aristocracy by shunning their fellow mortals. I have asked them who they have met and what they have seen in their extended travels, to find that they have avoided acquaintances and introductions, that they have lived within their apartments at their hotels and had their private car and compartments on the railroad trains. For all the pleasures of life, they would have done better if they had stayed at home.

Some Traveling Incidents.

I was traveling at one time some years ago to a watering place in Europe, and in my compartment on the train was one other passenger, an elderly lady. I jumped off at one of the stations and from one of the traveling wagons which they have over there, bought a chicken, sandwiches, fruit and mineral water. I allayed the suspicions of the old lady by offering to share with her my provisions. She said to me, "Where are you from?" I said, "From New York." "Oh, well," she said, "my husband is one of the largest manufacturers and most successful in New England. We have a New York partner, and he is one of the best known men in the city. He is at the very top of the social swim. He belongs to the four hundred and that is more important to our business than his talent, which is not great. His name is George Simpson. Of course you have met him." I said, "No." "Well," she said, "what circle do you move in that you haven't met George?" I answered, "Apparently not in his." "Well," she said, "I am alone in this compartment because my family are all second class, not but that they could not afford to be with me, but they want to try the second class cars and the people who ride in them." We arrived at a well-known station. She said, "I get off here." I helped her out with her bags and baggage, and then she said, "You have been awfully kind, won't you tell me your name?" I said, "Chauncey Depew." She said, "Are you the real Chauncey Depew?" I said, "Yes, I don't know of any other," and she said, "Only to think that my family are all second class."

A man stopped me once on the street and said, "Senator, I saw you in church in Geneva 20 years ago. You did not see me, nor did I meet you, nor have I met you since, but I want to shake hands to recall old associations."

A fellow countryman in Naples said to me, "Have you been up to see Vesuvius?" I said, "Yes," and he said, "Well, I was up there with a European friend, and we were looking into the crater. I said to him as we gazed at the boiling mass and smoke and steam, 'That looks like hell,' and he answered, 'What wonderful travelers you Americans are.'"

THOUGHTS ON STATE OF THE WORLD BY CHAUNCEY DEPEW

Volumes could be filled with these suggestions. They may seem very trivial in the narration, but when told with adequate scenery to a wearied family or group of friends in the evening of the day when they occurred, when there is about them every element of freshness and adventure, they are enormously helpful, and if one is alert they occur in his experiences every day.

Lowering of Respect for Constitution.

The Constitution of the United States has accomplished more in its practical workings for the preservation of representative government and the encouragement of liberty in the world than any other document ever written. Of late years it has become a national habit to overload it with measures which are peculiarly legislative, or for the exercise of the police power. In one State they started a movement to put into it a prohibition against evolution and the Darwinian theories. The result of all this is a recognized lowering of respect for the Constitution and obedience to its mandates and enforcement.

The Free State of Ireland.

One of the most significant and most fortunate of the events of our year has been the settlement of the centuries-old controversy by making Ireland a free State on the lines of our neighbor Canada. The Irish, with their remarkable genius for government and irrepressible virility and vitality, will speedily make the Free State of Ireland the most interesting of the self-governing possessions of the British Empire.

Every achievement produces unexpected results. One of the most valuable assets of the American politicians for generations has been the popularity of twisting the tail of the British lion. Skill in this exercise has made Congressmen and Senators, and in one case a Vice President of the United States. We have all tried it to the satisfaction of ourselves, the pleasure of our audiences, and no great discomfort to the lion. Now, with Ireland interested in the development and expansion of the British Empire, heartily in unison and thought in the mission and influence for liberty and civilization of the English-speaking peoples of the world, what is to become of brilliant orators and ambitious politicians whose one speech and popularity have been their skill in twisting the tail of the lion? In my experience of 66 years on the platform revolutionary changes have taken place in American politics, which at different times have put off the platform and retired to private life brilliant performers, who had only one string to their bow, and when that one broke they were lost.

In Christ People Found God.

A philosopher in the second century of the Christian era was anxious to learn if truth was revealed by any of the ancient gods. In his quest he visited all the famous shrines of the old world. The magnificent temples were falling into decay; they had lost worshipers and pilgrims; their priests were neglected and starving; their oracles which had decided the policy of kings and peoples were silent. In the new religion of Christ the people had found God. The individual could pray to and hear from his Creator without any intervention. The dynamite of the independence of the individual and his realization of his immortal soul were undermining old faiths and political systems. In the evolution of time true democracy has come into faith and practice.

Significant Triumphs of Democracy.

Since we met a year ago, true democracy has won significant triumphs. Conferences have taken place of controversies in dealings between nations. The democratic spirit which animates English-speaking peoples has given self-government to Ireland, inaugurated it in Egypt, and its work has begun in Bagdad, the home of Haroun Al-Raschid and the ancient Garden of Eden. Beyond all the experiences of the past, we thank God and take courage that now, today and tomorrow, are the times to live in and enjoy life.

WASHINGTON IDEA OF TALKING TO PRESS FOLLOWED AT GENOA

reception given for the press by the Japanese delegates soon after their arrival in Washington. "Our latchstring you will find always out," said the Ambassador in his precise English. "You have only to ask—and you may receive."

The press did not receive all that it asked for during the conference, but it received a great deal—sufficient, at any rate, to lift from this conference the sinister shadow of secrecy that hovered over the making of the Versailles treaty. From the way that Genoa has taken hold of the Washington idea, it looks as if the world will not go back to the old methods.

BRACH VACUUM GAPS

For Radio Protection

BECAUSE: They are a sensitive and positive safeguard against lightning and static.

BECAUSE: They operate automatically and cannot be forgotten.

BECAUSE: They cannot become grounded and cause loss of voice current or give trouble.

BECAUSE: They are approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, Electrical No. 3962.

BECAUSE: They are indorsed by Fire Insurance Companies and Municipal Departments.

BECAUSE: Operating parts are in sealed chamber—no moisture, dirt or bugs can enter.

This means no weak signals
This means no lost signals

BECAUSE: This Vacuum type drains static and induction before they build up to arcing voltages. Lightning causes induction on aerials in a wide area. No airgap type can protect against this.

HAWAII TELEPHONE COMPANY

L. S. BRACH MFG. CO., Newark, N. J.: Hilo, T. H., July 21, 1919.

Gentlemen: Regarding the use of your arresters, I would say we use them principally for protection of Repeating and Phantom coils, which are mounted in boxes on poles a number of miles from the telephone offices, and that we have never had to go near any of these coils that were protected with your arresters, whereas we formerly had to clean the carbon blocks and occasionally replace a burned-out coil when the old-style carbon arresters were used after each thunderstorm.

We have also installed your arresters on a No. 10 copper metallic trunk line, sixty-six miles long, going over Kilauea Volcano. These were installed at an altitude of 4000 feet to drain static from this line, in which they have been successful.

Very truly yours,

ORGANIZATION OF MISSOURI COURT SYSTEM OUTLINED

power of appointment from the Governor and in the case of clerks, from the courts, and to abolish the provision under which all of such officials held office during good behavior. The Supreme Court Judges were to be elected by a joint session of the General Assembly, while the Circuit Judges and the clerks of the county and circuit courts were to be elected by the voters of the circuits and counties, respectively. All of these officials were to hold office for terms of six years. The offices of existing Judges and clerks were to be vacated and provision was made for the election of their successors. When these amendments were submitted to the Eighth General Assembly all were rejected except those relating to clerks of the County and Circuit Courts and the vacation of offices of existing Circuit Judges. It was contended by a Circuit Judge that inasmuch as the section for vacating the offices of Circuit Judges had been proposed in connection with the one providing a different term for Circuit Judges, the failure of the Legislature to ratify the latter made the former of no effect, notwithstanding its ratification. The Supreme Court, however, held the section providing for the vacation of the offices of Circuit Judges was an independent amendment and could stand alone.

Compromise on Tenure.

The failure of the attempt to introduce the elective principle and the limited term in the cases of judicial officers was partly responsible for the movement for constitutional revision which led to the Constitutional Convention of 1845. In the Constitution submitted by the convention a compromise was made on the question of tenure and term of the Judges. Supreme Court Judges continued to be appointed by the Governor, while Circuit Judges were to be elected by the voters of the circuit. The terms of office were 12 and six years respectively. The rejection of the draft Constitution in August, 1845, was followed by numerous proposals for the amendment of the Constitution. As it required the joint action of two Legislatures to ratify, the first actual changes in the Constitution were not made until the session of 1848-49. By an amendment adopted at that session the appointive principle was retained for circuit as well as supreme Judges but the terms were changed to eight and 12 years respectively. At the same session, however, an amendment was proposed which, being ratified by the Legislature at its session in 1850-51, established the elective principle for both sets of Judges and a uniform term of six years.

Division Into Districts.

The Constitution of 1865 continued the judicial organization outlined above but introduced another grade of courts between the Supreme Court and the Circuit Courts. Provision was made for dividing the State outside of the county of St. Louis into not less than five districts, each to embrace at least three judicial circuits. The Circuit Judges in each district were to constitute a district court which was to be an intermediate court of appeal between the Circuit and Supreme Court. The Judges of the Circuit Court of St. Louis County sitting as a court in banc constituted a similar court. In 1870, however, the Legislature proposed an amendment abolishing the district courts and this was ratified by the voters. Two years later an amendment was ratified which increased the number of Supreme Court Judges to five and their terms to 10 years.

There was no important change made in the organization of the Supreme or Circuit Courts by the Constitution of 1875, but the congested docket of the former led to the creation of the St. Louis Court of Appeals which it was hoped would dispose finally of many cases involving small amounts and thereby relieve the Supreme Court. This court was limited in its jurisdiction to the City of St. Louis and the counties of St. Louis, St. Charles, Lincoln and Warren and it was to consist of three Judges elected for terms of 12 years by the voters of the city and counties named. The provisions of previous Constitutions which required the Supreme Court to be held in different districts of the State were now eliminated and all of its terms were to be held at the State Capitol. A section of the Constitution of 1865, which required the Supreme Court to give its opinion upon questions of constitutional law, when required by the Governor or either house of the Legislature, was also omitted at this time.

Outgrowth of Congested Docket.

The first amendment to the Constitution of 1875 which was ratified by the voters was the outgrowth of the congested docket of the Supreme Court. As previously indicated this condition existed in 1875 and the constitutional convention sought to correct it by creating the St. Louis Court of Appeals. In 1881 an amendment increasing the number of Judges of the Supreme Court to six and dividing the court into two divisions was rejected by the voters. Two years later the voters approved an amendment establishing the Kansas City Court of Appeals, dividing the counties of the State between this court and the St. Louis Court of Appeals and authorizing the Legislature to establish a third Court of Appeals and to change the districts and the pecuniary limit of jurisdiction of such courts. The Court of Appeals, however, did not relieve the Supreme Court of its burden, and in 1890 an amendment was ratified which increased the number of Supreme Court Judges to seven and established a civil and criminal division of such court.

The congestion of cases still continued. In 1896 the Legislature sought to correct some of the difficulties growing out of questions of jurisdiction, but the amendment submitted was rejected by the voters. The same was true of an amendment proposed in 1907 increasing the number of Judges of the Supreme Court to nine and creating a third division. The Legislature in 1919 proposed a similar amendment and also one increasing the number of Judges of the St. Louis Court of Appeals to six, but both of these failed to receive the approval of the voters at the election in 1920. Attempts to expedite the procedure in the lower courts are to be seen in amendments adopted in 1900 authorizing in civil cases a two-thirds jury verdict in courts not of record and a three-fourths verdict in courts of record, making indictment and information concurrent remedies and providing that a grand jury shall be convened only by order of a Judge.

While the Legislature has not been able to secure the ratification of any amendments affecting the organization or jurisdiction of the Appellate Courts since 1890, it has freely exercised its statutory powers in endeavoring to relieve the congestion in these courts. In 1882, following the rejection in 1881 of the amendment increasing the number of Judges of the Supreme Court, the General Assembly provided for a commission of three members to be appointed by the Supreme Court to assist it in deciding cases. The adoption in 1884 of the amendment providing for the Kansas City Court of Appeals brought temporary relief and the commission was discontinued. The increase in the number of cases, many of them due to questions of jurisdiction arising from the creation of the Courts of Appeal, led to new congestions and in 1911 a new commission of four members was authorized. In 1919, this number was increased to six and at present three of the commissioners are assigned to each of the two divisions of the Supreme Court.

The Legislature also sought to relieve the Supreme Court by creating a third Court of Appeals at Springfield and by increasing the minimum amount in dispute which enabled a litigant to appeal a case from one of the Courts of Appeal to the Supreme Court. This amount originally fixed at $2500 has been increased from time to time until in 1909, when the Springfield Court of Appeals was established, it was fixed at $7500, where it now stands. As indicated above, this brought only temporary relief to the Supreme Court. Congestion in the St. Louis Court of Appeals, moreover, led in 1919 to the creation of a commission of three members to assist that body in disposing of its cases.

25 to 50% Off

on Discontinued Patterns of

Reed and Fiber Furniture

AT the very beginning of the season for Summer Furniture we are offering remarkable reductions of from 25 to 50% on discontinued patterns of Reed and Fiber Upholstered Furniture.

There are about 200 pieces, all new and fresh, and in every respect up to our Quality Standard. The designs and finishes of the pieces are identical with those we show in our regular stock, but the tapestries with which they are covered are all discontinued patterns. For this reason we are closing them out at these low prices.

The pieces include Chairs, Rockers, Davenports, Chaise Longues, Day Beds and so on. Among the finishes represented we mention—henna, brown, frosted brown, old ivory, gray, and parchment black decorated.

We advise early selection, as the supply is necessarily limited.

Two Examples of the Values

3-Piece Reed Suite

Here is a three-piece Set, made of all reed and finished in a rich brown. Seats and backs are upholstered in figured tapestry. Has loose cushion seats. Set consists of large davenport, large armchair and large arm rocker. An exceptional value at $75.00

3-Piece Fiber Suite

This Set consists of a two-seated settee, armchair and arm rocker. Made of genuine fiber. Seats and backs are upholstered in figured tapestry. Has loose spring-filled cushion seats. Set is finished in brown enamel. A value decidedly out of the ordinary at $57.00

This is the famous officially approved Boy Scout Knife—outdoor men will appreciate it as much as the Boy Scouts.

Introducing the HAMMER BRAND of POCKET KNIVES, which we have taken the Western Retail Sales Agency for. As nearly everyone has had that uncertain feeling, "Will it stay sharp?" we wish to state that before taking on this very complete line we made a very careful investigation of these Knives, and in comparison with others—we confidently assert that in our opinion there is no line of Cutlery, either domestic or foreign, which is superior to the HAMMER BRAND GOODS, and very few its equal, therefore we offer the guarantee of the Judge & Dolph Stores to that of the manufacturers. If any HAMMER KNIFE is not fully satisfactory, bring it back and we will refund your purchase price. PLEASE remember that this line has been sold as an Hammer Brand for over 75 years, though not well known in the Middle West. The HAMMER CO. are makers of the only official BOY SCOUT KNIFE (two sizes).

TRIAL OF SUIT AGAINST BOARD OF EDUCATION ORDERED

Supreme Court Rules Circuit Court Must Pass on Legality of Rule as to Dismissal of Teachers.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 29.—The St. Louis Circuit Court will have to pass on the legality of a rule of the Board of Education there for the arbitrary dismissal of teachers by the board, under an opinion handed down today by the Supreme Court of Missouri. Review of the rule had been sought by a group of 10 citizens, headed by Luke Brown, but at the instance of the Grade Teachers' Association.

Miss Rosa Hesse, who was a teacher at the Sigel School and president of the Grade Teachers' Association, it will be recalled, was discharged as a teacher under authority of this rule, on the allegation that she had criticised the official conduct of Christopher W. Johnson, a member of the board, and opposed his re-election. Miss Hesse has since become head of the women's department of a St. Louis bank.

Section of Statutes Cited.

The opinion, which was written by Judge Higbee, recalled section 11,461 of the revised statutes, which was enacted in 1897, and which apparently was directed towards the abrogation of this rule; it took from the members of the Board of Education all power of appointment and dismissal, except upon recommendation of the superintendent.

The rule in question, section 1 of rule 47, provides for the appointment of teachers for terms of one year, and states: "The board distinctly reserves the right of discontinuing the services of any and all teachers at any time, should it deem such action expedient. * * * Every teacher shall be required to sign a contract accepting appointment subject to the conditions of this rule."

An excerpt from the Supreme Court opinion follows:

"Our conclusion is that the enforcement of the rule in question is official misconduct in office in the management and conduct of the public schools, and that the court has jurisdiction in the premises. The learned trial Court disposed of the case solely on the proposition that the relators (Brown and others) had no right to maintain the action. The statute gives the relators a standing in court, but for which they could not maintain this action. It expressly provides that jurisdiction conferred may be exercised as in ordinary cases upon petition at the instruction of any 10 citizens or householders."

Origin of the Case.

The Board of Education last summer ignored a request of the Grade Teachers' Association for the abrogation of this rule. The Circuit Court of St. Louis was asked on Aug. 15 last to issue a writ of certiorari to review the rule. A temporary writ was granted, but when a hearing was called this was quashed on motion of the Board of Education. The appeal to the Supreme Court followed.

The opinion of the Supreme Court reversed and remanded the action of the lower court. It was handed down by the court en banc, four Judges concurring with Judge Higbee, Judge David E. Blair dissenting and Judge Elder not sitting. Samuel H. West, St. Louis attorney, has represented the Grade Teachers' Association in the proceedings.

ALDERMEN PASS BUDGET BILL FOR $21,563,379.28

Annual Standardization Measure Fixing Pay of City Employes Passed, Carpenters Cut to $1.10 an Hour.

The Board of Aldermen yesterday passed the budget bill, appropriating $21,563,379.28 for municipal expenses for the fiscal year which began April 13.

The annual standardization bill, fixing the salaries of city employes, also was passed. There were not many changes in wage scales, but the wage of carpenters was cut to $1.10, in accordance with the "prevailing wage," as established by the decision of an arbitrator Friday. It was provided also that carpenters working in city institutions should receive $160 a month and painters $150.

Because of the ending of the fiscal year the 7000 city employes did not receive their semi-monthly pay on April 15, but will get a month's pay this week, now that the budget bill is passed.

The bill for repeal of the $10 annual license for farmers using the curb markets, which was introduced by President Aloe, was passed. The license had caused much protest, and while about 200 licenses were paid last year, only 18 had been paid so far this year. The markets will open soon.

The board adjourned until May 12, when the bill for fixing the new tax rate will be introduced, probably making the rate $2.55 or $2.53 on the $100 valuation.

Easy And Economical To Take

Men and women in every walk of life who have been thin and run-down for years and despaired of ever regaining perfect health and building up a strong, well-developed body are now finding in MASTIN'S Yeast Vitamon Tablets exactly the help they had longed for, but never expected to find to put on pounds of firm flesh and increase energy.

"At the time of testing VITAMON Tablets I was 49 pounds under my weight. I always felt weak—no "pep" and tired always upon getting from my bed," says a Chicago man, Mr. George H. Perry, one of the millions of users of MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets. "Now I'm at my usual weight, lots of "pep" and it's a fine and great pleasure to start a good day's work."

MASTIN'S Yeast Vitamon Tablets contain not only the purest form of concentrated yeast vitamines but all three vitamines, scientifically combined with specially prepared organic iron for your blood, the necessary lime salts and other true vitalizing brain, bone and tissue-building elements of Nature which your body should have to produce real "stay-there" weight, strength and energy. Here is a simple test that will show you exactly what MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets will do for you. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Next take MASTIN'S Vitamon—two tablets with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself again each week and continue taking MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets regularly until you are satisfied with your gain in weight, "pep" and improved appearance.

Your Weight Indicates Your Strength—Are You Losing Or Gaining?

This illustration clearly indicates what a remarkable improvement additional pounds of good firm flesh may make in your health and appearance. If you want to get more "pep" and energy and build up a strong, well-developed body that makes you feel and look 100% better, start taking MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets today and watch the truly amazing results.

WHAT PROMINENT NEW YORK DOCTORS SAY ABOUT MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS

"I have found Mastin's Vitamon Tablets to be especially valuable in putting on additional pounds of solid flesh and increasing energy."

"Containing as they do not only the three nourishing vitamines but also organic iron to make red blood, lime salts for bone and other vitalizing elements MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets supply just what the body should have to produce weight, strength and keep you well."

WARNING! No matter what anyone says, if you actually want to make sure of the quick, certain results such as countless numbers have obtained you must insist upon the name MASTIN'S to get the Real VITAMON Tablets. You can get MASTIN'S at all good druggists, such as all Enderle Drug Stores, Johnson Bros., Judge & Dolph, E. A. Medler, Pauley's, Wolff-Wilson, Huger's.

WAGNER ELECTRIC CO. IS REORGANIZED

Company to Issue $2,000,000 in Preferred Stock to Help Wipe Out Debt.

The Wagner Electric Co. has been reorganized under the laws of Delaware and preferred stock aggregating $2,000,000 will be sold, beginning at once, according to word received in St. Louis yesterday from New York.

The reorganization, bankers say, means the company will be able to proceed on a firmer basis, and that its present indebtedness of $3,750,000 to the banks will have been reduced to $1,750,000, which it is expected will be paid off in a short time.

The reorganization was made at the suggestion of New York banks to which the company is indebted. A meeting of officials of the company, representative of St. Louis creditor banks and New York bankers was held in New York yesterday, at which the plans for the stock issue were completed. Under these plans 60,000 shares of no-par common stock will be issued, to be used as a sort of bonus to give those who buy the preferred stock. Present stockholders of the firm will be given preference as purchasers of preferred stock.

The original indebtedness of the firm to the banks was $6,000,000. This was on Jan. 16, 1921. The banks since then have granted renewals on the firm's notes every four months since, and the firm has paid off as much of the debt as it could during each of those periods. The creditor banks are the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, the Bank of Manhattan Co. and the National City Bank, all of New York, and the following St. Louis banks: First National Bank, National Bank of Commerce, Mercantile Trust Co. and the Merchants-Laclede Bank. The debt is about evenly divided between the New York and St. Louis banks.

E. B. Pryor, chairman of the Bankers' Committee, yesterday said the firm is now doing a good business and that it is showing a fair margain of profit. The business gradually is picking up, he said. The financial difficulties of the firm were brought about during the boom period, when orders aggregating thousands of dollars were on hand. The firm borrowed the money to buy materials. The drop in the market then came, practically all of the orders were canceled and the firm was unable to meet its obligations.

WORLD FLAG SENT TO GENOA

Chicagoan Offers Symbolic Banner to Economic Conference.

CHICAGO, April 29.—A world flag, with a red cross and white moon and star on a purple field, was forwarded today to the Genoa economic conference with a suggestion for its adoption, by Harry S. Mecartney of Chicago. A similar flag was sent to the disarmament conference in Washington recently. The sentiment of this "flag of all nations," was expressed in an attached card: "The cross—the most universally accepted emblem of sacrifice for others—resting across the broad highway of the future: the star of hope and life's fruition; and the waxing moon, symbolic of an ever-growing and ever-buoyant cause."

An Event of the Season!

The attention of musical St. Louis is invited to the fact that, starting tomorrow, Conroy's will place on sale two hundred and thirty-five high-grade Player-Pianos which were intended for export.

Owing, however, to the unsettled European conditions, this big export corporation was unable to fulfill its contracts, with the result that Conroy's offer these magnificent, brand-new Player-Pianos at a figure which is not only lower than pre-war prices but for a lower sum than existed years before.

These instruments need no introduction. There are more of these Player-Pianos in use than any other make, and Conroy's have featured this particular Player for years.

Full details will appear in the Post-Dispatch tomorrow, May 1, 1922.

PART FOUR. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, APRIL 30, 1922. PAGES 1—12B

Voice of the Union Labor and the Radical Press

THE Post-Dispatch prints herewith extracts from editorials or articles in organs of labor unions and Communist and Socialist Parties showing the trend of thought on public questions among those bodies of citizens and indicating causes of social unrest.

"BRAINS" IN MANAGEMENT.

(From the Worker, Communist Organ.)

The Pennsylvania Railroad had a bad year in 1921, but it managed to accumulate $24,307,669 in excess of all expenses. This is equivalent to 4.87 per cent on stock issues totaling $499,173,400. The interesting fact in connection with this statement of what a "bad" year means to the coupon clipper is, that while operating revenue decreased 11 per cent, operating expense decreased 25 per cent. In other words, wages—the big item in operating expenses—were reduced more than twice as much as revenue loss.

This means that, in addition to making up for losses due to bad business conditions, the happy employes of the P. R. R. were called upon to contribute enough more to make possible interest payments to the investors. They seem to have demonstrated their loyalty to their employer in a very substantial manner and everyone is well pleased with the possible exception, of course, of some disgruntled group which may believe that brainy management consists solely of playing upon the fears of the workers and getting them to accept wage reductions under the pretense of protecting the interests of the great public.

It seems to us that, if backed by the full power of the press and Government, and moron could do as much.

MORE FLAPDOODLE.

(From the Seattle Union Record, Labor.)

Giving utterance to the usual medley of flapdoodle and balderdash, that has come to be recognized as a distinguishing characteristic of the Department of Justice, Attorney-General Daugherty has concluded his visit to Indianapolis, where he went for the purpose of looking into the coal strike: We qoute:

The operators and the miners seem inclined to forget my client, the American people.

Coal is not like other kinds of property. It is God-given to the nation. It is private property, but not the kind of private property to use or abuse as the owners please.

I do not object so much to the cost-plus system as to the cost-pluck system. The plucking is what makes the trouble.

If the American people are Mr. Daugherty's clients, why does he still permit the threat of court action on the part of his department to be used by the coal operators as an excuse for preventing a conference which might lead to a settlement of the controversy?

As to the statement that coal is God-given to the nation, where does the Attorney-General get that stuff? If it is God-given to the nation, who gave the present holders title? Did God turn the coal mines over to the operators?

EMPLOYERS GREATER THAN COURTS.

(From Industrial Solidarity, I. W. W. Organ.)

In these days when democracy is so much praised and monarchy is condemned, how instructive it is to consider the power of the boss over his wage slave. When a man is sold in the labor market he continues for a certain time in the service of his buyer. When the buyer no longer needs him he decides to fire him, or rather, dispense with his services—that sounds better. This decision may be based upon any reason or no reason at all. However, it is final. The wage slave has no redress.

There is not a tral court in America or, in fact, probably in any country on earth whose decision cannot be reviewed by a higher court. * * * A court must have a basis of fact for its judgment, otherwise it cannot stand the legal test. The boss can pronounce his decision to get rid of the wage slave without any other basis than his own will. He can deprive a father of his job and place his children in want because the father did not say "good morning" to him. He can discharge a girl because she had her hair bobbed and she cannot have any redress. * * * Was there ever an absolute monarch who has more power than this? We hope not.

The I. W. W. is not fighting against courts and governments. It is fighting to end the power of the absolute monarch of industry from whose decision there is no appeal, and substitute therefor rule by the workers.

THE RIGHT TO WORK.

(I. M. Gage in the Oklahoma Leader, Farmer-Labor.)

Unemployment is the basis and foundation of our present industrial despotism. Get a man out of a job and you have got him. Just as long as the employer can close the mine and factory and throw millions into the street at his own sweet will, just so long he dictates the situation regardless of anything you can do. The greatest right labor can have is not the right to strike, but the right to work; and until labor has the right to work, the workers are actually wage slaves and must fight each other for what few jobs there are.

There is no more moral right or justice in depriving people of the opportunity to work than there is in depriving them of their wages after they have worked. Some day it will be considered just as crazy and wrong. But, as things are now, our factories may close, mines shut down, while people suffer; our captains of industry may fail or refuse to keep things running; and still we are asked to believe in their greatness and wisdom. Where does it appear?

To force the workers out of factories and mines, to force the farmers off the land and make both suppliant and beggars for a chance to work is the great game of the private owners. If there were 10 years of full and free employment, they would be kicked out of control, and they know it.

No way to give workers the right to work and live has ever been suggested except public ownership of large industries and the taxing of large land holdings to a point where the lang hog must let go.

PRESIDENT HARDING'S LAUNCH.

(Victor L. Berger, in Milwaukee Leader, Socialist.)

A week ago 500 of the lowest paid clerks were dismissed from one Government department. On the same day there was completed a new launch for President Harding's private yacht, the Mayflower. True to the principles of the Harding businesslike and economical administration, this launch is a "small boat," only 48 feet long. However, it cost $1000 a foot, $48,000 in all.

The funnel of the President's little launch is of silver and all exposed metal parts are also of silver. Silver was used very freely, doubtless to remind the President of William Jennings Bryan and his futile and assinine campaigns against Wall street and the Republican party.

The boat, outfitted in purple and gold inside, will carry the President to and from his yacht, as he plans to reduce the Government payroll and lower the big income taxes. One correspondent suggests "that in it the President will receive George Harvey, his Ambassador to the Royal English Court, who recently appeared in silk stockings and knickerbockers at Princess Mary's wedding."

Talk about Main street of Marion, O., ruling the United States of America. Why not? Main street represents the small American town. It is the very essence of Main street to put on airs, by gosh! And, after all, what is Pennsylvania avenue other than the somewhat shop-worn and shabby

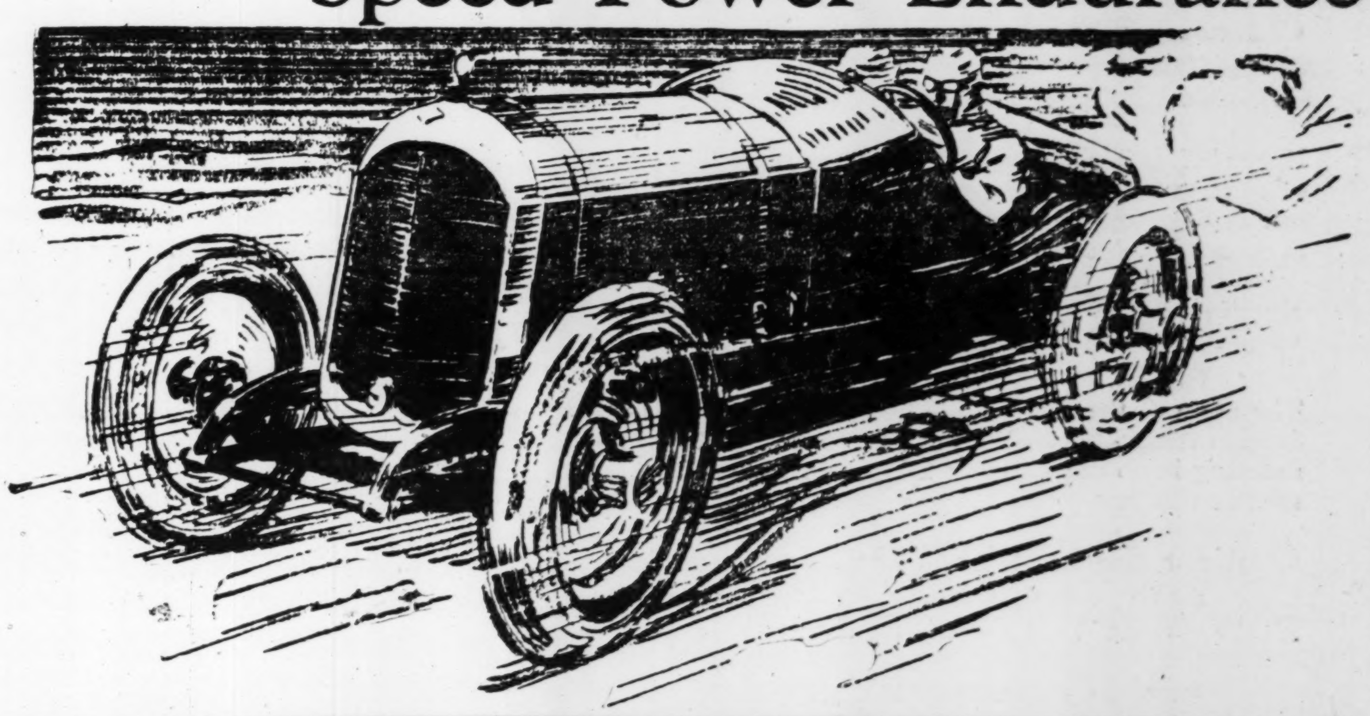
New Proof of Paige
Speed Power Endurance



Paige 6-66 Daytona Model Travels 10 Miles at Rate of 93.2 Miles Per Hour

The Paige 6-66 Daytona Model is the holder of all world's stock chassis speedway records from 5 to 100 miles. But now this record-breaking car has further demonstrated its ability.

Piloted by Earl Cooper, the Paige, in an unofficial exhibition run against time, covered 10 miles in 6 minutes and 26 1/5 seconds at the San Carlos, California track, on Sunday April 16th. It thus travelled at the terrific speed of 93 1/5 miles per hour for the ten miles.

The official record for the distance, held by this same stock chassis is 6:31:48, or 91 9/10 miles per hour. It was made at the Uniontown Speedway a year ago.

Thus, once again, the Paige in the most spectacular manner has demonstrated its power and endurance.

The Paige 6-66 is the Master of the Highway.

Missing Sergeant Not of Q. M. D.

It was stated in an account of the discovery of a shortage in funds at Jefferson Barracks printed in the Post-Dispatch Thursday, that a Sergeant who disappeared at about the time the shortage was discovered, and who had handled accounts involved, was connected with the Quartermaster Department. He was deputized to receive funds for the Finance Department, officers state.

VIEWS OF THE RADICAL AND THE LABOR PRESS

main street of Washington, D. C.?

It so happened that in the very week when our economical President discharged the 500 clerks and for the first time stepped into his silver-plated yacht, the newspaper headlines announced "Economy forces King of England to sell his yacht." But what is the King of England when compared with our American Trust-Kaiser's messenger in the White House? Nothing! Nix! Nix!

THE SOVEREIGNTY OF COAL

(From the New York Call, Socialist.)

An order has been issued by the mine owners at Charleston, W. Va., restraining the United Mine Workers from organizing the miners in the nonunion fields of Eastern Kentucky and in West Virginia. The mine owners order the union officials to disband the tent colonies at Mingo where evicted miners and their families have been living for many months. The mine owners order the miners to refrain from holding any meetings of miners at Sophia Rhodeland and other points. Of course this order of the mine owners would count for nothing were it not that they issued the order through a Federal Judge who gave the order all the force of judicial power. * * *

Just what will become of the miners and their families housed in tents in the hills the mine owners do not care. They may move into some other woods or they may die of starvation so long as the sovereignty of the mine owners is vindicated through judicial power.

The miners are also required not to hold any meetings. That is a prerogative that belongs exclusively to the mine owners, not forgetting their spies and thugs of course. This is a "free country." Let the eagle scream and ass bray. The gang's all present in West Virginia and ruling in accord with the "inalienable rights of man," those rights for the moment residing in the gentlemen who own the coal deposits of the State.

The naked class rule of this offshoot of the old Russia is the most brazen thing since the Rockefeller interests staged the ghastly affair in Colorado some years ago. It is a theme for serious thinking on the part of the workers of the nation. If there is any despotic regime than can compare with this in the annals of any modern nation we are curious to know of it.

SACRED RIGHTS

(From St. Louis Labor.)

Prof. G. W. Dyer of the Vanderbilt University daringly went to Chicago to tell the Building Construction Co. of that city that "the closed shop tramples under foot the most sacred rights and privileges of the American citizen." And what are the most sacred rights and privileges of the American citizen? "The right to work anywhere under the American flag without fear and without molestation, and the right to sell the products of his labor or buy the products of labor of others in an open market absolutely unrestricted, at the best possible price."

The very patriotic professor did not see fit to mention the 5,000,000 wage workers who for about two years have been denied their "most sacred rights and privileges to work anywhere under the American flag" and sell their labor in an open market. They have been denied these rights and privileges and nobody seems to have deemed it his patriotic duty to come to their assistance. And it was not the closed shop of the union people, it was the closed shops of the capitalist employers that denied them their rights.

The professor sees in labor not an expression of human personality but merely a commodity that may be sold in an open market subject to the economic law of supply and demand. What the professor seems to have in mind is the right of the employer of labor to buy labor in an open market as cheap as possible, and to safeguard this right workers must be prevented from organizing, must be denied the right of collective bargaining. * * *

Economists, professors and employers may regard our labor power merely as a commodity, but we cannot ignore the fact that this commodity cannot be separated from our personalities. And, as personalities, we are civilized human beings and citizens possessed of the inalienable rights of life and liberty and the pursuit of happiness. And we insist upon the enjoyment of those rights and refuse to be treated as commodities.

THE PAWTUCKET RIOT

(From the New Jersey Leader, Socialist.)

One man was killed and two others wounded when the police force of Pawtucket, R. I., opened fire with riot guns upon a compact mass of strikers who had gathered at the factory gates. That is the brief story which once more tells the story of State power.

We do not wish to discuss the justice of the strikers' cause. They quit work in protest against a drastic reduction in wages. They had formed a mob. They had mauled fellow workers who attempted to enter the mills. They had heard the riot act read by the Mayor of the city. They had bombarded the police with bricks and stones when the latter attempted to arrest some of their number. Therefore, they were shot.

We admit that from a legal point of view the strikers had no right to do the things they did. As a matter of fact the strikers had a legal right to do—nothing at all. They had been told what their wages were to be. They were offered the privilege of choosing between accepting the terms of the bosses, finding other jobs, or—starving to death. That was all the "right" they had. That is all the "right" which any worker has under the present capitalist system.

The laws of the land recognize the right of the few to own the industries upon which the many depend for the necessities of life. And the owners of the industries have a perfectly legal right to dictate the conditions under which the workers may enter the industries. That is the system which 25,000,000 of us voted for less than two years ago.

WENNERSTEN'S BOHEMIAN BLEND "M-H"
Wennersten's "M-H" is the new name for Malt-Hop, the Home Food Beverage. We found it necessary to call our product by our own name—WENNERSTEN'S—because people, as a rule, confused the coined name MALT-HOP with the Malt and Hops of some one else's manufacture. The new name assures you of receiving the genuine, which has been on the market for more than twenty-five years.

INSURANCE FIRM MUST PAY UP

Maryland Casualty Co. Loses Reimbursement Case for $15,840.87.

A verdict for $15,840.87 was returned yesterday by a jury in Circuit Judge Klene's court in favor of Clifford M. Dolph on an indemnity policy carried by him in the Maryland Casualty Co. of Baltimore.

The plaintiff alleged that he was compelled to pay $14,820.62 on account of an injury suffered by Joseph J. Flori in an elevator accident in the Dolph Building, Seventh and Locust streets, on Aug. 25, 1913, and that the insurance company had refused to reimburse him, as provided by the terms of the policy. It was contended by the company that the elevator shaft in which the accident occurred was not covered by the insurance.

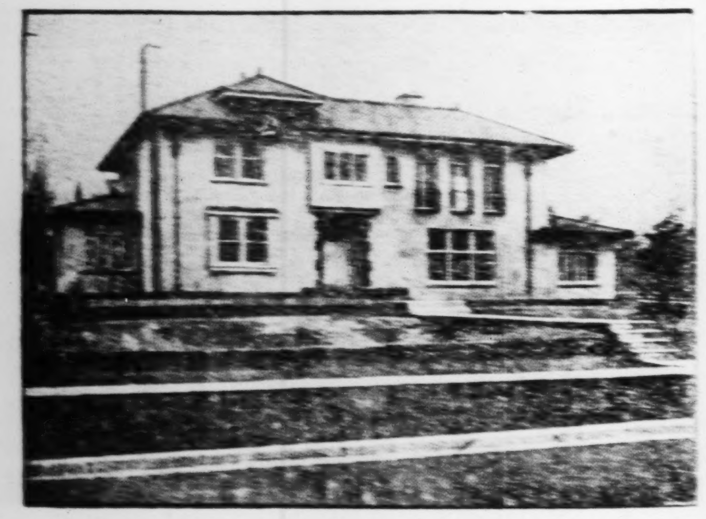
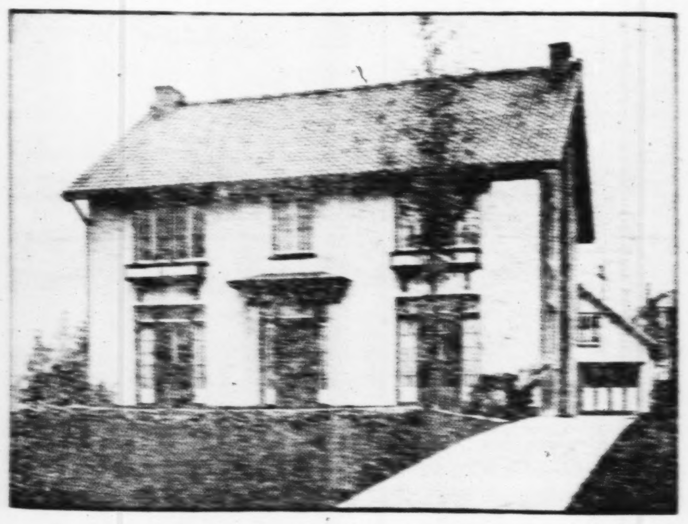
For Sale—Two Newly-Built

Maryland Terrace Homes

Just finished and strictly modern in every detail. Carefully built from finest materials to give utmost durability, comfort and convenience. Beautiful grounds with ample room for your children to play, for gardens, flowers, hedges, etc. If you are in search of an ideal home in an ideal neighborhood at a bargain price—here it is.



This is an unusually attractive home, beautifully situated on a spacious corner lot, 100 feet wide by 219 feet deep, adjoining Washington University Campus. The house is modern and is a splendid bargain at the price asked. See Mr. Davis for price and terms.



Located at 7116 Westmoreland. Contains 4 bedrooms and 2 baths on second floor. Two rooms and bath on third floor. Has garage for two machines with room above. Lot 219 feet deep. A beautiful home with every modern convenience. You can move right in. Very reasonable terms, as owner is leaving city.

See Maryland Terrace Today

Note the green park like campus of Washington University on the east—the delightful views toward the north, south and west. Then picture YOUR home here! Picture the happiness and contentment such a home would mean to you and your loved ones—the unsurpassed social and educational advantages for your wife and kiddies—the business prestige it will reflect upon you. Build your future and your children's future on this ideal spot. Lots 100 to 220 feet. All improvements completed.

Good lots will soon double in value, owing to scarcity of desirable homesites.

No man can love the home he rents. No man who pays $100 rent need try. He can afford to own a real home in Maryland Terrace. A surprisingly small cash payment and his regular monthly rent payments will finance the entire project—both lot and building.

Drive Out to 7047 Westmoreland—

One block west of Pennsylvania—just at the west boundary of Washington University Campus. View these beautiful homes and homesites. Or phone Mr. Davis any evening or Sunday at his home—Cabany 147—and arrange to come out later.

A Tremendous Sale of Choice Lots

A Rare Opportunity for a Profit or a Home

A Small Sum Secures a Lot

Grasp this opportunity! Mark this: more rich men in St. Louis owe their wealth to real estate investments than to any other cause. For no other investment is so safe and secure, nor is the advance in value so certain. Steadily and surely values advance. We now offer you this rare opportunity to invest in a location that has been tied up and reserved for years and where you yourself can see that the experience of years points to a large and quick profit. Make this event a red letter day in your life. This is not a vague speculative enterprise; but a sure, safe thing for the man or woman who is keen and wide awake, who wants to acquire a competency and enjoy the better things of life that come to the ambitious. We urge you again—grasp this chance!

Easy Monthly Payments

A GOOD REASON FOR OUR LOW PRICES

GET YOUR PICK

Realize—a colossal million-dollar transaction like this one must be turned quickly. The burden of an incumbrance must be lifted—and soon. So if you act now this means that you get the advantage of the circumstances. This enables you to secure one of the finest real estate opportunities in the development of St. Louis and at a lower price than is asked in less favored localities.

THESE CHANCES COME SELDOM

Will you pass this up? It is the opportunity of a lifetime. This event offers an opportunity for investment that no man or woman in St. Louis can afford to ignore. An enterprise in which a big profit is assured—positively without fail; it must come.

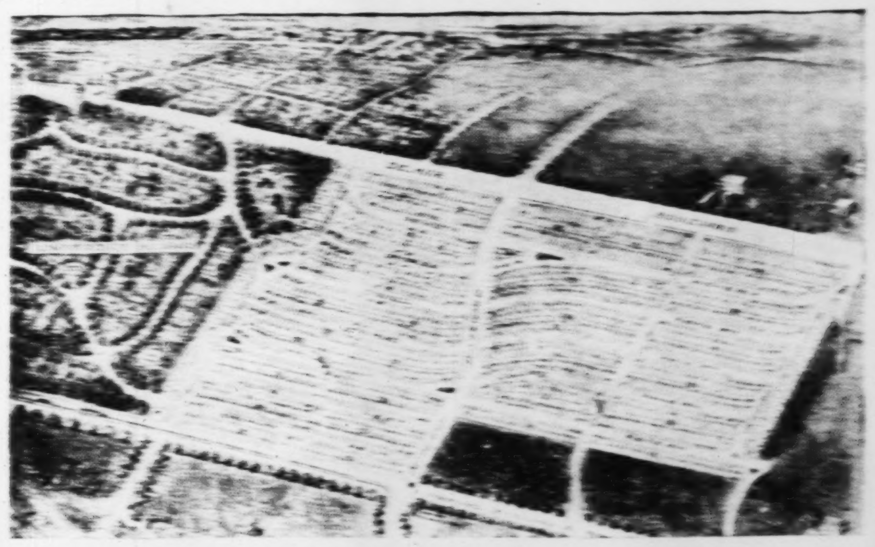
ROGER BABSON SAYS THIS IS THE TIME TO BUY

"My clients in the real estate business can do their customers the greatest service by opening up new tracts and encouraging people to buy land now on which to build later." Now is the time to buy house lots and lay plans, but not the cheapest time to let contracts."

The "Garden Spot" of Fine Homes.

Undoubtedly the choicest residential property in or about St. Louis is in this tract in University City — the "Garden Spot" of fine homes. And we emphasize that in here lies the greatest opportunity for profit in real estate in St. Louis today!

Two Blocks West of Delmar Car



University Park in University City

The illustration shows the choice location of this beautiful tract of land — known as University Park — surrounded by beautiful homes — held until the time was ripe—NOW—so situated, platted and restricted as to assure its value as residential property.

On Delmar Bl.—Take Delmar Car

To-Day COME — COME, LOOK, LISTEN—THEN JUDGE — DON'T LOSE THIS CHANCE THROUGH NEGLIGENCE — To-Day COME

Come out today—on Delmar boulevard, two blocks west of Delmar car—don't neglect it—for the grand opening and offering of the lots in this choice residential tract for a profit or a home. Our representatives will be on the premises all day to aid you in choosing a lot and for giving any information you may desire. Be out today and investigate. There is no obligation to buy.

It Lies Along the Path of Values Where Profit Is Certain

This is opportunity knocking at your door. And proof of the CERTAINTY of a handsome profit for you is that this property lies directly ALONG THE PATH OF VALUES! Do you realize what that means? It means this—directly along the path where real estate in St. Louis has always been most valuable—along Olive and Delmar—where it is now the most valuable and where you can figure with mathematical precision that it will increase with every passing month. This tract of unimproved land is away down in price today. It did not advance with improved property, but it will SOON—mighty soon! So we are going to make it easy for you now to share in the big profits while the prices are low. Don't fail to be out today for the grand opening!

Little Land—Big Demand! That's the Situation That Is Creating the Investment Flurry in

MOTOR HEIGHTS

A housing shortage already acute in St. Louis' big new industrial section! A renewal of business activity by the 50 immense plants comprising this district and the addition of thousands and thousands of new workers who must have homes nearby.

Only a Very Limited Amount of Suitable Land Available! The Demand Exceeds the Visible Supply Ten to One!

Big profits are inevitable for the men and women who buy Motor Heights lots at present prices and hold for a few months. The old law of supply and demand is imperative and absolutely certain. An investment of $100 to $300 cash is all that is required to yield a quick profit of from $200 to $600 per lot. Many investors are buying more than one lot—some as many as 10 or more at a time. It's an investment opportunity such as seldom happens. Make the most of it while it's here! Phone or write for descriptive plat. Drive or take a Cass Avenue car to St. Louis and Clara Avs. (5600 West) and see the property.

BOND MARKET UNDISTURBED AS $235,000,000 IN NEW ISSUES ARE ABSORBED

EVENTS OF WEEK SHOW LOANABLE FUNDS PLENTIFUL

Reaction in Stock Market Called Natural Aftermath of the Forward Movement Which Culminated in the Heavy Trading of the Week Before.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Ready absorption of a huge volume of new securities during the past week is an interesting and significant phenomenon. Flotations at New York totaled approximately $235,000,000, a figure that exceeds by more than 50 per cent the total for the previous high week of the year. These issues were taken, furthermore, without any appreciable disturbance of the market for outstanding securities. Speculative bonds, to be sure, showed weakness, but this was largely a reflection of a corresponding condition in the stock market, and gilt-edged issues held firm. Liberty bonds, in fact, were stimulated by the high price fixed for the fresh issue of New York City stock. Taken all together, the week offered a renewed demonstration of the satisfactory condition of the present investment market and a reassurance as to the potential supply of loanable funds.

"Sagging prices for stocks have been in no way inconsistent with the steadiness in investments. The reaction of the past week was a natural aftermath of the forward movement which culminated in the heavy trading of the week before. This movement, while partly built on cheaper money, was greatly assisted by the noticeable improvement in certain industries, such as building construction, railroad transportation and steel and automobile making. Conservative observers had already pointed out that the advance in prices discounted a very liberal recovery. It was also a question as to how far the improvement was seasonable and special, and, therefore, as to how well it could be maintained. Under the circumstances a profit-taking reaction was natural.

Cases of Improvement.

"After all, the question as to whether stock prices have advanced too far must be considered principally in connection with prospective profits. The latter admittedly are difficult to estimate. The steel corporation's quarterly report shows that March earnings are at a rate nearly sufficient to cover dividends and suggests that the corporation can cover these charges when working at a 60 per cent operation. Some of the larger independents, on the other hand, are reported to be still in the red, despite their greatly increased bookings. The position is not exactly typical of the industrial situation, but is suggestive. The most favorably situated producer may be able to earn modest profits on the year. The outlook for the other companies is distinctly less favorable.

"Similarly, in the case of the railroads, the improvement in the general situation is unmistakable and the March earnings of many of the stronger roads are impressive. The probability is that the carriers will make a considerably better showing than in the previous year. A number of factors, however, make the situation somewhat hard to figure closely. The coal strike undoubtedly stimulated the traffic movement during March and in many cases is curtailing it during April. The continuance of the better demand for the products of the heavy industries during the summer is a subject on which a difference of opinion may be entertained. The future course of rates is also a matter of some doubt.

Hope for Best.

"This is perhaps but another way of saying that the uncertainties of the process of readjustment are still with us. The situation is indeed irregular. The textile strike in New England has settled down into a protracted struggle and there is little to suggest an early termination of the coal strike. The number of idle workers is at a high point. Reports as to the condition of retail trade are conflicting and indifferent. There is good reason for believing that the low point of the depression was reached last summer. Retarding factors, however, are numerous, and the recovery is likely to be gradual rather than rapid.

"Developments at Genoa, meanwhile, have established the fact fairly clearly that the conference is political rather than economic. It is also a fair question whether Genoa's interruption of the Anglo-French negotiations regarding German reparations, which is the largest single economic problem in Europe, has been compensated for by what has occurred at the conference. However, such questionings are beside the point. We may only hope for the best from the conference as is. It would be foolish, nevertheless, to be misled by Lloyd George's gloomy remarks concerning the condition of Europe. That continent is in much better shape, politically and economically, than a year ago or two years ago. Europe's credit rating is improving, as witness our growing willingness to lend her money. A gradual improvement in this rating is probable, despite the outbursts of irritated politicians."

"Under the leadership of the oils, especially the standard group, the market continued its recovery of yesterday afternoon. Standard Oil of California and Standard Oil of New Jersey made early gains of 2½ to 4½ points respectively and independent oils advanced from 1 to 3 points. Independent steel shares were also active and strong at the opening on further merger news. Most of the railroad list was fractionally better, but trading in this group was not so active. The volume of sales was heavy, reaching well up toward a million shares. Bonds were active and firm.

"Another favorable Clearing House statement was published today. Loans increased further by $67,105,000, while net demand deposits rose $14,240,000 and time deposits $16,067,000. Reserve in Federal Reserve member banks increased $6,918,000 and excess of aggregate reserve, meanwhile, rose $4,541,000."

Exchange Market Rallies.

"Foreign exchanges rallied well this morning, following heavy selling just before the close yesterday on rumors of the resignation of the French Cabinet. This selling forced prices for the leading exchanges to the lowest point of the week, but losses for the most part were recovered on the morning's news. Trading was only moderately active, however, as dealers have adopted a waiting attitude, and small transactions are sufficient to sway prices either way. Sterling, French and Belgian francs and Italian lire were the leaders and there was also a slight improvement in German marks, although they did not suffer much yesterday. Dutch guilders, which have been strong all week, continued under accumulation.

Dry Goods Market Review.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Cotton goods markets were quieter today, with prices steady. Yarn purchases at advances slowed up considerably in contrast with the large business done in cleaning up stock lots. There was some improvement in the buying of small lots of satple worsted for men's wear and dress goods. Burlaps markets were steady. Linens were quiet. Jobbers reported a quiet business.

NOTICE OF REDEMPTION To Holders of Victory Notes and Others Concerned:

Notice is hereby given as follows:

1. Call for redemption of 3¾% Victory Notes. All of these 3¾% series of United States of America Convertible Gold Notes of 1922-1923, otherwise known as 3¾% Victory Notes, are hereby called for redemption on June 15, 1922, pursuant to the provision for redemption contained in the notes and in Treasury Department Circular No. 138, dated April 21, 1919, under which the notes were originally issued.

Interest on all Victory Notes of the 3¾% series will cease on said redemption date, June 15, 1922.

2. Suspension and termination of Victory Note conversion privilege. In view of the call for the redemption of all 3¾% Victory Notes on June 15, 1922, and pursuant to the provisions of said Treasury Department Circular No. 138, the privilege of conversion of Victory Notes of either series into Victory Notes of the other series is hereby suspended from February 9, 1922, to June 15, 1922, both inclusive and on June 15, 1922, will terminate.

Victory Notes accordingly cease to be interconvertible effective February 9, 1922, and on and after that date no conversion of the notes may be made.

3. Detailed information as to the presentation and surrender of 3¾% Victory Notes for redemption is given in Treasury Department Circular No. 277, dated February 9, 1922, copies of which are available at the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Banks.

A. W. MELLON,
Secretary of the Treasury.

New Issue
$250,000.00
FRED MEDART MANUFACTURING CO.
St. Louis, Mo.
8 Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock
Par Value, $100.00
Preferred as to both Assets and Dividends
Redeemable at $110.00 and Accrued Dividends
Dividends Payable Quarterly—January, April, July and October 1st.
From a letter to us, Mr. Edw. J. Medart, President of the company, summarizes as follows:
HISTORY OF THE COMPANY: The business was established in 1873 by Fred Medart, who operated as an individual until his death in 1908, when the business was incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri with a capital of $30,000.00. In 1916 the capital was increased to $150,000.00. In 1922, to effect the present re-capitalization, a portion of the surplus of the Company was capitalized to make the paid-in capital $500,000.00, represented by common stock in that amount. At the same time, an unsubscribed preferred stock issue of $250,000.00 was authorized.
PRODUCTION AND PLANT FACILITIES: The Company manufactures Steel Lockers, Steel Office Cabinets, Steel Shelving, Gymnasium Apparatus and Playground Apparatus. These products have been advertised for many years and are nationally known. They are sold throughout the United States to factories, stores, schools, colleges, playgrounds, etc. The demand for all of these products is constantly increasing. Branch sales offices are maintained in New York, Chicago and San Francisco, besides sales connections established in about 25 other cities in the United States. The sales have been increased from $50,000.00 in 1908 to $1,000,000.00. The Company manufactures all of its own products and operates in its own plant, which comprises 6 brick factory buildings. The property has a frontage of 462 feet on DeKalb Street, a depth of 250 feet on Potomac Street, and a frontage of 235 feet on Second Street. The buildings have a floor area of 88,000 square feet. They are protected against fire by sprinkler equipment throughout. The fire insurance rate is very low, 10.1 per $100.00. The machinery equipment is modern and ample for large production.
EARNINGS AND ASSETS: The net assets are 3½ times the amount of preferred stock issue. Before Federal taxes, but after allowing for interest on all indebtedness, the earnings of the Company for the past five years have averaged $100,656.32 annually, five times the preferred stock dividend requirements. Patents and good will are not listed in the assets; patterns and templates are carried on the books at nominal values; and printed matter and advertising is not carried as a tangible asset.
PURPOSE OF THIS ISSUE: The purpose of this preferred stock issue is to provide the Company with additional working capital and to reduce the present liabilities. The proceeds of the sale of the first 1000 shares ($100,000.00) of preferred stock will be used to pay off the present mortgage on the real estate of the Company and thereafter no mortgage, lien or other incumbrance will be placed on the property of the Company, nor will any stock be issued which will have preference over the preferred stock without the consent of 65 per cent in amount of the preferred stock. If four quarterly preferred dividends are in arrears, the holders of the preferred stock shall be entitled to full voting power until all dividends on preferred stock are paid in full. In the event of liquidation or dissolution of the Company, the preferred stockholders are to receive $110.00 per share and accrued dividends before any distribution of assets is made to holders of the common stock. This preferred stock may be redeemed and retired in whole or in part on any dividend paying date at the option of the Company at the price of $110.00 and accrued dividends.
We offer, subject to sale, unsold portion at $100 and accrued dividends.

STOCK MARKET AVERAGE TABLE SHOWS PRICE DECLINE FOR WEEK'S TRADE

EXCHANGE RATES RECORD RALLY IN MODERATE TRADE

Rumor of Resignation of French Cabinet Caused Heavy Selling Friday — Action of Sterling Attracts Attention—Dutch Guilders Strong.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 29.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange market review today, says:

"There was a distinct division in the tone of the market for exchange on London and for exchanges on France, Italy and Germany during the past week. The most striking feature of the market was the stubborn firmness shown in sterling exchange, the market for that exchange not being disturbed to the slightest extent by the disquieting dissensions in Genoa or by the importance attached to the French attitude.

"Sterling varied in only a narrow range all through the week, selling as high as $4.42¾ on Monday and yielding in the frequent period of pressure to $4.42, holding close to the high range of the year. French exchange was heavy during the greater part of the week, but still holds so well above 9 cents to the franc that it cannot be regarded as showing a weak position, even at the low level reached in the past few days. Italian also receded, but without showing a material change in its market position; the decline simply indicating a natural variation in market position. There was a special movement in Finland exchange, which rose in the last half of the week from 1.92c to 2.06c to the mark. Canadian rose to 99c, a new high for recent years.

"Foreign exchanges rallied well this morning, following heavy selling just before the close yesterday on rumors of the resignation of the French Cabinet. This selling forced prices for the leading exchanges to the lowest point of the week, but losses for the most part were recovered on the morning news. Trading was only moderately active, however, as dealers have adopted a waiting attitude, and small transactions are sufficient to sway prices either way. Sterling, French and Belgian francs and Italian lire were the leaders and there was also a slight improvement in German marks, although they did not suffer much yesterday. Dutch guilders, which have been strong all week, continued under accumulation."

Curb Market Strong With New Top Prices on Some Oil Issues

Standard Oil of Indiana and Kentucky New Stock Prominent —Bonds Steady.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK.—The curb market was strong today and good advances were recorded in some of the leading issues. Profit-taking sales at times were heavy, but the recessions from the highest were small. New high records were made in Standard Oil of Indiana and Kentucky new stock and the Wyoming oils, including Salt Creek Consolidated, Salt Creek Producers and Mountain Producers reached new high ground. Hudson Oil was influenced by announcement of a new well in the Eldorado lease.

There was a supply of Mexican Seaboard at the opening which resulted in a fractionally lower start, but after this selling had been absorbed the stock scored a good recovery. Advances were recorded in Kirby Petroleum, International Petroleum and Anglo-American Oil, and there was fair inquiry for Columbia Petroleum, Creole Syndicate and other low-priced shares. Simms Petroleum was one of the exceptions, showing an easier tendency.

Hudson Motor Car was easier in the initial dealings, but buying said to be by those who failed to get the full quota of stock on their subscriptions caused an advance later.

The mining department was firm.

Bonds were fairly active and steady.

New York Bank Statement.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 29.—There were three distinct motives influencing today's stock market. First came the recent turn for the better in oil prices and the effect this is likely to have upon the earnings and dividends of the oil producers. Second were the speculative possibilities of the independent steel merger and the conjectures regarding the figures at which the various properties would enter the combination. Third was the increased interest in possible railway deals, involving the union of some of the smaller roads or else their taking over as feeders and new links in one or another of the larger systems.

It was these three groups of stocks—the oils, the steels and the minor rails—that attracted the greatest amount of attention. They were bought at times with considerable urgency. The Standard oils both on the inside and outside market led the advance in the oil group, but they were closely followed by Pacific Oil, Cosden, Producers and Refiners, Phillips Pete, Union Oil and other representative oil shares.

Copper stocks did better partly in resopnse to the reported larger demand of the last few days for the copper metal and partly out of relief as the poor statements for 1921 were left behind.

The decline in franc exchange and the French Government bonds was checked were former.

The Bond Market.

There were few features in today's short session. The market in the main was steady. In the foreign group the French external loans were slightly firmer, coincident with the recovery in French francs from their decline late yesterday. Argentine 7s again struck a new high. The rest of the foreign bonds were little changed. Liberty Bonds sold around Friday's close.

Heavy selling carried down the Chicago & Alton 3½s nearly 3 points, and there was further selling in the New York, Westchester & Boston 4½s. Greater New York traction bonds held steady. The Erie issues were up a point or more, while Central New Jersey general 5s got to their highest of 1922.

Ontario 5s of 1922 were quoted in the outside market at 99⅞ bid, offered at par; the 6s of 1925 were 100¾ bid, offered at 101¼; the 6s of 1943 were 107½ bid, offered at 108. Manitoba 6s of 1925 were 100¾ bid, offered at 101; the 6s of 1930 were 101 bid, offered at 101¾, and the 6s of 1946 were 105½ bid, offered at 107¾.

Railway Stocks.

Low-priced rails were very popular in the market again this morning, but attention was given more particularly to stocks of roads which might conceivably figure in merger deals. For the moment the question of earnings does not count much. Lake Erie & Western had their advance in spite of the fact that there is not much of a showing in current revenues for the stocks. The contention is that the same thing could happen in other rails which are not showing up wonderfully well in their present earnings results but which might figure in combinations.

The Steel Stocks.

There seems to be no doubt that the terms upon which the individual companies will enter the independent steel merger have been agreed upon. No public announcement is expected, however, for another week or so. In the meantime those on the outside have to take their cue of what the merger prices are from the stock tape. The tape has been saying for several days that Republic Steel is going to figure to much better advantage in the combination than was at first supposed, while Midvale is not. Lackawanna made a new high today and this was taken to mean that the Lackawanna Steel would enter the merger on a basis quite satisfactory to its friends.

Financial Notes.

The Packard Motor Car Co. has decided to increase production 50 per cent and add 1000 men to its factory forces at once, according to report.

The Pennsylvania system for March showed a net operating income of $12,-096,425.

A special stockholders' meeting of the Brooklyn Union Gas Co. will be held May 19 to vote on a proposal to issue $11,-579,000 to provide additional working capital and reimburse the company for expenditures already made.

Wabash Railroad.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 29.—The Wabash Railway made a good showing for the year ended Dec. 31 last, all factors for the period considered. The report released for publication this morning shows that it is now on its way to prosperity. During the period named many leading systems made a more or less unfavorable showing, due to unsettled conditions of business. The Wabash's income account for 1921 shows that its operating revenues fell off only $764,-590, the total being $59,217,691, as compared with $59,982,282 in 1920, but it was able to reduce its operating expenses greatly. The figures for these stand at $50,007,874, a cut of $8,851,520 from the preceding year. Net operating revenues rose from $1,122,886 in 1920 to $9,209,187 last year. This showing was made possible by the slash in overhead expenses. Operating income gained $7,859,337.

Libby, McNeill and Libby.

CHICAGO, April 29.—The capital stock of Libby, McNeil & Libby was increased from $27,000,000 to $31,000,000 with common and preferred stock, the latter a new creation which will be offered to shareholders at par, at a meeting of the shareholders in Portland, Me., it was announced at the Chicago plant today.

The shareholders voted first to decrease the present capital stock of $27,000,000 to $6,750,000 and decrease the number of shares similarly to 675,000 with a par value of $10; these shares will hereafter be common stock. In increasing the capital stock to $31,000,000, 250,000 shares of preferred stock at a par value of $100 were added to the common stock.

The new common stock will be subject to the prior rights of the holders of preferred stock. Present shareholders were directed to turn in their holdings for replacement, in proportionate amounts, of the whole comon capital stock.

Edward G. McDougall was elected president of the company, succeeding W. G. Barrows, who became chairman of the board of directors.

Japanese Foreign Trade.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

TOKIO, April 11.—Japanese imports in March, as compared with March, 1921, increased yen 69,000,000, while exports for the same period increased yen 20,000,000, according to a statement issued by the Finance Department. The total imports for March were yen 205,000,000, and exports yen 115,000,000, showing an excess of imports over exports of yen 90,000,000.

Official figures show that Japan's foreign trade for the first three months for 1922 consisted of yen 581,000,000 in imports and yen 334,000,000 exports. As compared with the first three months of 1921, the totals for the same period this year show an increase of yen 220,000,000 in imports and yen 58,000,000 in exports.

IMPROVEMENT IN TONE OF BRAZILIAN MARKET REPORTED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Noticeable improvement in the tone of the Brazilian market was reported to the Commerce Department today by Commercial Attache Schurz at Rio de Janeiro. Buyers, however, he added, are still cautious because of the uncertainty of exchange.

Brazil's export trade in general produce is still unsatisfactory, he declared, and the slow recovery of this phase of the trade is limiting the capacity of the important market, while crop conditions are also uncertain, due to the extraordinary rainfall in some states.

An easing of the economic tension in Mexico was noted in advices received by the department. The increased price of silver, the advices said, has stimulated developments in the mining districts and activity in the exploitation of oil properties in the Isthmus of Tehuantepec continues.

It is reported, the advices declared, that titles to property bought there were recorded by the Department of Industry and Commerce of Mexico.

Weekly Copper Review.

NEW YORK, April 29.—A better demand has been reported for copper during the past week and prices have been generally firm. Quotations still range from 12⅞ to 13 cents, but it is claimed that very little copper is obtainable below the 13-cent level. Iron was unchanged.

CATTLE AND HOGS RULE HIGHER AT WEEK'S END

Sheep Receipts Heavier, but Demand Is Good and Prices Range Upward.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and Calves	14,578	12,150	14,134
Hogs	69,848	59,911	61,997
Sheep	5,239	3,856	11,086
Totals	89,665	75,917	87,217

Under moderate to light receipts and a moderate demand, the cattle market showed slight strength during the week and closed slightly higher in virtually all departments. Beef steers closed 25c higher, the bulk selling from $7.25 to $8.00 and the top reaching $8.90 per cwt. Some of the plainer steers cleared around $6.75 and $7.00. Butcher yearlings finished 25c and in some cases 50c higher. Most cleared from $7.00 to $8.00, a drove of heifers reaching $8.50, the top. Butcher cows late in the week at $4.50 to $6.25 largely, reflected a 15 to 25c rise, medium grades showing the larger gain. Canner and cutter cows showed a like advance, cutters closing at $3.50 to $4.50 and canners following at $3.00 to $3.50. The advance in bulls amounted to 15 to 25c, heavy beef classes selling on the close at $4.50 to $5.50, lightweight butchers $5.50 to $6.25 and bolognas $4.00 to $4.75. Stocker and feeder cattle, influenced by light receipts and an advance in killing stock, closed 15 to 25c up. Most desirable steers suitable for country shipment varied from $6.00 to $7.00, with top making $7.40. There was a somewhat broader outlet for stocker she-stuff. Under fair receipts and a reasonably broad demand, veal calves advanced 50c, tops on the close selling at $8.50 and other desirable kinds going around $8.00 and $8.25.

Hogs Close at Top.

Receipts at the hog house show a good gain, in fact, were the largest since the first week of February, totaling 70,848, compared to 59,911 a week previous and 61,997 a year ago. Demand was active from all sources and slight declines one day were replaced the next, the market seesawing back and forth in this manner until near the close when prices took a shoot upward, closing at the high point of the week, with top $10.65 and 15c to 20c higher than the close of the preceding week. Bulk of the desirable butchers and shippers sold in a narrow spread of $10.60 to $10.65, on the closing day, compared to a range of $10.40 to $10.50 on closing day the preceding week. Quality was exceptionally good as a rule with weights more uniform and heavy hogs and pigs and lights were scarce at all times. Best weight pigs sold at the close from $10.35@10.60, medium weights from $9.75@10.25 and light kinds under 100 pounds from $8 for plain southern offerings to $10 for best natives. Rough hogs also shared in the advance, best sows selling from $9@9.10 and stags from $7@7.50.

Sheep Are Higher.

Receipts were somewhat heavier at the sheep house, totaling 5239, as against 3856 a week previous. Under an improved demand from packers and city butchers, however, the market ruled active and 50c higher, on clipped lambs and fat sheep, spring lambs going unchanged, although they met with an improved demand. Featuring sales of the week were clipped lambs at $14.50 and fat clipped sheep at $9, both new high marks for the year. Other clipped lambs sold from $13.65@14.25 and clipped sheep from $8@8.50. A significant feature of the trade was that clipped sheep sold practically as high as wooled offerings, this being due to the fact that buyers are showing a marked preference for clipped stock, although this was not so noticeable on lambs. Best wooled sheep offered sold from $8.75@9. Spring lambs sold principally from $16.50@16.75, with the latter price the top. Market was more settled, owing to the fact thta packers have entered the competition, whereas previous to the past week, city butchers were the only buyers for spring lambs.

Horse and mule receipts were again light and the market showed a strong trend on all classes possessing a reasonable amount of quality. Outlet was particularly good for good wagon horses, draft types showing marks of work, and good big rugged mules. Thin and outclasses stuff did not move so readily. Receipts approximated 1000 head, of which horses and mules were about evenly divided. Offerings cleared privately and at auctions.

SITUATION SURROUNDING MAY WHEAT DOMINATES MARKET

Intimations that a big Chicago grain company, supposed to be heavily short of wheat was prepared to deliver wheat on outstanding contracts instead of settling otherwise gave the first jolt during the past week to the traders who had been expecting values to ascend. Report that wheat imports from Canada, duty paid, would be made at a profit tended further to weaken confidence on the part of holders of wheat. Then came gossip that private settlements were being negotiated in May contracts involving as much as 5,000,000 bushels. At this juncture, the market dropped 5¼c a bushel within a few hours.

Unusual activity in purchasing for Europe developed after wheat prices had tumbled. About 1,500,000 bushels were estimated to have taken for Europe one day, and 3,000,000 bushels the day following. Then quotations tightened up again, and perplexity recurred as to how next month's deliveries beginning Monday would result.

Seaboard demand both for corn and oats helped to give comparative steadiness to the two feed-grain markets. Provisions averaged higher with hogs.

May wheat closed 2 cents lower on the Merchants' Exchange Saturday. July was unchanged and September fractionally off. Corn futures were unchanged to fractionally lower. The May delivery of wheat reflected the fact that deliveries begin Monday.

In the St. Louis cash grain market Saturday wheat was steady to 1c higher; No. 2 red of soft character was in demand and there was some inquiry for sound No. 3 and No. 4 wheat. Buying on mill orders and for local mills absorbed best offerings of good wheat. The common, mixed and heat-damaged stuff is practically unsalable. Some No. 3 wheat was offered as low as $1.33; heavy test No. 4 showing heat damage offered at $1.28.

Hard wheat was dull and 1c lower. No. 2 hard sold late at $1.35½, 1c under the St. Louis May. Western dark varieties were offered to arrive at reduced premiums.

Yellow and white corn ruled 6c easier, mixed 1½c lower. Demand was rather limited and confined principally to mills and local trade. In late trades No. 2 yellow was offered at 62c and No. 3 yellow at 61c, without takers. Several cars were carried over.

Cash oats offerings sold ⅛@¼c cheaper than on Friday. There was a pretty good demand locally and for shipment. Offerings were light and all cleaned up.

May wheat opened at $1.38⅝ to $1.39; July wheat, $1.23⅛; September wheat, $1.17½; May corn, 59½c; July corn, 63¾c, and September corn, 66⅝c. A steady tone was shown in the early trading. There was some week-end evening up trade. Liverpool wheat closed 1d higher.

The three northwestern markets combined Saturday had 330 cars of wheat, compared with 389 a week ago and 335 last year, Minneapolis today receiving 120 cars, Duluth 49 cars, Winnipeg 161.

Primary receipts of wheat were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 1,027,000 bu, compared with 562,000 a week ago and 821,000 last year. Corn receipts were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 733,000 bu, compared with 438,000 a week ago and 520,000 last year. Oats receipts were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 481,000 bu, compared with 336,-000 a week ago and 465,000 last year.

Local wheat receipts Saturday, which were 63,600 compared with 55,200 a week ago and 58,890 last year, included 33 cars local and 20 through. Corn receipts, which were 39,000 compared with 19,500 a week ago and 63,700 last year, included 24 cars local and 6 through. Oats receipts, which were 54,000 compared with 88,000 a week ago and 60,000 last year, included 15 cars local and 12 through. Hay receipts were 281 tons local and 159 through.

Primary shipments of wheat were heavier than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 670,000 bu, compared with 401,000 a week ago and 941,000 last year. Corn shipments were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 456,000 bu, compared with 401,000 a week ago and 386,000 last year. Oats shipments were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 571,000 bu, compared with 403,000 a week ago and 506,000 last year.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators Saturday were 62,693 bushels of wheat, 774,324 bushels of corn, 519,307 bushels of oats. Grain stocks comprised 26,029 bushels of No. 7 red winter wheat, 37,269 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat, 43,729 bushels of No. 1 hard winter wheat, 204,187 bushels of No. 2 hard winter wheat, 336,903 bushels of No. 2 corn, 179,644 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn, 212,714 bushels of No. 2 white corn, 210,768 bushels of No. 2 white oats, 196,452 bushels of No. 3 white oats, 51,360 bushels of No. 2 rye, 2745 bushels of barley, 10,180 bushels of kaffir corn.

No. 3 white oats, 38¼@38½c.
No. 4 white oats, 37¾@38c.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 29.—The unnaturalness of the market in May was demonstrated clearly during the last hour of trading. A few selling orders came into the pit shortly after 11 o'clock and this disclosed a lack of buying. In as little a time as it takes to chalk up the figures a break to $1.39 from $1.43⅞ was recorded. At $1.39 some buying by cash houses caused a rally of 3c, but when this buying was completed the market sagged again.

The early trade was featured by a paucity of offerings and a little short covering forced by a bulge in Minneapolis May in which there is said also to be a deal, and on a report that 1,500,000 bushels of vessel room had been chartered to load out wheat next week. This report could not be confirmed and vessel agents stated that they had no room to offer for next week's loading.

The trade in the alte months was quiet. Eastern houses bought, but the bulges brought out offerings. Seaboard reported 500,000 bushels old and new crop wheat worked for export. Receipts in all positions were heavy. Weather continues unseasonably cold. Shipping sales, 3000 bushels. Market closed unchanged to 2⅝c lower; May, $1.39½@1.39⅝; July, $1.26⅛@$1.26¼; September, $1.18½.

Corn showed strength early, but the late break undermined the courage of the longs and caused prices to weaken. Support was forthcoming at a fractional break under the previous close. A good domestic shipping demand was in evidence and export bids were close to a working basis. Receipts were heavy. Market closed ⅝c to ⅝c lower. May 61c to 60⅞c, July 64⅝, September 67⅝c.

Oats were weak. Heavy liquidation in May featured the trade. Cash oats demand was light. Market closed ⅜c to ⅛c off; May, 36½@36⅝c; July, 39⅛c and September, 41½c.

Provisions were quiet. Smaller packers bought and there was some short covering. Pork closed unchanged. Lard, 7½c to 10c higher and ribs, 7½c to 17½c higher.

STEADY TONE SHOWN BY COTTON AT NEW YORK

Stock and Foreign Exchange Markets Exert Influence on Trend of Prices.

NEW YORK, April 29.—A renewal of yesterday's late buying movement sent May and new crop deliveries into new high ground for the movement during today's early trading in the cotton market. The advance was checked by week-end realizing at 17.94c for October contracts, however, and the price later eased off to 17.83c, closing at 17.85c, with the general market closing steady, net 1 point higher to 2 points lower.

The market opened steady at an advance of 3 to 5 points, with active positions selling 7 to 12 points net higher during the middle of the morning. There may have been some buying on reports of unsettled Eastern belt weather and of increasing flood area in the lower Mississippi Valley and Texas. On the whole, however, bullish comment was chiefly on the renewed steadiness of the stock market and higher foreign exchange rates, which evidently encouraged renewed optimism over general business and export prospects.

Reports of firmness in the cotton goods markets were also a factor on the advance, which carried the new crop months to new high records for the season. July was relatively easy, partly as a result of New Orleans selling, which was one of the features during the entire morning. It was thought that this pressure might be in expectation that any cotton asked upon May contracts, for which no favorable trade demand developed during June, might be retendered on the active summer position. Otherwise offerings were comparatively light and selling on the reaction from 18.28c to 18.20c for May and 17.96c to 17.87c for December was attributed chiefly to realizing. July sold off from 17.81c to 17.70c and the May premium over July widened out to some 48 or 50 points.

Sales of cloths in the Fall River market for the week were estimated at 150,000 pieces and the curtailment of production at 125,000, but prices were said to be firmer. It is estimated that since the beginning of labor troubles, curtailment of mill production in New England has amounted to about 200,000,000 yards.

NEW PLAYS AND FILMS AND NEWS OF STAGE AND SCREEN PLAYERS

Phillpotts Remains the Novelist in Literary Drama, "The Shadow"

English Author's Stage Venture Shares Week on Broadway With Fantastic Comedy and Two New Mystery Plays.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 29.

EDEN PHILLPOTS does not succeed in forgetting that he is a literary man when he comes into the theater. His play, "The Shadow," which was produced at the Klaw Theater Monday night, has flashes of distinction, but it fails almost entirely to attain the momentum of drama. Most "By goom" and "Aye, lass," plays make a time of it in getting started, but "The Shadow" is a little worse than usual. It is not until the second act that the story really begins to stir. The news that murder has been committed is vastly encouraging, and the spectator is somewhat stimulated for a time.

But Mr. Phillpots cannot forbear from calling upon the characters to tell their own story in his way. He helps out the humblest with meaty phrases in time of distress. That condition is plentiful enough. Elias Waycott is wrongfully accused of murder. The real criminal is Philip Blanchard. Philip confesses his guilt to Elias, but the latter agrees to stand trial. Philip is the beloved husband of Hester, and she in turn is loved by Elias. Even when a verdict of guilty is brought in against the innocent man, he refuses to wait for the promised public confession of Philip. To spare Hester from sorrow he accepts guilt and kills himself.

The dramatist has unwisely allowed himself the luxury of two big scenes, between husband and wife, which are built in the same manner. Hester has to plead with Philip not to kill himself both before and after he learns of the sacrifice of Elias. The second time it did not seem to matter so much. Philip was a proud man and did not like to accept life at the hands of his dead friend. His attitude in the matter seemed a little snobbish. That, perhaps, is a matter of opinion, but there could be no doubt about his being long-winded.

Helen MacKellar Starred.

THE part of Hester falls to Helen MacKellar, who gives a good performance up to the point where the emotional demand upon her is prolonged beyond human endurance. Percy Waram was also good, as were J. M. Kerrigan, Noel Leslie and sometimes Dallas Welford. Indeed the actors did everything possible for the play.

The comic relief for the evening was furnished by a humorous discussion of child-birth.

The position of Phillpots in the theater may never be important, but his novels have fulfilled a useful function. The books of Phillpots have already served to strengthen and confirm the fact that Thomas Hardy is a genius.

"Bronx Express," a fantastic comedy by Ossip Dymow, translated by S. R. Golding and adapted by Owen Davis, with Mr. and Mrs. Coburn in the principal parts, was presented at the Astor Theater on Wednesday evening.

The idea which evidently animated the playwright comes to little. Yet the play provides a good deal of entertainment. The entertainment is largely a by-product. In preparation for his big idea, Mr. Dymow has woven one act of home life in the Bronx which falls only a little short of first-rate artistry.

Melting Pot Doesn't Melt.

IT is a scene in which conversations are broken and punctured by a swinging door. The flat is a little too small for emotion. It is in this act that we meet David Hungerstoltz, who has been bold enough to leap from Russia into the melting pot, and then finds to his despair that nothing much has happened to him. He does not melt.

We have his wife, equally unassimilated, and an old teacher. In contrast there is the young son, a boy, who speaks English well enough to shame his parents. He is American down to little old yesterday's last slang phrase. There is his sister, as well, but she, unfortunately, is a conventional figure, the stock young woman longing for art and finding that the steam pipes are too close for the full expression of her soul's longing.

With the exception of the language provided for the young woman, Dymow has written good talk. Sometimes it is marred a little by a willingness to descend to gags for the sake of merriment, but the greater part of it is legitimate.

All this is preparation. Dymow establishes his reality only to leap into fantasy. His big idea is that David Hungerstoltz shall have a dream in the subway in which all the figures from the advertisements shall come to life. To him they become symbols of the push, the success and the heartlessness of American business.

Development Sags.

THIS sounds like a good idea. Perhaps it is, but the thing sags and dies in development. Not one of the figures is characterized in any interesting way. Little imagination animates the dream of Hungerstoltz. The setting is commonplace and the direction confusing. If there ever were any humorous possibilities in the materialization of the Smith Bros. they have been hammered to death by hundreds of not very comic humorous paragraphers. And, in addition to everything else, the moral which comes into the story from the dream is not apparent. Seemingly, Hungerstoltz is supposed to learn that there are things more valuable in life than financial success, but as a matter of fact, the last act finds him completing a shrewd bargain by the use of bluff, the value of which has been brought to his attention in the course of his dream.

Charles Coburn does as well with the character of David Hungerstoltz

Vera Gordon and Vivienne Osborne, in "The Good Provider"—Missouri

Mae Busch, in "Foolish Wives."

"Foolish Wives" and "The Good Provider" Local Screen Features

"Orphans of the Storm" Goes Into Third Week; Theodora in Return Showing.

At the Picture Houses

New Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol — "Foolish Wives."

Missouri — Vera Gordon in "The Good Provider."

Liberty — "Orphans of the Storm" (third week.)

Delmar, Criterion and Congress—"Theodora" (return).

THE widely heralded production, "Foolish Wives," written, directed and enacted by Eric von Stroheim, is the week's bill at the New Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol theaters. In addition to Von Stroheim, Miss Dupont, Maude George, Mae Busch and Robert Edeson appear in the cast. These are the same principals who were seen in "The Devil's Passkey" two years ago.

Von Stroheim plays the part of a villain who preys upon women.

With a majority of the scenes laid in Monte Carlo, it was necessary to reproduce in California general views of that city. These settings were responsible for a large portion of the expense in making the picture. Interiors of hotels, gambling casinos and other scenes are featured.

For his story Von Stroheim took the viewpoint of some Europeans that Americans, concerned chiefly with the chase of the dollar, forget their manners, culture and all the nicer things of life. A young wife is left to her own resources and the renegade Count of the story takes advantage of the situation.

The picture is in 12 reels and is the only attraction on the program on the three theaters.

The leading feature at the Missouri is "The Good Provider," a story written directly for the screen by Fannie Hurst, author of "Humoresque." The leading players are Vera Gordon, Dore Davidson and little Miriam Battista.

Like "Humoresque," in which these players are starred, this picture features parental love, but in the present instance the greater stress is laid on the affection and self-sacrifice of the father. Critics have been loud in their praise of Dore Davidson in the paternal role.

The cast also includes Vivienne Osborne, William (Buster) Collier Jr., John Roche, James Devine, Blanche Craig, Ora Jones, Edward Phillips, Muriel Martin and Margaret Severn, a dancer.

At the Liberty, Griffith's superspectacle, "The Orphans of the Storm," goes into its third week.

"Theodora" is the bill at the Delmar, Criterion and Congress.

Rae Samuels, in character songs—Orpheum.

Rae Samuels to Be Headliner at Orpheum

MISS RAE SAMUELS, self-styled "blue streak of vaudeville," presents a new repertory of character songs as headliner on the Orpheum's bill, beginning tomorrow afternoon. Current conditions in the moving picture industry are sending flocks of cinema stars to the varieties; among them is Eugene O'Brien, a favorite of the romantic screen, who is to appear in person on the same program. This is his first vaudeville tour.

Others on the Orpheum bill are: Paul Byron, Evelyn Dockson, Nora Hunter and Horace Lintz, in "A Dress Rehearsal," described as a one-act travesty; Raymond Bond and Eleanor Magnuson in a home-spun comedy, "Remnants;" George Rockwell and Al Fox, "two noble nuts;" the Five Avalons, in a wire-dancing act; the Primrose Three, singers; and Emile and John Nathane, acrobats.

The Columbia's vaudeville feature for the first half of the week will be Torelli's Comedy Circus, consisting of ponies, dogs, monkeys and an unrideable mule. Others to be seen at this playhouse are Coulter and Charlesworth, with a troupe of dancing children; Roach and McCurdy, comedians, in "A Touch of Nature;" Bobby Van Horn, in a blackface turn; and Clayton and Clayton, with songs and chatter. The film offering is "Glass Houses," with Viola Dana. Harvey and the Irene sisters, dancers, will lead the program beginning Thursday, and the picture will be "Watch Your Step," with Cullen Landis and Patsy Ruth Miller.

Empress, Rialto, Gayety.

AT the Empress, Larry Reilly, Irish actor and singer, with a company of players, will present "The End of the Road," a sketch placed in County Mayo. His leading woman is Mary Hampton.

The Rialto, which will close next Sunday, announces Eddie Foy, with the six younger Foys, as the chief attraction of its concluding bill. Others appearing will be "D. D. H.," with his encyclopedia-peddling patter; Cook and Rosevere, Miss Robbie Gordone, Fries and Wilson, and the Hayatake brothers.

The Gayety switches this week from burlesque to vaudeville, and announces Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion, in a ring and athletic exhibition, lasting an hour.

Spinelly, Beloved of Paris, in New Revue

By LINCOLN EYRE.
Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, April 17.

SPINELLY, when she appeared in the Ziegfeld Frolic a couple of years ago, did not set Broadway ablaze. Nevertheless she is beloved of Paris. Proof of it is found in the fact that just because she has been ill a musical play designed originally for another star was rewritten for her in a fashion suitable to her whimsical talents. And the actress who was to have played it is now doing the leading role in a new comedy by Maurice Donnay and Andre Rivoire which "Spin" would have played had she not fallen ill! All of which, one is told, is both most Parisian and entirely unprecedented.

The vehicle specially rebuilt for Spinelly is one of those fairy-story revues of which Rip, its author, alone knows the secret. Its title is "Le Bel Ange Vint," which means literally "the beautiful angel came," but the pronunciation of which is exactly like that of the masculine form of "La Belle Angevine," the Donnay-Rivoire comedy. Rip's pun—another tribute to Spinelly—has brought him more advance publicity than could the most brilliant of press agents.

A Parisian "Pear."

MEANWHILE "La Belle Angevine" rides the summits of success. Its mainstay is a venturesome old roue whom his friends have dubbed "the beautiful Angevine" after a famous French pear of that name. (Pear in Parisian slang is equivalent to "sucker" in American—hereafter, a truce to translation!) His particular amusement is having young and attractive mistresses stolen from him by younger and sprightlier men.

The latest occurrence of this kind ushers in the first act, in which the fickle light-o'-love is replaced as hostess at the old rake's hospitable board by a demure damsel whom chance wafts thither. Of course it develops that this young person is the sweetheart of her would-be seducer's nephew, and of course she prefers matrimony in a cottage with the youth to the lack of it in a palace with the uncle.

MM. Donnay and Rivoire are versed in every trick of the French-farce trade, and in "La Belle Angevine" they use them all—so deftly and wittily, however, that their au-

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

Rose Coghlan appeared in a picture entitled "Beyond the Rainbow," which was filmed about six months ago. Her part was that of a boarding housekeeper. Although the part was small the actress made it stand out by her excellent art.

Bull Montana, in his new picture "A Ladies' Man?" is togged out as a dandy in swallow-tail coat, white vest, spats, white gloves, monocle, and all the other equipment of a young blood.

May McAvoy has been in the movies since 1918. Her first appearance was in a film advertisement for a popular brand of sugar.

In "The Prisoner of Zenda," the the radiophone was used in giving commands to the small army of extras who appeared in the big scenes.

Theodore Roberts, "the grand old man of the movies," is starred in the screen version of "The Old Homestead."

Leatrice Joy answered an advertisement in a newspaper in her home town, New Orleans, and was engaged by the Nola Film Company.

Jack Mulhall, who was the leading man in "Turn to the Right," first appeared on the stage as a Spanish soldier in one of Viola Allen's productions.

The "Chuletas," that Rodolph Valentino wears in "Blood and Sand," are the sideburns that are a distinguishing sign of champion bullfighters who wear them long, half an inch below the lobe of the ear. The ordinary bull thrower wears sideburns that are shorter arriving at about the middle of the ear.

Antonio Moreno had been with Vitagraph nearly eight years before they asked him to play the part of an Irishman recently, and he quit.

Pauline Frederick recently signed a contract with Al Woods for five years, during which time she is not permitted to appear in the movies.

The influence of moving pictures is especially seen in the interior decoration of American homes. It is stated on competent authority that nine-tenths of American homes in cities of less than 100,000 inhabitants get their ideas for beautifying the home from the screen.

Mae Collins, who has been frequently mentioned as a probable second wife of Charlie Chaplin, is to become a member of a Detroit company.

A. Lila's real name is Augusta Appel.

"Mikado" Voted Most Popular of Operettas

LONDON, April 29.

WHICH, with London audiences, is the most popular of the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas? On that memorable and recent evening when a six months' run of these classics came to an end at the Princes Theater, Mr. Rupert D'Oyly Carte announced that a public vote had resulted as follows: First, "The Mikado"; second, "The Yeomen of the Guard;" third, "The Gondoliers;" and, running neck and neck for fourth place, "Ruddigore" and "Iolanthe."

At the closing performance, the company presented the first act of "The Gondoliers" and the second act of "The Mikado." The management found it necessary to distribute printed slips requesting the audience not to exact too many encores. The enthusiasm of the evening was almost overpowering; at the end the audience cheered itself hoarse for half an hour, until Mr. Henry Lytton, a weary figure, appeared in a box, and on behalf of the company uttered this hint: "We all love you. But we also love our homes." The gathering then dispersed.

The troupe is now engaged in a tour of the country which began at Manchester. It will return to the West End at some future date as yet undefined. During the London run all of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas were presented.

Uses Daughter as Decoy.

IN "Running Water," Mr. Alfred Edward W. Mason's new play at Wyndham's, a wily old rogue plots with accomplices to fleece a rich young fool. They are disturbed by the arrival of the rogue's daughter. She seeks refuge with her father from her mother, apparently another kind of rogue, but, as the parents have lived apart for years, the girl is ignorant of her father's character, and so does not know that she is out of the frying pan into the fire. The father's first impulse is an honest one—to keep the girl out of it. But she prevails on him to let her stay, and then he resolves to make use of her. She shall be a lure for the rich young fool.

This is a good initial situation. Will the daughter find the father out? Will her influence reform him? Or will she leave him the same old rascal? She does find him out, and does try to amend him; but the main interest shifts from the father theme to the girl's relations with the rich young fool. She devotes herself to his salvation; tries to save him from playing cards with the rogues; tries to keep cocaine out of his reach; faces the rogues, defies and is maltreated by them, and even dismisses her own sweetheart for the sake of looking after the fool. Why? This is something of a puzzle.

Father's Abrupt Conversion.

THE father, in the meantime, goes from bad to worse, treats the girl as an enemy, and nearly murders the fool. Matters are brought to an abrupt conclusion by a god out of a machine—or rather, by the girl's sweetheart out of a motor car—who sends the rogues to the rightabout and carries off the girl to safety. There is an apparently instantaneous conversion of the father at the curtain-fall; he undertakes to go to Jericho, or South Africa, or somewhere else out of the way. The heroine is charmingly played by Miss Edna Best, a great popular favorite.

Mr. Lenox Robinson's comedy, "The White-Headed Boy," has been revived at the Aldwych, with much the same cast which toured America. A new comedy by John Galsworthy, entitled "Windows," has been placed in rehearsal at the Court Theater.

Spinelly, Beloved of Paris, in New Revue

dances are completely won over. Whether their 100 per cent Gallic dialogue could be translated successfully, however, is another question.

Rostand's Poem-Playlet.

THE artistic triumph of the season thus far is, beyond a doubt, the posthumous production of Edmond Rostand's poem-playlet, "La Dernière Nuit de Don Juan." Naturally the critics devote most of their space to eulogies of Rostand, whose words, as one puts it, are sublime music. But there might be almost equally generous praise for the producers—unmentioned on the program—who have created a setting superbly worthy of the great poet's genius, and for the players who seem steeped in the spirit of his half-cynical, half-sorrowful little masterpiece.

Those who have read the poem since its publication over a year ago will appreciate the difficulties of staging and acting the scene on the Grand Canal of Venice in which, after he has been spared from hell for one night to prove, if he can, that his life has not been wholly evil, the torn scraps of the list of Don Juan's many loves are turned into gondolas, each bearing to him the phantom of an erstwhile conquest.

Masked and veiled, these myriad lovely shades swarm about the doomed gallant while he strives desperately, and fails, to recall a single one by name. And all save one, whose very existence he had forgotten, cannot even weep real tears for his memory. Yet in the end, forsaking once more her who had remained true, Don Juan staggers forth in pursuit of the hundreds of faithless phantoms, irresistibly drawn by the faint sound of their mocking laughter.

Rostand himself could not have wished for a more beautiful picture than that made of this exquisitely colorful bit of dramatic poesy at the Porte Saint-Martin Theater. It will be done, of course, and doubtless quite as ably, in New York—if the translator is equal to his task.

New Comedy by Guitry.

SACHA GUITRY gets away with it as regularly and as gracefully as George M. Cohan, though in a very different manner. His latest achievement is "L'Illusionniste," a comedy of which Comoedia's distinguished critic remarks that the subject is so fragile one wonders whether there is one. There is novelty, however, in the prologue which consists of four vaudeville acts, one of which is Sacha as the illusionist, or magician; another Yvonne Printemps (his wife offstage) as an English dancer and singer.

The play starts with the illusionist making love to the thoroughly enamored English lass—who, of course, is ingenue—and trying to make up his mind whether to desert in her favor a prosperous demimondaine who has just abandoned her "protector" for love of him. What his decision is isn't hard to foresee, though three acts are used to formulate it. Parisians will go to see Sacha and Yvonne in almost anything, but one rather fancies an American audience sadly disillusioned by "L'Illusionniste."

Movie Censorship in France.

THE French movie world is up in arms against the censorship which it is alleged is exercised by an unidentified official of the Ministry of the Interior in star chamber sitting. Even the director of the film is not permitted to be present when the censor is on the job, and appeals against his arbitrary findings, based apparently entirely on his personal tastes, are mostly fruitless. Moreover, this particular censor's approval by no means insures the producer's right to exhibit his work all over France, for in every community, right down to the smallest village, the local Mayor imposes a second censorship. Thus a film successfully shown in Melun may be barred absolutely in Fontainebleau, a few miles away. The consequence is that films traverse France like gypsies, never knowing when or where they may be ordered to "move on" by the communal authorities.

33 CENTS FOR FIRST CLASS SEAT AT THE PASSION PLAY

LONDON, April 27.—From Berlin it is announced that the official program for the Oberammergau Passion Play has been issued by the Bavarian Travel Agency. The program is divided into three classes, the price of the first class being 490 marks, which is equivalent to about $1.58.

This sum entitles the visitor to board and lodging in a hotel or private house from the afternoon preceding the performance until the morning of the day after the performance. The price in the second class is 420 marks and 160 marks is the charge for the third class. The difference in price simply applies to the size of the room.

The performances will take place from May 11, and they will continue with short intervals between them until the end of September. The performances last from 8 a. m. until 6 p. m., with a break of two hours at midday. The price of seats varies from 100 marks (about a third of a dollar) for a first-class seat to 10 marks (say 3 cents) for a fifth-class seat.

When Summer Comes

your family needs the open fields, clear waters, wooded knolls—needs God's great out-of-doors. At Berry Bush the grounds are heavily wooded and overlook, from high banks, the clear waters of Spring Lake, Michigan. This lake is overnight from Chicago by boat—5 hours by train. It connects, by navigable stream, with Lake Michigan. Privacy for the family is assured with these 90 acres through which to romp, with its 1100 feet of water front.

On the house and grounds, during the past 10 years, $80,000 has been spent. The house consists of two large rooms, a large porch, dining room, butler's pantry, kitchen, maids' dining room, lavatory and coat room and large guest room with bath on the first floor.

The second floor has four large bedrooms, two baths, three sleeping porches, three maids' rooms and baths. Electric lights and steam heat. There is a guest house, two large bedrooms and bath. Help's cottage, two rooms with running water, garage for two cars and one room with running water. Barn with six stalls and hay loft. Ice house with capacity of fifty tons of ice. Engine room, laundry, cow shed and loft. Caretaker's house with three rooms and a kitchen. Wood and wagon shed and boathouse.

Furniture, four riding horses, three cows and motor boat may be had with the place. Caretaker in charge, who is willing to remain. Sale necessitated for business reasons which call the owner from the country. Price $40,000. Direct inquiries to

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to card-holders on receipt of postage, in order of application.

"LIFE'S LESSONS: SOME USEFUL TEACHINGS OF EVERY DAY." By Rev. E. Garesche.

Practical hints on daily life. Deals with envy, discouragement, separation, happiness, piety and other similar subjects. The author is a St. Louisan.

"THE POPE AND ITALY." By N. Casacca.

Translated from the Italian by J. A. Hickey. A timely presentation of the papal claim to temporal sovereignty. Traces briefly the history of the papal states from the grants of Pepin and Charlemagne to 1870, when they were taken over by the Italian Government. There is also a copy in the original Italian.

"JOHN MARSHALL AND THE CONSTITUTION." A Chronicle of the Supreme Court. By E. S. Corwin.

During the present discussion of the new State Constitution, this account of the first Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and the establishment of the national judiciary should be of interest. There are chapters on the menace of State rights, tenets of nationalism, and sanctity of contracts.

"MOTION PICTURES FOR COMMUNITY NEEDS." By G. and H. Bollman.

A practical manual of information and suggestions for educational, religious and social work. It is divided into history of movies; problems of exhibiting; suggested programs, and mechanical and legal aspects of presentation. The programs are arranged according to age and subject, with occasional comments on the character of the film.

Bennett's Play on Journalism Will Be Given Tomorrow Night

NEW YORK, April 29.

THE first week of May is to witness two new productions, one of them Arnold Bennett's much heralded newspaper comedy, "What the Public Wants." The list follows:

Monday.

Selwyn—"Partners Again," a new Potash and Perlmutter comedy, by Montague Glass and Jules Eckert Goodman, with Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr reunited in their most congenial roles. In the cast are Adele Rolland, Jennie Moscovitz, Louis Kimball and Lee Kohlmer.

Garrick—"What the Public Wants," a comedy of the newspaper business by Arnold Bennett, presented by the Theater Guild, with Charles Dalton, Margaret Wycherley, Claude King, Louis Calvert, James Wheatley, Stanley Howlett and others.

Belmont — "Le Retour," in French; a comedy drama by Robert de Flers and Francis de Croisset; second of a series of works presented by the French Players.

Tuesday.

Greenwich Village — "Creditors," the Strindberg play which was to have been produced last week.

PHILLPOTS REMAINS THE NOVELIST IN LITERARY DRAMA, "THE SHADOW"

as any actor could who never once suggests that he is a Jew. It is a little like expecting Barney Bernard to give a convincing performance of Old Bill in "The Better 'Ole." Bertha Creighton is good as David's wife, and Sidney Salkowitz, as the son, gives the best performance of any boy actor seen this season. Another conspicuously good performance is that of James R. Waters as Jacob Katzenstein, an old friend of David's from Russia.

Rival for "The Bat."

A NEW mystery drama, "The Charlatan," by Leonard Praskins and Ernest Pascal, was presented Monday night at the Times Square Theater, with Fania Marinoff and Olive Wyndham featured. It is one of these "creepy" affairs that set the audience betting with one another as to who committed the awful murder in the first act. If you can name the guilty party among the fashionably attired group of men and women who attended the gathering in the drawing room of Mason Talbot's Florida home, you deserve to wear a gold badge on the inside of your lapel.

As in "The Bat" a strange sequence of events transpires to cast suspicion now here, now there, but always bearing strongly in the direction of one individual. One would be a perfect fool at any time prior to the last two minutes of the play to suggest a suspicion against the one who actually did it.

Not much of the story should be told. Talbot is amusing his guests by providing a magic entertainment. The puzzle begins when the magician's wife (Fania Marinoff) plans to escape in elopement with her husband's assistant. She arranges to meet her sweetheart in another part of the house immediately after she has taken part in her husband's most important trick—one in which she is placed in a cabinet and made to disappear.

But the beautiful young wife does not keep her appointment. It is found that she still remains in the secret compartment of the cabinet—dead—the victim of a poisoned needle.

Who killed her? There are the jealous husband, a wicked Oriental valet who has hated her, old Talbot's pretty niece (Olive Wyndham), who for some strange reason loves the magician; a doctor (you suspect him fitfully), a District Attorney (too zealous to be straight), and others, each with a reason for being watched.

It may be said that in the end the dead young woman clears up matters through her accused husband's employment of the theory of the return of the spirit and its communication with the living. She comes out of death and points her pretty finger squarely at the person who struck her. The single scene is mounted with great taste.

All the Old Ingredients.

ANOTHER mystery play, "The Night Call," by Adeline Hendricks, was presented by the Players' Assembly, with Helen Lowell, Dodson Mitchell, Brandon Hurst, Elsie Rizer and Nellie Burt in principal parts, at the Frazee Theater, Wednesday night. The author apparently had a desire to create another "The Bat" or "The Charlatan." The Players' Assembly assembled all the thriller properties generally considered necessary in such a production. And when they set off the raging storm outside the great house in which lived the lone girl, the weird whistles and moans in the woods, the murder of the poor girl's fiance in the first act, and the incessant telephone ringing and flashing on and off of lights, the result was only amusing.

There is an old mansion on the New Jersey coast in which an engaged young woman lives alone, her uncle having given her the place as a wedding present. On the night of the play, among other things, her fiance is shot to death on the stairway of her home. Suspicion points to her, and it is supposed from time to time to point toward a half dozen others in the cast.

There are four acts. The solitary interior setting is dignified, and the thunder and lightning are supplied with great regularity.

Susan Glaspell's "Chains of Dew."

A COMEDY in three acts, "Chains of Dew," by Susan Glaspell, was presented Thursday night at the Provincetown Theater. The cast consisted of Marion Berry, Rollo Lloyd, Harmon McGregor, Edward Reese, Louise E. Treadwell, Agnes McCarthy, Josephine Wehn, Eda Heineman, Henry O'Neill and Lillian Ward Grant.

Something was lacking in the hero of the play. If he had had that which he didn't have he would have been a great poet. And something is lacking in Miss Glaspell's comedy. There are times when it seems on the point of being a great play, but in the end it is barely a good one.

The theme is ingenious and searching. "Chains of Dew" is about

We Help You Financially In Two Ways

WE help you pay your debts and finance your business or home by loaning you money at reasonable rates. We loaned over $3,000,000 during 1921, in sums ranging from $25 to $5000. All the security we require is your good reputation and earning ability as endorsed by two of your friends or relatives.

A $100 loan for one year costs $8 interest, deducted in advance, and is repaid in 50 weekly payments of $2 each—or in monthly payments if desired. Larger or smaller loans on the same basis.

WE help you save money by means of our 5% Savings Certificates, which permit you to get five per cent on your savings with perfect safety.

In addition to the regular certificate form, made out for $50 or more, we issue Savings Certificates in passbook form for any sum from $1 up. This enables you to put in or draw out money at any time. The simplicity, ease and safety of this five per cent savings plan make it very popular. Come in and ask us about it or phone or write for descriptive circular.

PHILLPOTS REMAINS THE NOVELIST IN LITERARY DRAMA, "THE SHADOWS"

a poet. Among his little group of radical friends in New York the opinion prevails that Secretary Moore Standish would unquestionably be a good poet if only he could be freed from the environment of his home. They feel that his limitations [illegible] a dull wife, a devoted mother and a position of prominence in a respectable little town in the Middle West.

And so, when he goes back to his chains, his friends follow him. One of them is a young woman agitating for birth-control. She thinks that she can compel Standish to take a position which will force him to break with his wife and his home, and find the freedom which they believe essential to his best work. Much to the surprise of the conspirators, they find his wife sympathetic and enthusiastic about their beliefs. She is eager to defy the smug community in which she lives. It is Standish who is revealed as the prude.

Passion for Sacrifice.

EVENTUALLY the poet's mother reveals the truth about her son, which is that he is addicted to the secret vice of sacrifice. The animating force behind his poetry has been his feeling of martyrdom. He enjoys thinking that his wife is a sweet dunderhead who is holding him back. And so his wife makes a great sacrifice. She abandons all effort to be a person and becomes once more merely a wife and mother, in order to provide the proper atmosphere of oppression which her husband needs in order to write poetry.

This is a rather subtle compound of circumstances and character, and Miss Glaspell seems to have been just a little afraid that her tale would not be clear. In order to make it plain she has adopted the unfortunate device of making Seymour Standish, her poet, a caricature.

In addition, some of the symbols which Miss Glaspell has seized upon are too convenient. Bobbed hair no longer is regarded, even in the Middle West, as a synonym for criminal anarchy.

Agnes McCarthy, as the poet's mother, gave an unusually fine performance.

Pageant to Walt Whitman's Poem, "Salut au Monde."

WHEN Charles T. Griffes died in April, 1920, he was at work upon the incidental music for a pageant arrangement of Walt Whitman's poem, "Salut au Monde," to be given at a spring festival at the Neighborhood Playhouse. The young composer's sudden death necessitated an indefinite postponement of the festival, as his score, although virtually complete, was in the form of sketches and rough notes that were not readily decipherable.

Edmund Rickett, who was commissioned by the directors of the Playhouse to put the score in shape for performance, copied out Griffes's rough drafts, amplifying them where necessary, and arranged the music for an ensemble of wind instruments, harps, percussion and piano, in accordance with the indications made by the composer. The completed work received its first performance Sunday night at the Neighborhood Playhouse, the small orchestra being recruited from George Barrere's "Barrere Ensemble" and "Little Symphony."

"Salut au Monde," described in the program as "a festival," is a sort of intimate pageant based upon Whitman's great poem. The principal speaker, the poet, communes with unseen voices and in response to their questioning describes the people on earth as he sees them. His visions are shown upon the stage, appearing through a circular opening at the back that gives the stage picture an effect of things seen in a crystal ball.

Five Periods of Art.

THE festival is divided into three parts. Part I, in two scenes, illustrates in a series of pantomimic processions the miserable and happy sides of life. Part II contains five scenes which illustrate in music, pantomime and dance five manifestations of the religious impulse—the Hebrew, the Hindu, the Greek, the Mohammedan and the Christian. Part III shows the procession of mankind toward something higher and wiser than itself.

As absolute music, Griffes's score would not be of great importance, for the composer was content to subordinate his accompaniment absolutely to the action and speech of the players. In view of the small instrumental and choral forces at his command, this was probably the wisest thing he could have done, and his music fits the mood of the pageant so unobtrusively and well that even when it goes virtually unheard it is a valuable adjunct to the stage action.

The most interesting part of the performance, musically, was the second, with its five symbolic religious scenes, which embodied not only Griffes' music, but authentic chants and dances gathered from Hebrew, Hindu, Arabic, Greek and Gregorian sources.

Ian Maclaren played the important role of the Poet, arrayed in striking resemblance of Walt Whitman himself, and read the lines of the poem with a sonorous beauty and simplicity that helped the mood of the whole performance immeasurably. The scenic effects, which were obtained for the most part by an ingenious use of lights, were remarkably convincing, the dancers and singers showed signs of having had excellent training, and the entire production had beauty and an impressive spaciousness of mood that quite transcended the bounds of the tiny playhouse. The festival will be repeated every Saturday and Sunday night for the next three weeks.

The Guitrys Are Coming!

THE Guitrys—Lucien Guitry, generally considered the leading French actor living; Sacha, his son, author of "Deburau," and Yvonne Printemps, Sacha's dainty wife, will appear at Selwyn Theater on next Christmas evening with "Deburau," in French. Members of the Comedie Francaise, the national theater founded by Napoleon, will form their company.

On Monday night "Back to Methuselah," at the Garrick, will enter upon the final week of its career. In a nine weeks' run it will have been performed 25 times. * * * Nearly $18,000 was realized at a benefit given last Sunday night at the Apollo Theater for Rose Coghlan, who was stricken a month ago after half a century on the stage. A letter of thanks from Miss Coghlan was read by Elsie Ferguson. Ed Wynne acted as master of ceremonies, many prominent personages of the stage took part, and programs and flowers were sold in the lobby by a score of well-known actresses.

James Forbes, author of "The Chorus Lady" and "The Famous Mrs. Fair," has sold a new play called "The Endless Chain." It is a present-day story, with New York for locale. George M. Cohan is assembling a cast for a recent play by Arthur Goodrich, entitled "How Very American." * * * San Antonio, Tex., is to be the scene of the try-out of a play, "Dona Maria," by Jose Codina, which is scheduled to make its appearance in New York next fall. The Texas premiere will occur next Monday night. * * * It turns out that the popular young actress, Margalo Gillmore, is a granddaughter of Patrick Sarsfield Gillmore, the famous bandmaster.

GOSSIP OF INTEREST FROM BRITISH ISLES

Notable American Visitors in London—Unusual Number of Murders in England.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 29.—Not since 1919 has London had, at one time, such numbers of notable American visitors as in the last fortnight. They have included diplomats, pugilists, motion picture heroines and producers, financiers, university professors, athletes and leaders of industry and commerce.

The diplomats perhaps have been the most numerous, as there has been a parade recently of newly-appointed Ambassadors through London on their way to European capitals, as well as diplomats of lesser rank transferred to new posts.

There are well-defined evidences that this year will see the American tourist business equaling or even excelling the pre-war records.

Thrice since the armistice the railway and steamship companies, hotels and tradesmen have heralded a recurrence of the old-time avalanches of American summer-time visitors and thrice the rushes have failed to materialize, but the indications are that they will not fail this time.

A Canadian steamship sailed from England a few days ago with 500 passengers, of whom more than 400 were Americans returning home by way of Canada, after visiting the continent. The sponsors of the "brighter London" movement claim to be partly responsible for the increased number of travelers making the return trip from the continent through England.

Scotland Yard is engaged in the suppression of one of London's periodical crime waves. There has been an unusual number of homicides in London and various parts of England, recently, and several of those in the metropolitan district have been marked by almost fiendish brutality.

In addition, evidence adduced at the inquest into the death of a young dance hall instructress, who committed suicide by taking an overdose of cocaine, provided the newspapers with material for columns of "dope traffic revelations" which already have resulted in police raids on several night dancing clubs and other places suspected of illicit traffic in liquor and drugs.

The vigilance of Scotland Yard inspectors and customs officials has resulted in prison terms lately for several persons found in the possession of cocaine, morphine and other habit-forming drugs.

Clever hiding places used by drug smugglers and discovered by the authorities include hollow heels in women's shoes, specially constructed hollow crucifixes and other jewelry and even Bibles with pages cut away in the center of the book. The customs officials frankly admit their inability to cope with the traffic unless every article of each travelers' wearing apparel and baggage is minutely examined, so the police are concentrating their efforts on the districts and places believed to provide markets for the drug peddlers.

A curious fact developed by the investigation is that the West End now harbors the most of London's drug addicts instead of the formerly notorious East End, or Chinatown, which the police cleared of opium smugglers and other objectionable persons a year or so ago.

The Government is working hard in an endeavor to adjust the differences between the members of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, who were locked out seven weeks ago, and their employers, thus avoiding an extension of the most recent labor dispute to include 1,000,000 men. Unless a settlement is effected this number will be locked out by the end of the present week, as notices to 46 unions were posted several days ago by the employing associations.

The peculiar fascination which the wedding presents to a Princess hold, especially for women and girls, is evidenced by the long lines of curious persons that still may be seen daily moving through the state rooms of St. James Palace, where Princess Mary's gifts were placed on exhibition several weeks ago. As there is an admission charge of one shilling and it is estimated that at least 125,000 have visited the display, the charities designated to receive the funds will benefit to the extent of £6000 and upwards. Present indications are that it will be several more weeks before the public's desire to see the royal bride's treasure hall is fully gratified.

All public interest in the work of the session of Parliament that began Wednesday, appears to be concentrated on the budget, which Sir Robert Horne, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, will present Monday. There is a great demand from business organizations and taxpayers generally for a reduction of the income tax, based on the argument that the present tax places a crushing burden on business. The demand for this reduction comes mainly from that great body of taxpayers which pays shillings in the pound, every 30 per cent of the income.

An agitation has been conducted by the newspapers for some time for a general reduction of the income tax by one shilling in the pound and a number of the papers are printing forms of petitions for subscribers to fill in and forward to members of Parliament.

The movement for lowered taxes is not confined to the income tax, but extends to three commodities, tea, sugar and beer, which are consumed by virtually the whole population and which bear a great burden of taxation.

DR. W. O. COFFEE

Successful With Many Cases of Deafness, Head Noises and Catarrh.

Dr. W. O. Coffee, the noted specialist, has originated an original and remarkable treatment for the successful treatment of deafness, dullness of hearing, head noises, ulcers of the ears and catarrh of the nose, head, throat, tonsils and system. He says if the tissues of the middle ear are not injured, if one ear is quite bad and the other just started, if it gets better and worse with each cold, as a rule it can be helped or completely relieved, also the head noises. He says catarrh is a constitutional condition and must be treated through the system as well as the nose, head and throat. That most cases of diseased tonsils and diseased turbinated bones can be successfully treated, without an operation. He has treated over 20,000 cases. He offers to examine and treat any new cases that he thinks he can help one time free, to show that you have never tried anything like it. This costs you nothing. J. R. Meyers of East St. Louis had catarrh, deafness and head noises for 20 years; was completely cured by this treatment. Alexander Glenn suffered with catarrh for 35 years, deafness and head noises 3 years; 70 years old; was completely cured with this treatment. P. V. Krone had catarrh, asthma, terrible smothering spells, constant cough; was completely cured. J. C. Patterson had catarrh, deafness, head noises for 8 years; was 86 years old; was completely cured. Dr. Coffee has had 38 years' experience, is the author of several books and pamphlets on the treatment of deafness, head noises and catarrh and eye diseases by his non-surgical method, is absolutely responsible. He removes adenoids and polypus tumors without chloroform at his office. If you are wearing glasses not suited to your eyes, or need your eyes tested and examined for weak eyes, floating spots or eye strain, he will examine your eyes free. His son, W. E. Coffee, assists him; an expert optometrist. Dr. Coffee is in his St. Louis offices every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Phone Olive 8413 for special engagement. Hours from 9 to 4:30 p. m. Office rooms, 409 Odd Fellows Bldg., 816 Olive st. If you cannot come to St. Louis write him for his pamphlets on catarrh, deafness, cross-eyes and eye diseases.

To Absorb Freckles And Other Blemishes

Every spring numerous inquiries are made by girls seeking some reliable recipe for removing freckles. Very favorable reports have been received from many who have used ordinary mercolized wax during the freckling season. The wax seems to possess unusual properties which completely absorb the freckles, with no harmful effect whatever. The complexion improves wonderfully, becoming as soft as a rose petal and as delicately tinted. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at any druggist's, spread a thin layer of it over the entire face every night for a while, washing this off in the morning. For rough, spotty skin, sallowness, blackheads, pimples, moth patches, liver spots and all cutaneous blemishes, this treatment is superior to any other.

FAMOUS OLD PRESCRIPTION FOR RHEUMATISM

From coast to coast the fame of a wonderful treatment for rheumatism has spread, until it is now estimated that the 50,000 drug stores in the United States each fill this prescription an average of eleven times in a year, making a grand total of 550,000 bottles of medicine consumed by those who suffer from rheumatism.

This indicates efficacy in no uncertain manner, for it is a truism that merit is its own best salesman. Even the medical fraternity, always skeptical, now admit the most proficient utilize this splendid formula in their daily practice, as most any well-stocked druggist can supply the ingredients, which long ago became staples of the drug trade.

The formula, as quoted by a licensed physician, is as follows:

R 2040

Iodide Potash	2 drs.
Soda Salicylate	4 drs.
Wine Colchicum	4 drs.
Comp. Ess. Cardiol	1 oz.
Comp. Fl. Balmwort	1 oz.
Elix. Lactated Pepsin, ad. q. s.	8 oz.

Mix. Take 1 teaspoonful after each meal and when retiring.

This is a constitutional blood treatment, consequently must be taken over a considerable period of time.

NOTE: To subdue the acute pains of rheumatism, it is suggested the patient procure 5-grain Su-thol tablets, and take as directed on carton. Immediate relief of pain should follow and the liquid formula ultimately overcomes the dreadful affliction.

Distress!

Kidney — Bladder Trouble

"For two years I had suffered from disorders of the kidneys and bladder. Distressing pain in the back and hips. My ankles swelled and my skin became dry and harsh. After using Balmwort Tablets I noticed relief and continued taking, until now I feel wholly relieved of pain and suffering. I am glad to recommend Balmwort Tablets as a most reliable beneficial medicine."

Thus writes Mr. W. E. Goff, prominently connected with the D. L. & W. R. R., Syracuse, N. Y., just one of thousands who have found

Presenting St. Louisans With Furniture Values That Have Neve

If the Furniture department of Rothschild's of Chicago can sell over $179,000 worth of Furniture in one day, can a St. Louis Furniture store sell $100,000 worth of Furniture in one week? We say it can be done and if there is any merit in offering Homefurnishings at lowest prices ever before quoted we'll "put it across" easily. We are establishing this occasion as an annual event and the success of all our future "$100,000 One Week" Sales depends upon the bargains and the quality of the merchandise offered in this our first attempt, also the manner in which we live up to each and every statement in this advertisement.

CHORAL SYMPHONY OF BEETHOVEN TO BE SUNG MAY 31

St. Louis Massenchor and Symphony Orchestra Will Present Monumental "Ninth" at Coliseum.

NEARLY 800 VOICES IN HUGE ENSEMBLE

Production Expected to Excel in Magnitude Any Previous Performance of Work in America.

The most momentous musical announcement of recent years is that the St. Louis Massenchor, supported by the Symphony Orchestra, will present at the Coliseum, on the evening of May 31, Beethoven's Ninth or "Choral" symphony, which authorities proclaim as the sublimest tonal composition ever penned. With a chorus of nearly 800 voices, this promises to surpass in magnitude any production of the Ninth Symphony ever given in America. The work has not been heard in this city for many years.

The symphony is named "Choral" because, at the end of the third movement, a baritone solo voice breaks in upon the instruments with a recitative, which leads to a fourth movement in which the orchestra is reinforced by a chorus, singing Schiller's famous poem, "Ode to Joy." This was the last, and to many, the greatest, of Beethoven's series of immortal symphonies.

Hugo Anschuetz, director of the Massenchor, will conduct the performance, and rehearsals are already in progress. The organization, composed of male and female voices chosen from various German and Swiss singing societies, has given two concerts at the Coliseum. The movements of the symphony are as follows:

I. Allegro, ma non troppo, un poco maestoso.
II. Scherzo: Molto vivace.
III. Adagio molto e cantabile.
IV. Allegro assai. Quartet and chorus.

Towards the conclusion of the third movement there comes a strident fanfare which is one of the harmonic curiosities of music, inasmuch as it contains every one of the seven notes of the diatonic scale. A few moments later the composition bursts the bounds of absolute music, and a solo baritone sings:

"O friends, not in these tones, but in more grateful and joyous notes let us our voices raise."

Chorus Shouts "Joy!"

To which a quartet of soloists and then the chorus responds with a shout of "Joy! Joy!" the opening words of Schiller's ode:

"Freude, schoener Goetterfunken,
Tochter aus Elysium,
Wir betreten feuertrunken,
Himmlische, dein Heiligthum."

There is a march section, which introduces the theme in a new rhythmical disguise, and against which the chorus sings an elaborate counterpoint. The orchestra continues the development in ecstatic joy, building up a climax at the height of which the voices again enter in solid harmony. The chorus continues to the end through variations which rise ever higher to an apotheosis of triumphant joy.

Beethoven, from the early twenties, was fascinated by Schiller's poem. There is a trace of the beginning of a "Schiller Overture," with a setting of the first words of the ode. The final chorus, in his opera "Fidelio," is sung to a well-known verse of the poem:

"Who hath won a noble woman,
Let him join our jubilee."

The "Choral" Symphony was completed in 1823, and was first performed at Vienna, on May 7, 1824. Beethoven had then become totally deaf, and it was on this occasion that Mme. Ungher, the contralto soloist, turned Beethoven around—he was conducting—so that he might "see" the applause.

2467 CARED FOR IN YEAR BY CATHOLIC CHARITIES HERE

Benevolences Were Carried Out by 13 Institutions in City at Cost of $350,000.

The eleventh annual report of Catholic charities of St. Louis, to be read this afternoon at a conference at the Odeon, shows that 2467 persons were cared for in 1921 in homes for the aged and for dependent children at a cost of $350,267.71, of which $122,780 was in salaries.

There are 13 such institutions in the city. The largest are St. Ann's Foundling Asylum, which expended $86,400, and the Convent of the Good Shepherd, which expended $64,722.

Charity work in eight Catholic hospitals was conducted at a cost of $261,343. Philanthropic "hotels" and institutions aiding poor but furnishing no permanent home cared for 3290 persons at a cost of $42,612.16.

The Catholic Women's League, Ladies of Charity, Society of St. Vincent de Paul and the White Cross Crusade, spent $61,919.97 in helping 15,740 persons in 2475 families. Free dispensaries treated 19,930 persons. The total number of poor aided by organizations is reported as 80,771. The net cost of charity work was $717,742.99, plus an estimate of $150,795 salaries for religious workers, if salaries were paid.

100% PURE
Martin's Varnish
Do you know the difference between ordinary and 100% pure varnish?

Probably not—yet you may be paying the price of a pure varnish without getting the superior results which only a pure varnish gives.

The next time you varnish woodwork or floors—whether you do the work or have your painter do it—use Martin's 100% Pure Varnishes. Note how much farther the varnish goes—the increased beauty of the finish—the brilliance and lasting quality of the lustre—the resistance to wear—all, the result of pure gums, oils and turpentine without adulterants like benzine and rosin.

If you have any difficulty in obtaining Martin's Varnishes, write us for name of nearest dealer

FEDERAL RESERVE EARNINGS FOR 1921 WERE $3,205,065

Decrease of $2,050,590 in Net Earnings as Compared to 1920 Noted—$270,253 in Dividends Paid.

SHARP DECLINE SHOWN IN ROUTINE ACTIVITY

483 National and 105 State Concerns Made Up Membership of St. Louis Institution at End of Year.

At the end of 1921, 483 national banks and 105 State banks and trust companies were members of the St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank, according to the annual report of the bank for 1921, which has just been made public.

The report, issued by William McC. Martin, Federal Reserve agent and chairman of the board, showed a greatly reduced business volume, lower commodity prices and smaller credit needs, reflected in sharp declines in items representing the routine activities of the bank.

Gross earnings were $5,166,315 and current expenses $1,961,250, leaving net earnings of $3,205,065, a decrease of $2,050,590 as compared with the year before. Dividends amounting to $270,253 were paid during the year, and $1,639,109 were paid into the United States Treasury as a franchise tax. The amount transferred to surplus was $1,042,564.

Paper Chief Revenue Source.

The chief source of revenue was paper discounted for member banks, and this item showed a radical slump as compared with the total of 1920. During the year 80,820 items totaling $1,609,023,938 of paper were discounted by the St. Louis institution and its branches, a decrease of $829,016,774 under the amount discounted in the preceding year.

The total resources of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis decreased from $263,102,000 on Dec. 31, 1920 to $213,487,000 on Dec. 31, 1921. Between these dates the earning assets decreased from $133,308,000 to $71,204,000 and Federal Reserve notes in circulation fell from $135,785,000 to $95,246,000.

These movements were accompanied by a heavy gain in reserves, this item standing at $88,876,000 on eDc. 31, 1920, and at $106,641,000 on the last day of 1921. Throughout the year the reserve position was progressively strong, December marking the period of its greatest strength. On Jan. 3, 1921, the reserve carried against Federal reserve note and deposit liabilities was 44.8 per cent, while on Dec. 12 it had reached 69.5 per cent.

At no time during the year did the normal discount rates of the bank exceed 6 per cent. On May 21 the progressive discount rate was modified, and on June 23 completely abolished.

Service to Members Increased.

While figures representing financial movements disclose a heavy decrease, statistics reflecting services of the bank to its member banks show gains. During 1921 the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis handled 33,997,778 checks through its clearing department, representing $5,605,464,501, an increase of 2,307,210 in number, but a decline of $2,039,135,641 in amount, as compared with the year before. The average number of items handled daily was 113,326. In point of number of checks handled, 1921 established a new high record.

The reserve bank during 1921 also handled 130,952 collection items, such as notes, drafts, etc., amounting to $190,104,225, which compared with 90,593 items amounting to $180,848,903 in 1920. The average item handled in 1921 was approximately $1451, against $1960 in 1920, and $2538 in 1919. Transfers of funds made for member banks totaled $1,119,204,570.

Supplying of member banks with paper currency and coin constituted an important part of the bank's activities. Paying out, receiving and redeeming paper currency during the 12 months involved the count of approximately 50,000,000 individual notes. Paying out and receiving gold and silver coin, which service was formerly performed largely by the Subtreasury, now is entirely in the hands of the Federal reserve bank. All the duties of fiscal agent of the United States in this district were performed by the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, it having completed the process of taking over the St. Louis Subtreasury Jan. 8.

ALL CAN'T HAVE NEW UNIFORMS

Only Part of French Army Will Get Khaki at Once.

PARIS, April 12.—It will require 10 years to clothe all the French troops in khaki, despite the efforts of the Higher Council of War to equip all branches of the French army with uniforms of that color as quickly as possible.

The delay is due to the fact that the Ministry of War has enough horizon blue and steel gray cloth on hand to equip some branches of the service for 10 years, and those stocks must continue to wear horizon blue adopted. Therefore, the home troops must continue to wear harizon blue and the unmounted chasseurs steel gray, while colonial and African troops will at once receive khaki uniforms.

Was this Girl Marked for Destruction?

What was the web that unseen hands were weaving about her?

Had she—Carmel Lee—all unwittingly found the key to the mystery of a great man's life?

Would she be permitted to unlock the forbidden door and reveal to the world the horrid secret that had been kept hidden through the years?

Was Abner Fownes' the guiding mind in a terrifying conspiracy to do away with Carmel Lee?

Hers is the story—filled with the thrill of new adventure—that is being told in THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE by Clarence Budington Kelland, under the title "Contraband." Everyone who read his earlier novel, "Conflict," or has since seen it on the screen, will want to read "Contraband." It is an amazing story of this day—this hour—and as such will be a revelation to thousands.

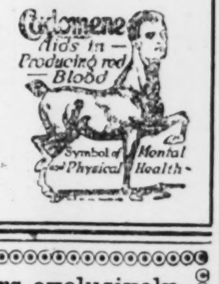
"Certainly Did Wonders For Me"

Mrs. A. E. Hager, 909 London Road, Duluth, Minn., writes: "I have been taking your Cadomene tablets for the past month. They certainly did wonders for me, as I was so nervous I wasn't able to do my own housework; so sick and miserable. Now I can do all my own work and feel good all the time. My daughter and her husband have also been taking them, and they helped wonderfully."



Cadomene Aids in—Producing red Blood
Symbol of Mental and Physical Health

Cadomene should be taken by any one who has symptoms of impoverished blood and deranged nerves and the following: Nervousness, sleeplessness, irritability, nervous indigestion, headache, backache, cold extremities, a general run-down or worn-out condition of the system. Cadomene supplies iron and phosphorus with other tonics that build up blood and Nerve Force. Take them and see how quickly they bring astonishing benefit to your deranged nervous system. All good druggists sell them. Ask for Cad-o-mene tablets.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

$300,000 PAINTING BY REMBRANDT ON VIEW HERE A WEEK

"Woman With a Bible" and Group of 33 Original Drawings on Display at Art Museum Today.

COLLECTION LOANED BY NEW YORK FIRM

The Drawings, Which Cover Variety of Subjects, Were Made Quickly as Sketches for Paintings.

The City Art Museum in Forest Park is exhibiting today in gallery 32 an unusual group of works by Rembrandt, embracing a large and important painting entitled, "Woman With a Bible," and a group of 33 original drawings. All are lent by the firm of Duveen Brothers of New York City.

The painting is a notable example and is valued at $300,000 by the owners. Because of its importance and the unwillingness of the owners to have it away from their galleries for a longer period, it will remain on view in St. Louis for only one week.

The Rembrandt drawings, which are from the Marsden J. Perry collection, will be on view at the museum until the end of May. Most of these drawings were not made as an end in themselves, but were quick, intimate sketches from nature or studies for paintings and etchings. Except in one or two instances they have no detailed finish, the whole effort of the artist being to present form and action in the mist direct and effective manner with a few vigorous and summary strokes. They have been called "direct transcriptions of nature" in the simplest technique at the artist's disposal. They are drawn in various tones of brown, bistre and indian ink, usually with a blunt reed pen. The later ones show the use of broad, simple washes in the same tones, applied with a brush.

Some of the Subjects.

Among the subjects which are typical examples of Rembrandt's direct and incisive manner of drawing are "Woman With a Child in Her Arms," at one time in the collection of Horace Walpole; "God Father Appearing to Abraham," a remarkable work of about 1660; "An Oriental," from the collection of the Earl of Warwick; "Abraham and Sarah," from the collection of Sir William Baillie, and "Lot and His Family Fleeing From Sodom," a very delicate drawing of about 1650-52. Several of the drawings, such as "Christ Before Pilate," dating from about 1665, have other studies on the back of the paper and some have specimens of Rembrandt's handwriting. They appear to have been made upon any scraps of paper which the artist had convenient in his studio. A "Portrait of Saskia," the wife of Rembrandt, dating from about 1633-34, is the most carefully and elaborately finished drawing in the collection. It is executed in red crayon and was a study for the painting, "Lady With Fan," in Buckingham Palace. It has not lost in vigor or expressiveness through having been elaborated.

"Hundred Guilders Print."

Among the drawings in the collection which the artist made preparatory to executing other works are a study for a figure in the celebrated "Hundred Guilders Print;" "Jacob's Dream," a study for the etching, and "Jacob Blessing His Children," a study for the painting of the same subject in the Cassel Gallery. A drawing of Judas after having offered the 30 pieces of silver to the High Priest, is of interest because made upon the paper with the watermark of a fool's cap and bells, the same paper upon which many of Rembrandt's finest etchings were made. The collection shows Rembrandt's mastery of incisive drawing, his power to grasp the vital significance of his subject and to express it in a few telling lines, without mannerism or affectation.

The exhibitions of work by the students of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts and of sculpture by Albert Laessle will conclude today. They will be removed tomorrow to make place for a large collection of mural paintings by American artists.

Y. W. C. A. TO OPEN LIFE-SAVING CLASS FOR SWIMMERS

Miss Hazel Graves to Conduct Classes at the Pool for Beginners and Also for Children.

The Young Women's Christian Association will open a swimmers' life-saving class Wednesday evening. It is a preventive measure on the part of the association, with the hope of preparing women to act in case of accident to inexperienced swimmers this summer. The class will be held at 7 o'clock every Wednesday evening.

Miss Hazel Graves will direct the Y. W. swimming activities this summer, and the season's classes will open tomorrow, with morning, afternoon and evening classes divided into groups for beginners, intermediate and advanced swimmers. There will also be classes every Saturday morning for children and private lessons for both women and children.

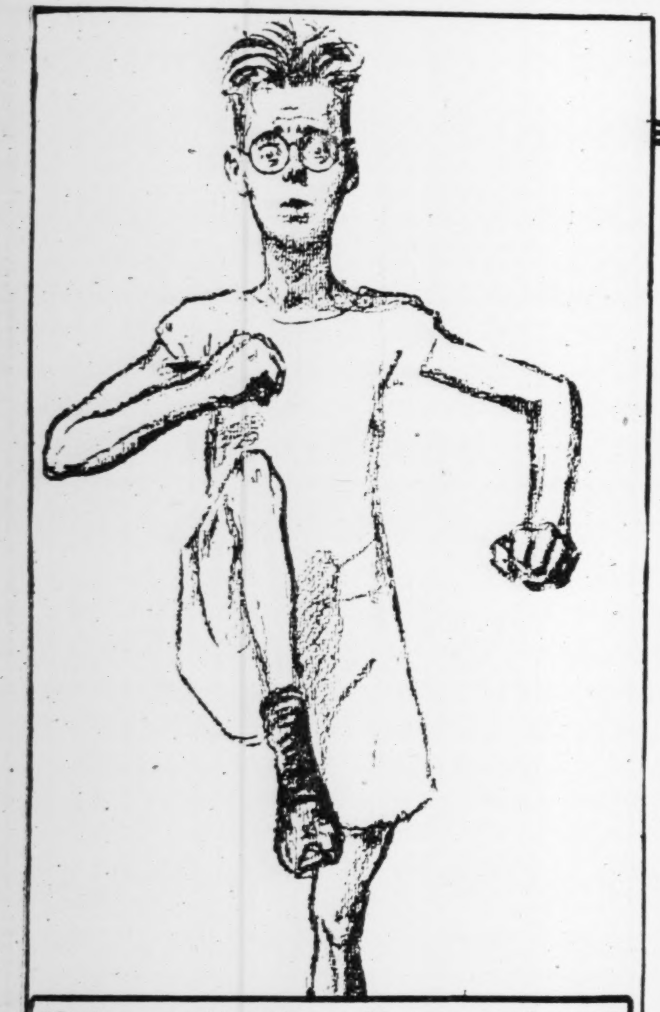
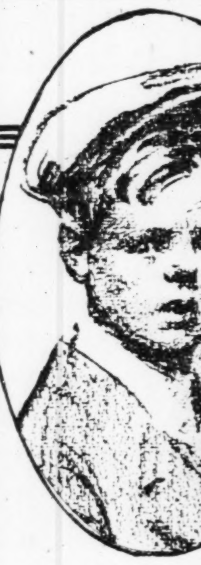
SPRING IN THE AIR

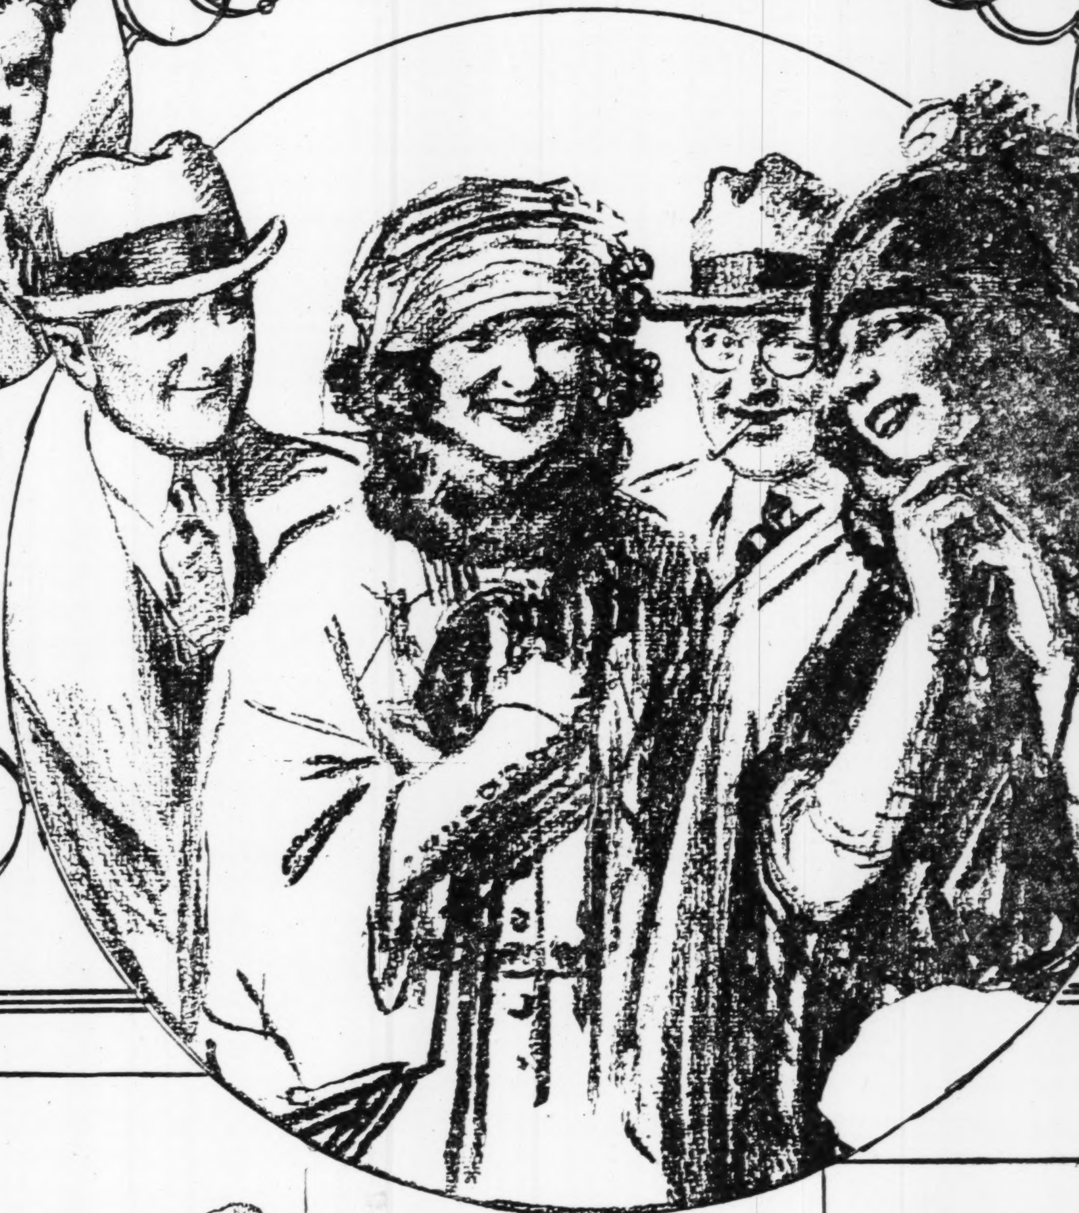
By W. E. Hill



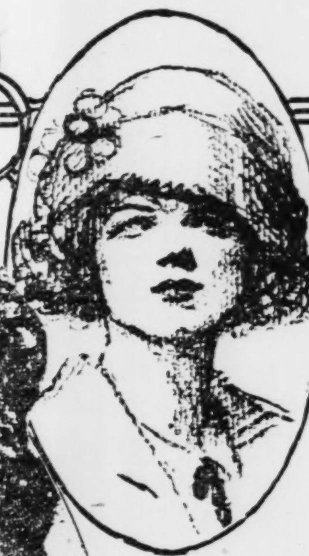
"Spring, gentle spring, with your smiles and laughing wiles," is responsible for a lot of things. For instance, there's the spring athlete. Spring gets into his blood and he gets restless. Feels he ought to go out and try for the college track team. Here he is with a couple of corks, warming up before the hundred-yard dash in the preliminary tryouts.



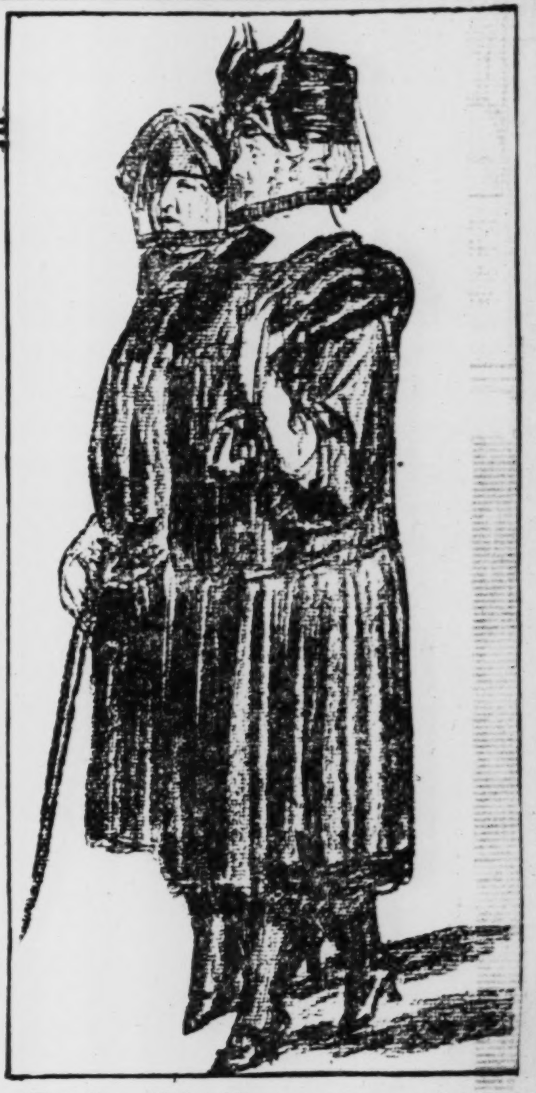
Enter the baseball fan. "Him? Aw, he ain't got a chance! Lookit him on the Southern trip!"



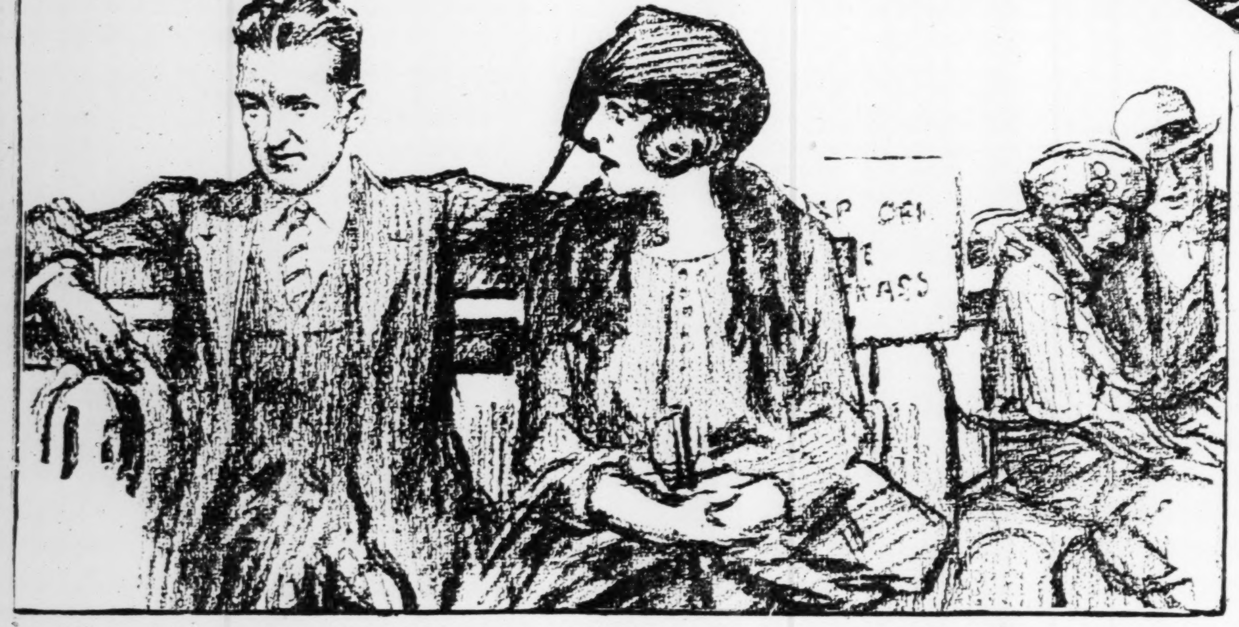
There's something in the spring air that simply makes it impossible for two beautiful girls and two dashing young men to stroll very far along a park byway without pairing off—a fella and a girl, a fella and a girl. If the girls are ahead, sooner or later they just have to slow up—they get tired. And then somehow they get looking back to see if they have come as far as they think they have—you know how it is. And then the young men, before anyone has time to say "boo"—not that anyone would want to say it—are right alongside. By that time there's nothing to do but get acquainted. Besides, as Reina—on the right—is saying: "We saw right away you boys was college fellas, so we knew it was all right." Girls like Reina are so particular about having culture all around them, you know.



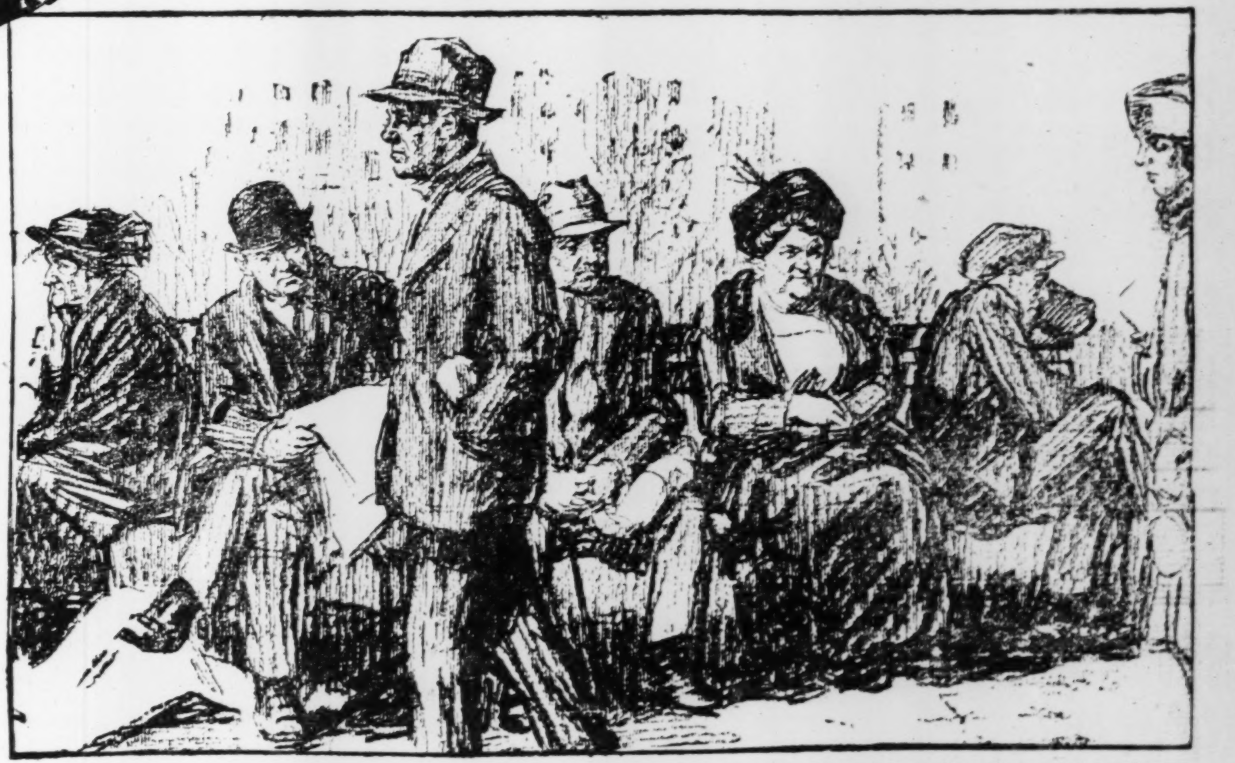
Jessie, the busy stenog., is going to be late at the office this morning—very late. Here's hoping the boss has nothing of grave import to dictate. There's a hat sale at the Petite Shop.



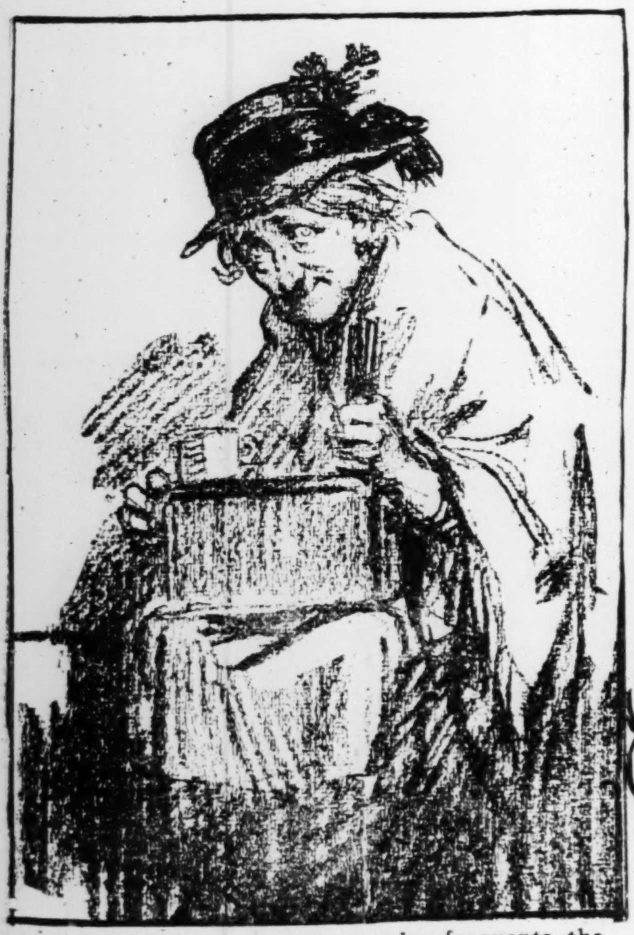
Two beautiful widows out to mourn on a sunny spring afternoon. "I thought, Mabel, you wouldn't mind looking at gowns with me. I need some sort of a little lavender dinner gown for Watch Hill." Mabel will be charmed to go along; yes, indeed.



It's open season again for the park benches. All the way along the path leading to the merry-go-round, or the monkey house, you will see, on a mild Sunday afternoon, benches occupied by assorted couples—the engaged ones, those who ought to be, and those who wish they had never entered into that blissful state.

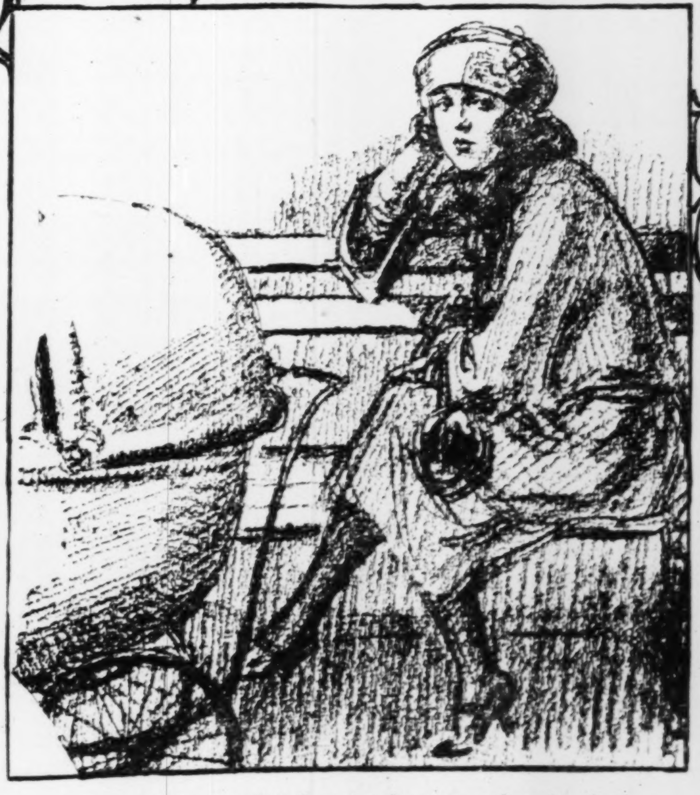


The bench brigade in any city square showing spring fever getting in its deadly work. The laboring gentleman walking past is a pessimist and wouldn't be a bit surprised to have it blow up raw and cold with possible snow tomorrow.

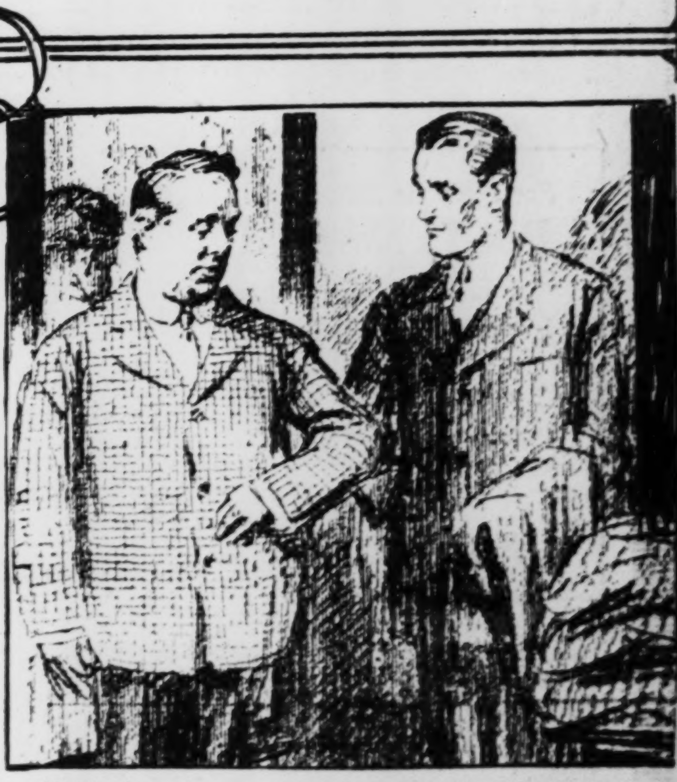


The elderly lady mendicant who frequents the crowded corner on bright spring days dispensing sweet music and pencils. (The hand organ is minus a great many of the notes necessary to the sextet from "Lucia.") The E. L. M. has a sad, sweet, brave smile that would be a lot sadder and sweeter if the lady's nose was just a little bit less red.

Along with the first robin and the first cowslip comes the "important conference" excuse. "If anyone calls up, Harry, say I've got an important conference on." Thus speaks the poor tired business man as he makes an early getaway with his bag of golf clubs.



Young mother and baby out for an airing in the park. The baby is awfully cute, and he is a pretty baby. Just the same, it would be nice if right now he were 21 and had a good job selling automobiles.



With the advent of gentle spring the short, stout man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of loud checks. Sometimes their wives dissuade them. And sometimes honest salesmen lead them away from the pile of shepherd's plaids and over to the dark blue serges.

THEIR HONEYMOON SPENT IN AIRPLANE WAS AN IDEAL ONE

So Said Maj.-Gen. Sir F. H. Sykes, Head of Civil Aviation in England Who Flew to Scotland With Bride.

5694 PASSENGERS MADE LONDON-PARIS FLIGHT

Arplane Trips Becoming as Commonplace as Taxicab Rides—Scot Tips Pilot Sixpence.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20 Cockspur st., London, S. W.
Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, April 25.—"The only way to thoroughly enjoy a honeymoon is in the air. I acted on this belief for my bride and I flew to Scotland."

So said Major-General Sir Frederick H. Sykes, Comptroller-General of Civil Aviation, at a birthday celebration—the daily Paris-London Air Service has been running under the Government subsidy for just one year. The anniversary was celebrated at a luncheon in the Hotel Cecil given the two companies working on the route—the Handley-Page and the Instone Air Lines. A third, the Daimler Hire Co., is about to start a service and big developments are expected before long.

One Year of Air Service.

An encouraging summary of the first year's results was given by Lord Gorell, the Under Secretary for Air. During the year 1838 British machines havee flown between London and Paris carrying 5694 passengers, and 1520 French machines have carried 4428 passengers. Not only have British machines carried 1266 more passengers than the French, but the average number of passengers for each machine works out at 3.4 for the British and 2.4 for the French. The two French companies have performed 50 per cent more flights and carried 20 per cent less passengers than the British firms. The carrying of 10,000 passengers by the companies of both countries is considered fairly satisfactory for a start.

The position in regard to the carriage of goods is not so satisfactory to Britain. In the last seven months the French companies have carried 53 tons and the two British companies only 18.

Commonplace Now.

"The London-Paris service has done a great deal to encourage in the British mind the sense of flying," said Lord Gorell. "People are beginning to think that flying is ordinary, and when they think so, civil aviation will go right ahead. I know of a man who considered flying so commonplace that when he landed at Le Bourget he gave the pilot sixpence. The passenger was probably a Scot, and as he had been as comfortable as he would in a taxi, he seems to have thought for a moment he was in a taxi. And there was the lady who chartered an airplane to fly to Harrogate. On descending she said to the pilot: 'Wait, please.'"

Sir S. Instone praised the Air Ministry for its wonderfully accurate weather reports, to which he ascribed the immunity from accidents. He said that Germany is making great strides in the air, and that England ought to be making much use of her present opportunities for expansion if she is not to be cut out of routes in the future.

20,000 Passengers Next Year.

F. Handley-Page mentioned that his company had flown 70,000 miles during the first seven months, and that the cost of breakage had been only £150. He pointed out that the French were embarking on important long-distance flights, and he wanted to see British aviation developing till the air became the great empire highway. He thought that the development would be much faster if these experimental flights were not left to the Military Air Force.

He also wanted an "interior air line" in this country.

"We have got to get 20,000 passengers next year," he said, "or we shall go under."

At the London Air Station, Croydon, the rate for hiring an airplane "taxi" carrying three passengers in addition to the pilot is to be reduced to 2 shillings a mile for flights in any direction at a moment's notice. This fare reduction is made possible by providing especially economical machines, which carry two air passengers "inside" and one "outside" with the pilot. So an individual passenger, one of a party of three to hire an "air taxi," will be obtaining transport at 100 miles an hour for a cost of only eightpence a mile.

W. U. Societies to Hold Banquet.

The annual joint gathering of Sigma Xi and Phi Beta Kappa societies of Washington University will take place next Thursday at 11:30 a. m., in Graham Memorial chapel, University campus, and the dinner will be at 7 p. m., at the Washington Hotel, King's highway and Washington boulevard. At the morning meeting Dr. Daniel Trembly MacDougal, director of the desert laboratory of the Carnegie Institution at Tucson, Ariz., will deliver an address on "Modern Conceptions of the Physical Basis of Life."

Beginning Tomorrow

CONGOLEUM WEEK

Big Bargains in America's Most Popular Floor-Covering

TOMORROW, Monday morning, begins one of the greatest floor-covering events in the city's history—a six-day sale of the nationally-advertised, guaranteed GOLD-SEAL Congoleum.

All the stores named below, and many others throughout the city, have joined together and, by special arrangement with the manufacturer, offer genuine GOLD-SEAL Congoleum Art-Rugs, and GOLD-SEAL Congoleum By-the-Yard at lower prices than these popular floor-coverings have been sold in years.

Record Low Prices for This Week Only

Don't forget that these special bargain prices are for this week only. After next Saturday, regular prices will again be in force.

If you already know the wonderful qualities of GOLD-SEAL Congoleum, you will need no urging to take advantage of these bargain prices. If you have never had Congoleum in your home—don't miss this great opportunity to prove to yourself, at little expense, the many advantages of these beautiful, sanitary floor-coverings.

GOLD-SEAL Congoleum is the modern printed floor-covering. It possesses many unique advantages.

Beautiful Patterns—The patterns, both in variety of color and design, are the most artistic you can possibly imagine. There are charming colorings for all the rooms of the house—neat tile and wood-block designs for kitchen and bathroom; more fanciful ones for bedrooms, dining-room and living-room.

Sanitary, Easy to Clean—Dust and dirt—even spilled grease and liquids—cannot penetrate the smooth surface of Congoleum. A few swishes of a damp mop clean the surface in a twinkling—the pretty colors gleaming like new. It is the most sanitary floor-covering imaginable.

No factory left-overs or "seconds," but fresh new designs of rare charm and beauty. Every one in perfect condition, just received from the factory.

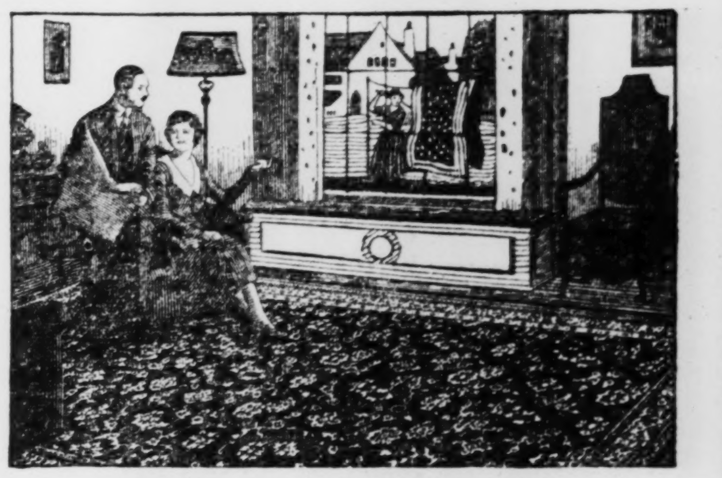
No Fastening Needed—Curling edges and turned-up corners are disadvantages unknown to GOLD-SEAL Art-Rugs. They actually "hug the floor." No fastening is ever needed.

Economical—The prices speak for themselves. At regular prices, GOLD-SEAL Congoleum is unusually economical. At the special prices quoted above it is a tremendous bargain.

Satisfaction Guaranteed—To be able to purchase attractive, durable rugs for every room at these prices is satisfaction indeed. But to buy rugs that are also absolutely guaranteed to satisfy seems almost too good to be true. And you do just that when you buy the popular GOLD-SEAL Congoleum Art-Rugs and Floor-Coverings.

For City Home or Summer Bungalow

GOLD-SEAL Congoleum Art-Rugs are so bright and cheerful; so easy to keep clean; so durable, and—above all—so inexpensive, that they are just as suitable for the summer cottage as for the city residence. They're ideal for porches, too, for they're rain-proof and sun-proof and don't have to be tacked down.



"Look, John, no more of that hard work for me. Not while I can have easy-to-clean Congoleum Rugs."

There's nothing like Congoleum Rugs for summer-time. Water won't hurt them—no need to roll them up when showers threaten. The sun won't fade them.

WILL USE GUEST CONDUCTORS

Minneapolis Symphony to Be Led by Several Musicians Next Season.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 29.—For the first time since its organization 19 years ago, guest conductors will wield the baton before the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra next season. Following the severing of connections between the Minneapolis Orchestral Association and Emil Oberhoffer, the symphony's only conductor for almost a score of years, the guarantors of the musical organization decided to bring prominent orchestra leaders here to act as guest conductors.

Musicians who have signified their intention of leading the Minneapolis Symphony when the season opens again next October include Walter Damrosch, conductor of the New York Symphony Society; Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra; Albert Coates, conductor of the London Symphony Orchestra; Arthur Bodanzky, conductor of the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, and Henri Verbrugghen, conductor of the State Orchestra of Sydney, Australia.

MAN, 84, HAS 9-FOOT BEARD

Michigan Resident Claims Championship of World.

By the Associated Press.

BRIGHTON, Mich., April 29.—The long-whiskered championship of the world is claimed by John J. Tanner, 84, for more than half a century a resident of this village. His beard measures exactly nine feet from chin to tip. Ordinarily Tanner controls it by thrusting the end inside the band of his trousers.

More than 18 years ago, when Tanner's beard was only two or three feet in length, he decided to seek the championship. To this end he braided his beard and tucked it inside his vest. The whiskers soon attained proportions making the braiding impracticable. Ten years ago Tanner's beard was six feet long. Five years ago two feet more had been added and now it measures nine. The owner hopes to attain a growth of 12 feet.

"Is That So?"

When you read something interesting you say, "Is that so?"

Maybe you believe it and maybe you don't.

When you see something, you know it is so.

That is why we are not content with merely telling you about the features of the Florence Oil Cook Stove.

So we say to you—

Go into any store where Florence Oil Cook Stoves are sold and you will find a stove filled and ready for work.

Turn the lever and light the burner. Regulate the blue flame high or low.

Imagine it in your kitchen. Treat it as if you owned it.

No use of our suggesting more. You will see for yourself what a joy it would be to own one.

Therapy Sun Inter Fri Run

LONGER COURSE FOR THERAPY SUPERVISORS

Term of Training for Women Lengthened to Year—Preliminary Instruction Offered.

The Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy has lengthened its training course for women who wish to become superintendents of therapy in hospitals and institutions from nine months to one year in accord with a number of training schools throughout the country, to raise the standard of the profession. The Missouri Association also offers a preliminary observation and probation course of two months without additional charge to women who want the advance information on the work.

The training school of the association is conducted at the City Hospital, where there is an occupational therapy workshop for the patients, where the students may have practical training. The new course, which opens Sept. 18, will consist of eight months of study of handicrafts and lectures by prominent physicians and specialists, and four months of practice work in hospitals and institutions. The Missouri Association has graduates in many of the leading institutions in the country, and at present is unable to supply the demand for trained workers because of the growing recognition of the importance of occupational therapy, and the fact that the "work cure" is a tremendous aid in the treatment of many ailments.

Registration for the fall training class may be made at once with Miss Idelle Kidder, director of the Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy, 3510 Washington avenue. Women who are high school graduates will be admitted to the class, but only those will be accepted who have a certain amount of executive ability, good health and tact to deal with patients.

Why Not Be Cured of PILES?

You need not go through life crippled with Piles, half your bodily energy consumed by the affliction and your nerves always on "edge."

You are taking chances to get Cancer of the Bowels and Consumption, which has killed so many and caused so much suffering. Remember my slogan:

"THE HENRICH CURE IS SAFE AND SURE."

I have Cured hundreds of sufferers during my 26 years' practice in St. Louis and vicinity, and I Can Cure You if your case is curable. Give me a chance.

My process is simple and painless. It is a pleasure to be Cured by The Henrich Method—a Life Cure that never fails.

My best friends are the grateful men, women and children whom I have Cured of Piles without the knife or scissors. They live right here amongst you and are responsible people. I shall be glad to refer you to some of these in St. Louis:

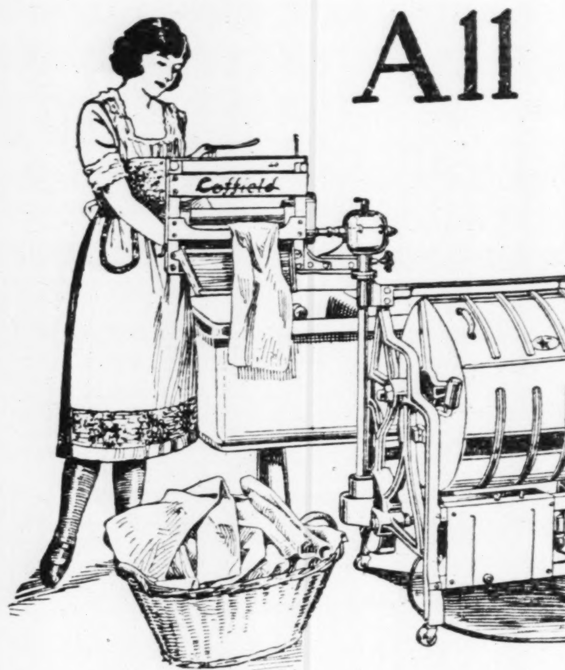
Coffield

Electric Washer

With Solid Copper Tub



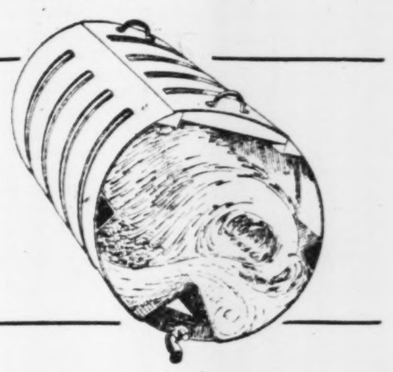
The quiet running Washer that puts a smile into washday. Latest model "C," at the astonishingly low price of........ $117.50

THE COFFIELD is one of the first successful Electric Washers ever made. And nearly twenty years of improvement have made it a mighty good one—there's none better. There's nothing fussy or fancy about it. It's just a simplified matter-of-fact washer that does wonderful work; easy and economical to operate, and so well built that it will give you years of trouble-free service.

The Coffield's tub is made of copper and is tinned inside; it's perfectly rustproof and self-cleaning; large and roomy, too—holds a lot of clothes; and ten or fifteen minutes is enough for each tubful.

A splendid feature of this Washer is the fact that it has oilless bearings throughout. Lubricate the motor twice a year—and that's all the oiling you have to do.

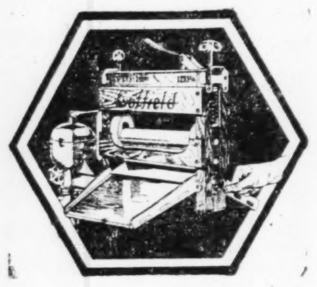
Come in and see the Coffield. A factory expert is here to show you just how it works and to explain all its interesting features.



This picture shows why the Coffield does such splendid, quick work. Nearly a hundred times a minute the suds dash from one side to the other in the solid copper tub, forcing themselves through and through the meshes of the clothes and flushing out every last bit of dirt. This way of cleaning is quick and thorough as can be; and it's gentle, too—doesn't hurt even the filmiest fabrics.

You can make your Coffield buy itself

You can buy a Coffield Electric Washer on convenient monthly terms, if you wish. You can pay for it while you're using it, and the money you save on laundry bills will practically take care of the payments.



The Coffield has an improved wringer, with two stationary drain boards and a very handy "touch o' the thumb" water shutter. This wringer is electrically driven and can be used while the tub is in motion, for the electric motor is more than powerful enough to operate both at the same time.

TRADE KEPT OUT OF RUSSIA BY CUSTOMS BARRIERS

Communists Now in a Dilemma as to How to Keep Power and Control Commerce.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 5.—American and other business men to whom the correspondent talked during an eight months' stay just completed in Russia declared that business could be done with Russians provided the soviet government would take down all its customs barriers and permit free trade with the outside world in the same sense that it now permits free trade inside Russia.

The problem which is interesting business men all over the world seems to hinge on the attitude of the communists. Up to now they have insisted that all foreign trade must pass through their hands. This is partly a matter of policy and partly a matter of personal compensation. They wish to keep all the power in their hands in order to maintain themselves.

The communists are in a decided dilemma. If they insist on controlling foreign trade, they fear that Russia is doomed. If they surrender their power and Russia is saved, they believe they will be slowly shoved aside.

A second condition outlined to the correspondent by these business men of the old regime in Russia is a quick and absolute return to private property. There are widespread indications that, by the force of circumstances, private property will be recognized in every part of Russia. A Moscow decree to that effect has been expected for many months.

The question of guarantees is another point that is constantly raised in connection with doing business with soviet Russia. Old business men say that this is one of the chances that foreigners must take if they wish to do business with Russia. There is no doubt at the present time that the soviet officials are in a frame of mind to try to uphold any guarantees they give.

Admiral Mark L. Bristol, United States High Commissioner here, has claimed for years that if Americans go boldly into Russia and into Turkey they will profit by their investments in the end.

Would Not Marry With Stomach Trouble

Miss Livly States Simple Intestinal Antiseptic Put Her in Condition for Life's Duties

"I could not eat anything at all and have suffered a great deal from stomach trouble. Since I have been taking Adlerika Intestinal Antiseptic it has done wonders for me. I can now eat three meals a day and anything that I want, and also sleep well, and am ready to get married." (Signed) Miss Carrie Livly.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows: It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long-standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports from Physicians.

"I congratulate you on the good effect I had from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"I have found nothing in my 30 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson Bros.' Drug Co. and other leading druggists.

PLUTO
WATER America's Physic

THE young man who would forge ahead in business should realize this truth: physical fitness makes for mental efficiency. Constipation is a serious handicap which should never be tolerated. Thousands of successful men take Pluto at regular intervals even though their bowels act with apparent regularity. Thus they avoid the danger of constipation, and keep their efficiency at par. Pluto acts in thirty minutes to two hours, without griping. It is safe and harmless. Bottled at French Lick Springs, Indiana. Your physician prescribes it.

TRADE KEPT OUT OF RUSSIA BY CUSTOMS BARRIERS

Communists Now in a Dilemma as to How to Keep Power and Control Commerce.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 9.—American and other business men to whom the correspondent talked during an eight months' stay just completed in Russia, declared that business could be done with Russians provided the soviet government would take down all its customs barriers and permit free trade with the outside world in the same sense that it now permits free trade inside Russia.

The problem which is interesting business men all over the world seems to hinge on the attitude of the communists. Up to now they have insisted that all foreign trade must pass through their hands. This is partly a matter of politics and partly a matter of personal compensation. They wish to keep all the power in their hands in order to maintain themselves.

The communists are in a decided dilemma. If they insist on controling foreign trade, they fear that Russia is doomed. If they surrender their power and Russia is saved, they believe they will be slowly shoved aside.

A second condition outlined to the correspondent by these business men of the old regime in Russia is a quick and absolute return to private property. There are widespread indications that, by the force of circumstances, private property will be recognized in every part of Russia. A Moscow decree to that effect has been expected for many months.

The question of guarantees is another point that is constantly raised in connection with doing business with soviet Russia. Old business men say that this is one of the chances that foreigners must take if they wish to do business with Russia. There is no doubt at the present time that the soviet officials are in a frame of mind to try to uphold any guarantees they give.

Admiral Mark L. Bristol, United States High Commissioner here, has claimed for years that if Americans go boldly into Russia and into Turkey they will profit by their investments in the end.

Would Not Marry With Stomach Trouble

Miss Livly States Simple Intestinal Antiseptic Put Her in Condition for Life's Duties

"I could not eat anything at all and have suffered a great deal from stomach trouble. Since I have been taking Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic) it has done wonders for me. I can now eat three meals a day and anything that I want, and also sleep well, and am ready to get married." (Signed) Miss Carrie Livly.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows: It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long-standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports From Physicians.

"I congratulate you on the good effect I had from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"I have found nothing in my 30 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson Bros.' Drug Co. and other leading druggists.

PLUTO WATER America's Physic

THE young man who would forge ahead in business should realize this truth: physical fitness makes for mental efficiency. Constipation is a serious handicap which should never be tolerated. Thousands of successful men take Pluto at regular intervals even though their bowels act with apparent regularity. Thus they avoid the danger of constipation, and keep their efficiency at par. Pluto acts in thirty minutes to two hours, without griping. It is safe and harmless. Bottled at French Lick Springs, Indiana. Your physician prescribes it.

BAN ON CHILDREN AROUSES ANGER OF LONDON TENANTS

Condition for Flat Renting Extends Even to Expectation of Stork's Visit.

By Cable to the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1922, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20 Cockspur st., London, S. W.

LONDON, April 29.—Supported by the welfare organizations, parents and young married people here are starting a fight against London landlords because of the law they have laid down, "No Children Allowed," as a condition to renting many flats. The climax was reached this week when the advertisement of a flat to rent stated not only that no children were allowed, but barred young married couples expecting a visit from the stork.

In reply to this anticipatory ruling the same newspaper this morning contains an anonymous personal advertisement which advocates that such a landlord should be stood up in the pillory.

It is known that many parents try to keep their children in flats without the landlords' knowledge; they send the little ones to friends or even to "baby farmers" when they expect the landlord to call on them. Miss J. Halford, Honorary Secretary of the National League for Health, Maternity and Child Welfare, said today she knows of many young pairs who cannot rent flats because they have children.

"Time and again," said Miss Halford, "we have been asked to take into our babies' hotel the children of members of the professional classes because their parents could not obtain proper accommodation. One man who holds a high social position was forced to go into a workman's tenement because he could not take his children elsewhere. I know of other families who live in basements for the same reason."

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

GRANDMOTHER kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied, with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through the hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

Radio Has Invaded the Dining Rooms at Some Hotels—Closing of 'The Poodle Dog.'

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 29.—Table etiquette is rapidly passing at one of the leading San Francisco hotels since it installed radio telephones on each of the 70 tables in one of its dining rooms. Diners now eat with one elbow on the table to support a hand holding a telephone receiver to an ear.

The diners listen to one of several concerts that are broadcast and picked up by the hotel's receiving set. The principal hotels of the city are making preparations to have radio telephones installed in their dining rooms, and also in their guest rooms.

The Poodle Dog, a restaurant of some historical significance in San Francisco, whose fame was rooted in the Argonaut days of '49, has fallen in behind the growing list of noted local cafes that have closed since prohibition and the auctioneer's inventory has taken the place of the much favored menu. There are a few left which built up their fame in pre-Volstead era and there is wonder as to which will be the next to go. The Poodle Dog lived to see the rise and fall of a dozen noted San Francisco institutions, gastronomic and otherwise, only to fall itself at last.

Old timers here are stirring up memories, recalled by the death last week of Castipher Buckley, the strongest and most picturesque of San Francisco's old-fashioned political bosses who, with Sam Rainey, ruled the city and State from about 1880 to 1890.

Although blind, Buckley was a master manipulator of men, and made and unmade many political fortunes. By his friends he was called the "King of San Francisco," and by the Chinese here the "blind white devil." Robert Louis Stevenson in "The Wreckers," chronicled a bit of San Francisco history during the Buckley regime.

A public school at which manicuring, massaging and hairdressing will be taught for what is believed to be the first time such subjects have been offered as a part of State education, without tuition charges, will be included in the curriculum of the Grand Avenue School here next September.

The plans of the school authorities call for the conversion of the school from an ordinary grade school to a home for the huge department of part time instruction that now offers practical work in many manual arts to more than 2500 enrolled students. The enrollment is composed of boys and girls who are not exempt from the requirements of the law that they attend school, and yet must have their time for labor because they are either self dependent, or must help others.

Stick to Senreco and Your Teeth Will Stick to You

Have White, Radiant Teeth That Will Compel Unstinted Admiration.

Don't neglect your gums, whatever else you do, or you'll be sorry later on.

Keep them strong, sturdy and full of life. Bear in mind that a hearty plant won't grow in foul soil. Neither will unhealty gums produce good teeth.

Your druggist is one of your best friends—don't forget that—see him often—many thousands of men and women are enjoying health today because of the dentists' knowledge and skill.

You can have white teeth so radiantly clean and fascinating and so free from film or coating that they will compel unstinted admiration. You can have firm, healthy gums with no taint of disease if you will only visit your dentist occasionally and use Senreco toothpaste night and morning.

Senreco is a dentist's formula, a combination so perfect that, besides being the finest cleanser of teeth and the most enjoyable of dentifrices, is an active enemy of the vicious germs of pyorrhea—that all too common and abhorrent disease that attacks the gums and causes them to bleed, recede and grow soft, tender and spongy.

Get a tube of Senreco today—the good results will astonish you—in just a few days your teeth will radiate purity. Stick to Senreco and your teeth will stick to you.

Dentists to Demonstrate New Painless Method on Volunteer Patients

THE conductive anesthesia class of the St. Louis Study Club will hold its last clinic of the season at the St. Louis University Dental School, Grand avenue and Caroline street, at 8 o'clock this evening.

Twenty graduate dentists will demonstrate conductive anesthesia, the latest method of extracting teeth without pain. The method has been studied throughout the Winter by the operatives who will give the demonstration. The extractions will be made for volunteer patients without charge.—From the Globe-Democrat, March 29, 1922.

As practiced by many modern dentists today, I believe, after 3 years' trial, to be the greatest means of eliminating pain during what was once considered a painful ordeal in a dentist chair, such as grinding, extracting, filling and crowning sensitive teeth, and many other heretofore considered painful operations.

PHYSICIAN EXPLAINS WHY THOUSANDS ARE AILING, COMPLAINING AND DOCTORING

All the While Going From One Remedy to Another, but Never Fully Relieved—Says Half the People You Meet Lack 100% Iron in the Blood, and This Greatly Weakens All Their Vital Organs, Getting So Bad in Many Cases as to Cause Serious Derangement of the Heart, Kidneys, Nerves and Other Organs.

What to Do

"People who are sick and run-down must learn to realize the importance of having plenty of iron in the blood" says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician in Bellevue Hospital (Out Door Dept.) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. "In long hospital experience with thousands of patients, I discovered an enormous number of people lacked 100% iron in their blood, and that this iron deficiency was in many cases so seriously weakening their vital organs that they would come to me believing that they had a severe case of heart or stomach trouble, kidney disease, nerve force exhaustion or other serious maladies. In some cases these poor sufferers had been doctoring for years, going from one remedy to another without relief. Even when I pointed out the cause of all their sufferings and troubles, it seemed difficult for them to understand, and difficult to get them to take proper treatment for iron deficiency and stick to it until complete relief was obtained. There are billions of red blood corpuscles in your blood stream and each one must have iron or it becomes weakened, starved and dies and your blood becames pale, thin and watery. Every organ of your body is dependent upon your blood for food and sustenance.. When your blood is weak, not only do all vital organs of your body become affected to a greater or less extent, but you are an easy prey for the millions of disease germs floating everywhere, and you may contract influenza, pneumonia, lung troubles and other serious maladies.

When your blood lacks iron, there is only one thing that is going to do you any permanent good, and that is more iron in your blood. Ordinary tonics, stimulants, laxatives, etc. may give you some temporary relief, but you are not going to get over your condition, until you remove the cause. For this purpose, I always prescribe Genuine Nuxated Iron, as it furnishes your body true organic iron like the iron in your blood, and is therefore a true red blood food. Nuxated Iron is an entirely different thing from metallic iron which people usually take.

If you have taken other iron products and have failed to get results, such is no proof that Genuine Nuxated Iron will not help you. It is strongly recommended that you try one or two bottles and if such trial does not give you most surprising results and convince you that you have at last found the remedy to reach the seat of your trouble, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money.

IMPORTANT NOTICE—Prominent druggists who have been interviewed in regard to Nuxated Iron, state that it has given such highly satisfactory results that they do not hesitate to recommend it to their patrons. The demand for it is so great that more druggists carry it in stock than any other similar preparation.

Sound Kidneys Save Suffering

The hustle and bustle of modern life often causes weak kidneys. Overwork and worry invariably create poison faster than the weakened kidneys can filter it from the blood. Pains in the back, nervousness, and lack of ambition are some of the warnings that the kidneys may not be functioning properly.

AIMS OF RADICAL BRITISH LABOR AS OUTLINED BY CHIEF

"Our Hopes Lie in Russia," Says Tom Mann, Who Is Planning to Visit America Again Shortly.

WANTS WORKERS TO CONTROL INDUSTRIES

Expects by "Boring From Within" to Bring That About and Is Not Disguising Purpose.

By SAMUEL SPEWACK.
Special Correspondent of the New York World and Post-Dispatch.
Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20 Cockspur st., London, S. W.

LONDON, April 29.—British radical labor approves the program of the Bolsheviki, but it could have done the job much better itself. The right sort of radicals are in a minority, yet their influence is tremendous because they scatter their forces in conservative labor strongholds. "Boring from within" is the program of the far-seeing radical here, in America, in France. We are the pushers, the prodders of conservative labor, and when conservative labor refuses longer to be pushed, we will step in.

The foregoing is a cross-section of the methods and views of Tom Mann, British labor leader—methods and views that undoubtedly have a powerful influence both in this country and the United States. Mann has been to the United States, will go there shortly again. He has been in Russia. Now he is busy with the strike of shipbuilders and mechanics (the engineers' lockout) harassing this country. At the age of 66 he has crystallized the cross-currents of labor's dissatisfaction. He has found his method. He is pursuing it.

Makes Use of Union.

"Boring from within" is not a discovery, but circumstances have given it new impetus. Radical labor has before it the soviet government. That, in a general way, is its model. Radical labor knows, however, its aspirations cannot be realized by violent overthrow. So it makes use of the strongest machinery available, the recognized, closely knit labor union. It forms a little pushing group in each union. The scattered effects are readily perceivable.

Where will it lead to? Here, briefly, is the goal as outlined by Mann, honorary Chairman of the Red International in this country—based on the trade-union organization in Russia—an intimate friend of radicals in the United States, France and Russia, his analysis is based upon first-hand contact with conditions. Despite his age he is quick of movement and tongue, red-faced, powerful-bodied. He moves his hands with the ease of a man accustomed to being obeyed. He has given many orders and seen them executed. Since boyhood he has stirred the surface of labor—and peered below.

Hopes Lie in Russia.

"Our hopes lie in Russia," he explained to the writer. "The thing is done there. We might have done it better, because we have had more experience and industry. But it is done, and as time goes on will be better done. In Russia the workers control the industries—that is the basic fact. In England and America the employers control the industry. That too is a basic fact. We want to change conditions in England and America so that the workers will control the industries, not the employers. That is our purpose and we do not disguise it.

"We want this control now for the purpose of securing an adequate and constant income for all by regulating industry to meet the requirements of the community. Therefore our immediate object is control in conjunction with the employers. Our ultimate object is complete co-operative control of the basis of production for use and not for profit."

This has been said before many times. Its significance is that radical labor believes realization is in sight. Squatting in a big arm chair, puffing at his cigar, blinking through gold-rimmed glasses. Mann speaks of it as a thing at hand. For there is Russia.

To an American observer the sharpest impression obtained in conversation with radicals here is their sense of contact with soviet Russia. The American radical, though he speaks much and easily of soviet affairs, has the great barrier of great distance constantly in front of him. Russia is far away. To the European radical Russia is around the corner.

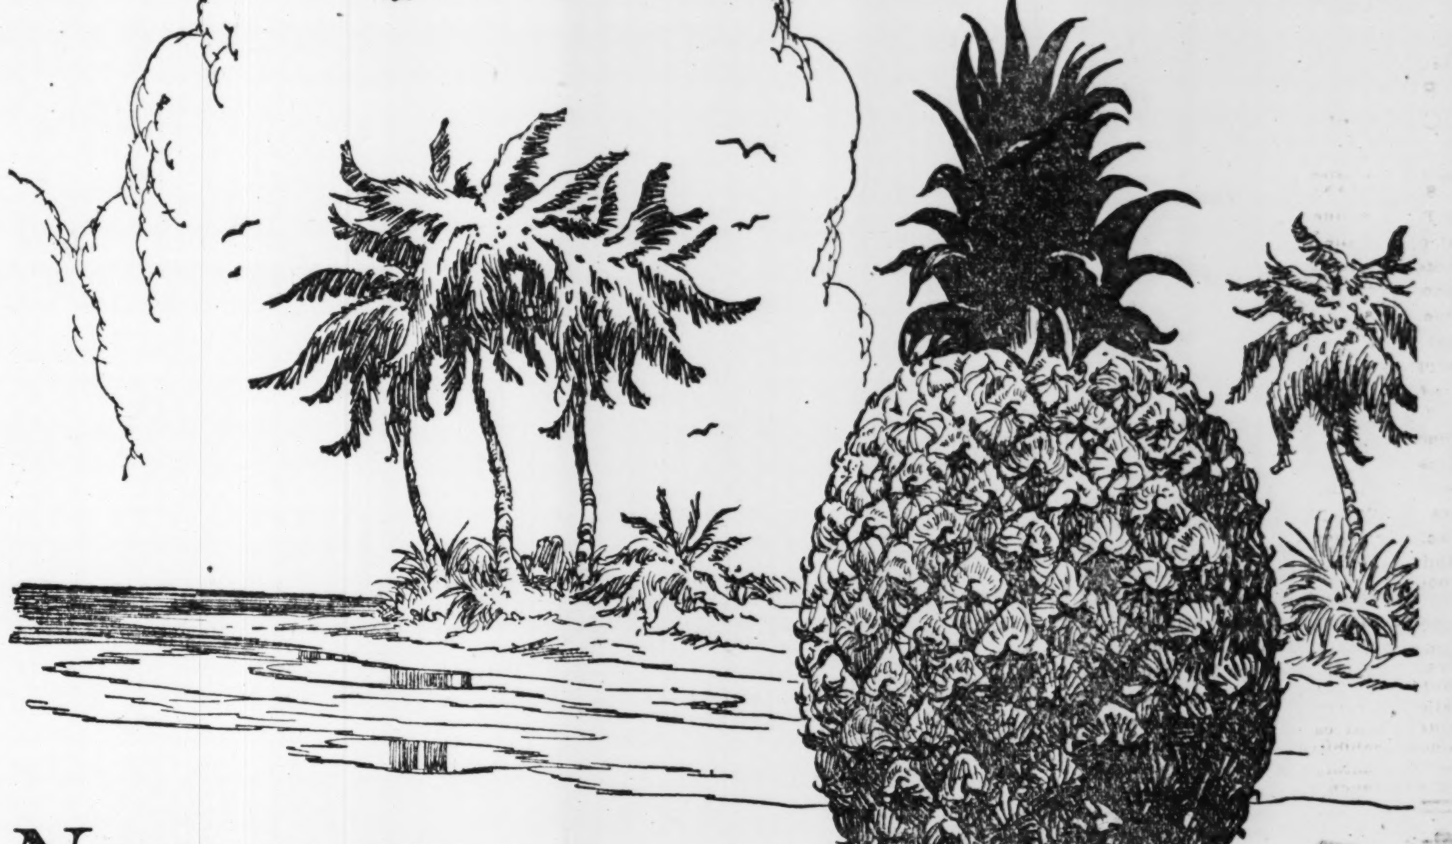
Mann turned to a discussion of those labor leaders regarded as unfriendly to the Bolsheviki—Henderson, Thomas and others.

GREAT ARMY DUMP DESERTED

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

CAIRO, April 7.—What was once considered the greatest military dump in the world, El Kantara, the British army base on the east side of the Suez Canal, has now almost entirely reverted to the wilderness of sand and silence whence it rose. Its passing marks the demise of one of the most important "war baby" soldier cities.

In 1914 El Kantara was merely the name of a "place" on the Suez Canal, 45 minutes by train from Port Said. With the beginning of the Palestine campaign, the transformation began. Pioneers, engineers and army service corps detachments mapped out a town. There were erected inclosures for cattle, horses, mules, donkeys, fodder, for great guns and small limber carts. Later there appeared inclosures for prisoners and the miscellany of canteens, contractors' huts, officers' quarters and barracks. When the armistice was signed, El Kantara's stores included quantities of every appurtenance of war. Its dismantling began in 1920. Contractors rushed in and secured great bargains. Gradually the vast accumulation dwindled until, a few days ago, the Disposals Board finished its work and the site was handed over to the Egyptian Labor Corps—a dilapidated, empty hulk.



Now come—
Fresh Pineapples!

Shipments of delicious, ripe pineapples now arriving daily from Cuba

This is pineapple season in the tropics!

Cuba—which grows the finest of these delicious fruits—is sending them over by the shipload. They are arriving daily by the carload.

Great, luscious, perfumed pineapples—sugar-sweet—are now abundant and low priced. Your grocer and fruit dealer has them.

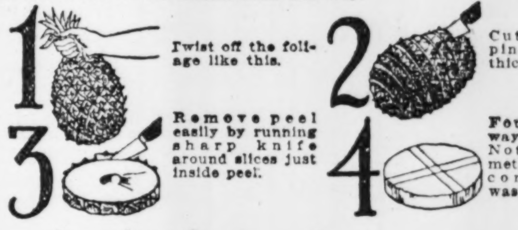
Don't miss the chance to enjoy this luxurious tropical fruit—a luxurious feast within everybody's reach.

One pineapple will make a delicious salad or dessert for the whole family, for one fruit will serve six to eight people.

The season when fresh pineapples are abundant is short—only a few weeks when they are at their best. So take advantage of the opportunity to enjoy them now. They are wonderful in salads, in fruit cocktails or sliced; as topping for ice cream, cereals and cakes; as sherbets, ices and drinks; in pies, tarts and jellies. There are scores of ways of serving this glorious tropical fruit.

How the Cuban Women Prepare Pineapple

Here is an easy way to peel and core a pineapple. It is the way Cuban housewives do it. No trouble done this way.



1 Twist off the foliage like this.
2 Cut unpeeled pineapple into thick slices.
3 Remove peel easily by running sharp knife around slices just inside peel.
4 Four cuts this way removes core. Note how this method cuts out core without waste.

We have prepared a book of new and attractive ways to serve fresh pineapple. Send for it. It is FREE.

Order a pineapple TODAY from your grocer. Your family will enjoy it.

"BIG SISTERS" TO GIVE DANCE ON STATLER ROOF

Entertainment, to Include Card Party, Will Be Held May 13 as Benefit for Organization.

The Big Sisters' organization of St. Louis will give a dance and card party to open the roof garden of Hotel Statler this season, and proceeds of the evening will be used to make up the deficit in the year's budget of the Big Sisters. About $3000 is the amount needed to carry on the work of the organization on the present basis, according to Mrs. G. V. R. Mechin, the president, and it is hoped to realize this sum by means of the entertainment planned.

The event is scheduled for Saturday evening, May 13, from 8 to 12 o'clock. The entire roof garden will be devoted to dancing and a second roof garden, specially arranged for the occasion, will be opened on the seventeenth floor for the card game. In this game each table will be permitted to choose its own game, and the players will pivot, the highest score at each table winning a prize.

Subcommittee Heads.

Mrs. Ell C. Bennett is general chairman of the Committee of Arrangements. Chairmen of the subcommittees are Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Lazar, Floor and Dancing; Mrs. George J. Dietz, Card Games; Mrs. Thomas R. Durning, Tickets; Mrs. J. P. Duball, Costumes; Mrs. C. H. Taylor, Refreshments; Mrs. H. L. Quernheim, Badges and Checkrooms; Mrs. M. Lentin, Flowers and Cigarettes, and Mrs. Eugene Taylor, Speakers. Young girls will sell flowers and cigarettes during the evening, and others, under the chaperonage of several younger married couples, will be the Dance and Floor Committee. This will be the first outdoor dance of the season.

The Big Sisters help girls who live here but whose home conditions are not ideal or who even lack a home other than a boarding house. Good homes often are found for these girls. They are assisted in obtaining jobs in good environment, and always are treated as real friends of the women who are acting as their big sisters. The work is varied and highly individualized, no two cases being handled in the same way, and the personal touch, the actual friendly contact between the girl and the woman who is her Big Sister, is the method always followed.

Supported by Subscriptions.

The organization is supported entirely by voluntary subscriptions, and this is the first time it ever produced a money-making entertainment here. Officers and directors of the organizations are: Mrs. G. V. R. Mechin, president; Mrs. J. P. Duball, treasurer, and Mmes. H. L. Borders, T. R. Durning, Ell C. Bennett, H. Lyle Campbell, F. A. Clifford, F. B. Chase, George Dietz, Pritchett Harris, Frank G. Jonah, H. L. Quernheim, Louis Schwartzkopf, A. W. Thias and C. H. Taylor, directors.

LAST OF THE WAISKAS, STILL HOSTILE TO WHITE-MAN, DIES

Melancholy of Proud Indian Increased Year by Year as He Saw the Forest Dwindle.

By the Associated Press.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., April 29.—Peter Waiska, the last of the Waiskas, proudest branch of the Chippewa tribe, is dead.

Waiska, who was 78 years old, carried with him to his grave the pride of race that made his forefathers outstanding among the various Indian bands native to the Great Lakes district. His death was caused by exposure to the cold, an element at which he scoffed in former years.

The Waiskas inhabited the region now known as Bay Mills and the Waiska river and bay district in Chippewa county when the first white missionaries pushed their way into the wilderness. The tribe, with centuries old pride, looked with disfavor upon the white man, who cleared the lands, then broke them with the plow. Peter Waiska until the last maintained the same feeling of hostility, as befitted the final survivor of his race. His friends say his melancholy increased year by year as he saw the forest dwindle and the face of the land change from a wilderness to a manufacturing and farming district.

At 4 o'clock on the morning of his last day, Peter walked alone far into the country until he reached the forest. He sat beneath a tree and meditated upon the fate that had befallen his people. The cold finally overcame him and he sank into a slumber from which he did not awaken.

Dandelion Fight Tomorrow.

Our 15th Anniversary Sale
A Profit-Sharing Event

ANOTHER milestone has been passed! The beginning of May marks the completion of fifteen years of service to the discriminating people of St. Louis and surrounding towns.

In these fifteen years the public has watched the sensational growth of the Prufrock-Litton Furniture Company from a humble beginning to a firm that places yearly around a million dollars' worth of good Furniture in St. Louis homes.

IT seems fitting that our patrons should participate in the celebration of our anniversary, and we know of no better way than by letting them share substantially in our profits. We are, therefore, offering liberal reductions throughout our entire store.

Every piece of Furniture in stock is reduced—there are no exceptions—even the newest designs, fresh from the leading manufacturers, and from our own factory.

THIS is a most advantageous opportunity to satisfy your Furniture needs. The reductions permit of not a moment's delay, and June brides should make their selections this week.

Editorial

THINK IT OVER.

Thrift is an accomplishment. Investment an art.

Any of us can be thrifty, but not all of us are wise investors. Self-denial will produce thrift, but to be a good investor requires both common sense and reasoning.

Cheap merchandise, no matter what kind, cannot be either durable or satisfactory, and it is WASTE not THRIFT to invest in it.

Articles of QUALITY are by far the best investment from every standpoint. It is a source of PRIDE and a proof of THRIFT to INVEST in them.

They COST more because they're WORTH more.

(Signed)

Harry Prufrock.

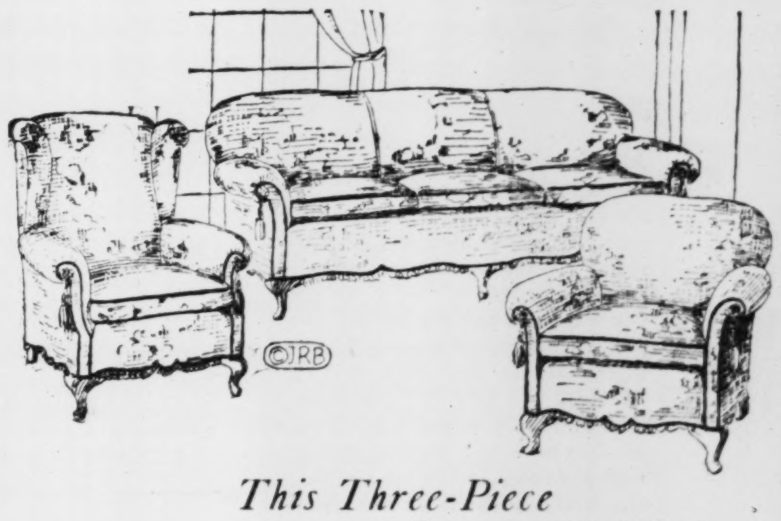
Confidence

Since the year 1907, when the Prufrock-Litton Furniture Company bought out the Crane Furniture Company, each passing year has brought to us the younger brothers and sisters of newlyweds of former years. Each year, homemakers moving into larger homes come back to us to purchase more furniture from the house that served them so well.

We have systematized and economized until we have brought production costs down to the minimum and have raised quality, style and value to the highest plane. We know Furniture—how to make it—how to buy it, and how to sell it—at savings which have made for us many friends.



This Three-Piece Overstuffed Suite

Now is the logical time to buy Living-Room Furniture, just as Prufrock-Litton's is the logical place to buy it. Made in our own factory and guaranteed throughout.

Where else could you get a three-piece overstuffed Suite, made up to your own order, in $4 per yard velour, tapestry or brocade, in the newest shades and color combinations, ornamented with tassel rosettes, for such a low price. THIRD ANNUAL FLOWER SHOW OF GARDEN CLUB

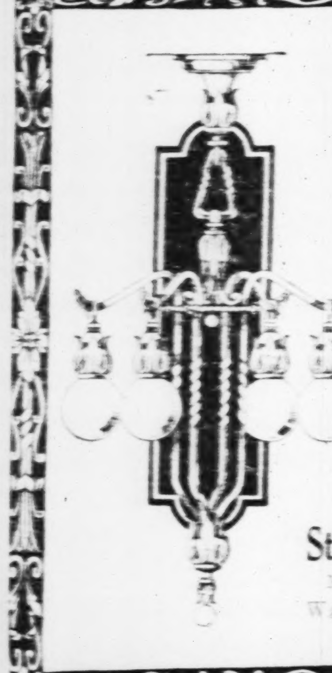
Appeals Made for Exhibits at Event to Be at Shaw's Garden May 20 and 21.

Appeals for exhibits for the Third Annual Flower Show of the Garden Club, which will be held May 20 and 21 at Shaw's Garden, were made yesterday. The show is free to the public, and there will be no charge for entries. It is to be a "back garden" show this year, with entries desired of familiar plants, flowering shrubs and vegetables.

No members of the Garden Club will compete for prizes, which include many handsome articles, garden tools, silver vases, bird baths, rare bulbs and garden books. Shaw's Garden will make no entries, as the show is given for the purpose of demonstrating the possibilities of gardening by people with small yards. Premium books may be obtained by phoning Grand 547.

In addition to prizes for pots of geraniums, iris, begonia, lilies of the valley, snowballs, tulips, daisies and other well-known varieties, there are prizes for arrangements of plants and special collections. Prizes to the value of $50 each are offered by Edwards Whitaker and Edward Mallinckrodt for entries, both prizes to be won two years in succession by the same exhibitor before it is finally awarded, winner this year to keep the prize until next year's show. A silver vase donated by the late Mrs. S. E. Chambers for the best arrangements of flowers must be won three years by the same person. The Society of Applied Arts has given a bird bath for the best arrangements of flowers, and flowers for this may be bought by anyone who has no garden.

Bird houses, trophy banners, candy and other prizes will be awarded for entries from school children of the city and county, and the entries may be made by individuals or school groups. A prize for the best display of native wild flowers will be given, and there will be cash prizes for the commercial growers.



LIGHTING FIXTURES

Visitors to St. Louis will find in our show rooms everything needed for lighting, for either home or commerical use, all manufactured in our own shops.

Automatic Water Cooling System

AUTOMATIC SYSTEM OF REFRIGERATION PATENTED TRADE MARK

Give the Children cooled water without ice in it

Automatic Water Cooling System is a 1-piece, porcelain-lined cooler, occupying waste space. Cools drinking water with same ice that chills the food, without ice-chipping or peril from impure ice.

Food and Ice Saving Week

Monday, May 1st, to and including Saturday, May 6th

All the dealers listed handle Automatic Refrigerators. Saves ice and food through honest and right construction. Its 8 walls resist heat, save ice. Its automatic circulation of dry air prevents flavors mixing or the food getting "soft" and "sweaty." Automatic alone has the AUTOMATIC WATER COOLING SYSTEM. A good selection of models and sizes with or without water cooler, with or without the bottle holder. If your dealer doesn't handle, write and we will tell you how to be supplied.

ITCHING ECZEMA DRIED RIGHT UP WITH SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ-destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.

HORSE SHOW TO BE HELD AT BARRACKS IN MAY

Three-Day Exhibition to Have 24 Classes of Entries, Several Open to Civilians.

A horse show, the first in the St. Louis region since pre-war days, will be held at Jefferson Barracks Friday, Saturday and Sunday, May 26, 27 and 28, under the joint auspices of the post officers and the St. Louis Riding Club.

The show will have 24 classes of entries, eight of which are restricted to officers or enlisted men of the regular army or national guard. The other events are open without entry fee to civilians. Several are open to women, and one, a pony contest, to children.

The first day's events are a stick-and-ball contest for polo ponies, machine guns going into action, open to machine gun squads of the army or national guard; enlisted men's mounts, for men of the army or guard; hackneys, five-gaited class; children's ponies, three-gaited class, and hunters.

For the second day the events are a weaving contest for polo ponies, 37-mm. guns going into action, for squads of the army or guard; five-gaited class for geldings; hunters; roadster class, five-gaited class, for mares and geldings; escort wagon, and hunters jumping in pairs.

The third day's events are for saddle mules, to be entered by enlisted men; Stokes mortar going into action, for squads; model class for saddle horses; enlisted men's jumping class; fine harness class; officers' chargers; hunters' championship and five-gaited championship class.

The judges will be Roger Pemberton of Chicago and Col. D. S. Stanley, U. S. A. The Sixth Regiment Band will furnish music. Maj. James A. Watson of the Sixth Infantry is chairman of the Horse Show Committee.

RECITALS BY ENGLISH ORGANIST

Gatty Sellars to Give Two Programs at Church.

Gatty Sellars, English composer and organist at the Queen's Hall concerts in London, will give two recitals Tuesday, at 4 and 8 p. m., at the Union Methodist Episcopal Church, Delmar and Grand avenues.

The afternoon program will include: "The Hero Immortal," Sellars; "Nuptial Song," Friml; Prelude in B Minor, Bach; "In Arcadia," Sellars; Sonata in A, Mendelssohn; selections from Wagner's "Tannhauser," and extemporizations on a selected theme.

In the evening the organist will play his own tone-poem, "The Mighty Andes," "Romance," Lemare; Concert toccata, Mansfield; "A Lagoon Lullaby," Sellars; "Patrol March," Rubinstein; "Storm at Sea" and "Marche Internationale," Sellars; and extemporizations on a requested theme.

NEEDLEWORK GUILD TO MEET THURSDAY

National Convention Will Open With Silent Prayer and Continue Through Friday.

The convention of the Needlework Guild of America to be held next Thursday and Friday at Hotel Statler will open at 11 a. m. Thursday with silent prayer. The program is announced by Mrs. John T. Davis, president of the local guild.

Greetings will be extended to the delegates by the Rev. W. C. Bitting of the Second Baptist Church, Mrs. John Wood Stewart, founder of the organization, and Mrs. Truman H. Newberry, national president. Reports on credentials, national work and amendments to bylaws will be heard.

Mrs. Philip North Moore, president of the National Council of Women of the United States, will speak at the afternoon session. Mrs. Stewart will report on war relief. Branch organizations will report, and Mrs. Newberry will award extension honors. A reception for the visitors will be held at 4 p. m. Mrs. Edmund Fowler Brown of St. Louis will speak on "The Relation of the Needlework Guild to a City's Welfare Problems."

At 10 a. m. Friday other branches and State chairmen will report, a financial conference will be held by Mrs. Morris Wilson, treasurer, and Dr. Kate Waller Barret, vice president, will speak. In the afternoon American-Labrador branches will be heard from under the direction of Miss Kathrine A. Sargent of New York. Miss Martha L. Gibbons will conduct a discussion of cleves methods for "extra garments," and Miss Marion S. Bettle will preside at a conference of branch secretaries.

DISPLAY WINDOW FOR CHURCH

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., April 29.—A church window which is said to have the distinction of being the first one in this country installed exclusively for display to the street has been installed in the First Westminster Church of this city. The church has provided a special lighting system to illuminate the window from within.

The window which shows Christ preaching to the multitude contains many figures and will carry its message visually seven nights in the week to passersby. The window is hand painted.

John Smigoski Sought by Mother.

Mrs. Rosie Smigoski of Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., has asked Post-Dispatch readers to help her find her son, John M. Smigoski, 18 years old, who disappeared from home April 7. He is described as 5 feet 6 inches tall, 130 pounds in weight, with light brown hair and gray eyes. He has a large scar behind the left ear and is slightly bow-legged. He wore a dark blue suit, with a light stripe, and dark brown cap and shoes when he left home.

HINTS ON PROPER CARE OF CRYSTAL DETECTORS

By JOHN V. L. HOGAN,
Consulting Engineer, New York; Fellow and Past President, Institute of Radio Engineers; Member, American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Users of receivers equipped with crystal detectors often find that, although conditions appear not to have changed, signals become weaker than usual after some months of use. Frequently it is noted that the crystal detector becomes harder to adjust for the best strength of signals, so that it seems to have fewer sensitive points than originally.

One cause of such weakening of response, and a very common cause, is simply that the crystal surface becomes dusty or filmed over. If the detector is of the type inclosed in a glass housing, the former difficulty is, of course, not so prominent, but there may nevertheless be a loss of sensitiveness due to moisture or oxidation.

The best cure is to cleanse the contact surfaces lightly and carefully with a brush moistened in alcohol or carbon disulphide. Commercial cleaning fluids may be used if they contain no soap. The crystals should not be scratched or rubbed hard; the action of the liquid softly brushed across the sensitive faces should be sufficient.

In replacing the cleaned crystals use care not to touch their contact surfaces with the finger, for the slight amount of oil which might thus reach them from the skin is enough to cause a reduction in sensitiveness.

If full signal strength is not regained immediately upon cleaning the detector, it is likely that poor contact or insulation will be found somewhere in the receiving system. Examine carefully every joint from the aerial to the ground connection; make sure that every contact is firm (and preferably well soldered where that is possible). See that all insulators are in good condition, and that there is no opportunity for leakage paths which would divert part of the feeble antenna currents from the route through the radio receiver to ground. With these several precautions there should be no difficulty in maintaining normal signals.

Multiple Radio Operation.

A long step forward in the science of radio communication was demonstrated in the Engineering Societies Building, New York City, recently, when telephone and telegraph messages were carried simultaneously from a single wireless transmitting set and antenna. They were received also by a single radio set without interference or distortion, and brought down to clear and audible hearing.

The achievement was demonstrated by Dr. Frank B. Jewett, chief engineer of the Western Electric Co. and head of the Bell System research laboratories, and was made possible largely through an electrical "filter," invented by Dr. G. A. Campbell. The device makes it possible to separate the various frequencies at which the individual telephone and telegraph messages are carried.

At the demonstration the telephone and telegraph messages were dispatched at the same time and were received at the other end of the stage. They were detected by a single stage vacuum tube circuit, after which they were passed through the "filter," which separated the frequencies of the telegraph message from those of the telephone message. The filter differs materially from the ordinary tuned circuits familiar to the radio engineer, as the filter separates not single frequencies but bands of frequencies of any predetermined width. The filter makes it possible to separate the band of frequencies comprising the telephone message from the band comprising the telegraph message. It can also separate one telephone message from another.

Testing Radio Battery at Home.

You should watch the condition of the battery of your radio apparatus as carefully as you watch the amount of gasoline you have in your car.

It is well to consider that batteries for radio service, contrary to the batteries in automobiles, are operated at extremely low discharge rates, one, two or three amperes. The number depends on the number of tubes used. When one knows the capacity of the battery in ampere hours, it is a comparatively simple thing to estimate roughly how many ampere hours have been taken out of the battery. For instance, if the battery capacity is 60 ampere hours and it has been discharging at the rate of two amperes for three hours each evening, it is mere simple arithmetic to figure out that the battery will be thoroughly discharged in 10 days. This is one method, and a very easy one, of estimating the condition of your battery. Another method, far more reliable, is the hydrometer.

Hydrometer Testing.

In a storage battery on discharge the sulphuric acid of the electrolyte is constantly forming lead sulphate. This thins the electrolyte. When a battery is fully charged the electrolyte is strongest, and when it is discharged it is very weak; hence the electrolyte of a fully charged battery is heavier than that of a discharged battery.

This characteristic is shown by the hydrometer. Most car owners are familiar with a hydrometer. For those who are not it is enough to say that it consists of a bulb, a glass barrel containing a graduated float and a tube connected to the bottom of the barrel for insertion into the electrolyte of a battery. By squeezing then inserting the tube into the electrolyte, the electrolyte may be drawn into the barrel to a level sufficient to float the graduated float. By reading the graduation on the float corresponding to the level of the electrolyte, the specific gravity of the electrolyte is obtained.

This reading will give a fair idea of the condition of the battery.

Care must be taken that the float is not in contact with the sides of the barrel at least to such an extent as to prevent it assuming the proper level.

When the reading shows a specific gravity of 1280 the battery may be considered as fully charged; 1260 indicates a quarter discharged battery; 1225 one-half discharged battery; 1185 a three-quarters discharged battery; 1150 a total discharged battery.

It is not advisable to let the battery get more than three-quarters discharged because the formation of lead sulphate increases to such an extent that it is difficult to reduce it by charging. It is injurious to the battery to let it remain in an uncharged condition for a long period of time.

One should bear in mind that a fully charged battery will discharge itself from 80 to 120 days. The low rates of discharge used in radio service allows a battery to function properly for a longer period of time than automobile batteries. While in one sense this may seem a virtue, there is an element of danger in the fact that the radio battery, because of its low rate of discharge, will work, though it may be almost completely discharged.

If in making a test, you find that the electrolyte level has fallen too low to be drawn into the hydrometer syringe, it is only necessary to add pure distilled water.

Many owners of radio apparatus have secured some sort of charging apparatus for charging "A" batteries. In using this charging equipment great care should be taken to connect the positive wire from the charging apparatus to the positive terminal of the battery, and the negative wire to the negative terminal.

NEW INSURANCE RULES FOR RADIO STATIONS

Up to the present time insurance underwriters and engineers have considered radio in an experimental stage, and have made very stringent rules covering the installation and grounding of devices. The experience of the insurance companies indicates that wireless has not proved the hazard which was anticipated and practically no reports have been received indicating any damage to either life or property. A new era is now recognized. The amateur set, and particularly the receiving set, is now so numerous that it is recognized as a hardship to follow the very expensive installation called for in the national electric code and insisted upon by every insurance inspector. A new set of specifications has now been evolved which will interest every amateur in the land. It is still believed by insurance engineers that an outdoor antenna may be slightly hazardous through becoming a conductor for lightning. However, it is now recognized that when properly installed, it may become a protection rather than otherwise. The following rules have been temporarily adopted by the National Fire Protection Association, and for the present will be accepted by all fire protection engineers and insurance inspectors. No specification is made for receiving sets having an indoor antenna.

Specifications for Receiving Stations Only.

A. Antenna outside of buildings shall not cross over or under electric light or power wires of any circuit carrying current of over 600 volts potential or of railway trolley or feeder wires, nor shall it be so located that a failure of either antenna or of the above mentioned electric light or power wires can result in a contact between the antenna and such electric light or power wires.

Antenna shall be constructed and installed in a strong and durable manner and shall be so located as to prevent accidental contact with light and power wires by sagging or swinging.

Splices and joints in the antenna span, unless made with approved clamps or splicing devices, shall be soldered.

Antenna installed inside of buildings are not covered by the above specifications.

B. Lead-in wires shall be of copper, approved copper-clad steel or other metal which will not corrode excessively and in no case shall they be smaller than No. 14 B. & S. gauge.

Lead-in wires on the outside of buildings shall not come nearer than four (4) inches to electric light and power wires unless separated therefrom by a continuous and firmly fixed nonconductor that will maintain permanent separation. The nonconductor shall be in addition to any insulation on the wire.

Lead-in wires shall enter building through a noncombustible, nonabsorptive insulating bushing.

C. Each lead-in wire shall be provided with an approved protective device properly connected and located (inside or outside the building) as near as practicable to the point where the wire enters the building. The protector shall not be placed in the immediate vicinity of easily ignited stuff, or where exposed to inflammable gases or dust or flyings of combustible materials.

The protective device shall be an approved lightning arrester which will operate at a potential of five hundred (500) volts or less.

The ground wire may be bare or insulated and shall be of copper or approved copper clad steel not smaller than No. 14 B. & S. gauge and run in as straight a line as possible to a good permanent ground. Preference shall be given to water piping. Gas piping shall not be used for grounding protective devices. Other permissible grounds are grounded steel frames of buildings or other grounded metallic work in the building and artificial grounds such as driven pipes, plates, cones, etc.

The ground wire shall be protected against mechanical injury. An approved ground clamp shall be used wherever the ground wire is connected to pipes or piping.

A grounding switch may be installed in addition to but not in place of the approved protective device required in this section.

(D) Wires inside buildings shall be securely fastened in a workmanlike manner and shall not come nearer than two (2) inches to any electric light or power wire unless separated therefrom by some continuous and firmly fixed nonconductor making a permanent separation. This nonconductor shall be in addition to any regular insulation on the wire. Porcelain tubing or approved flexible tubing may be used for encasing wires to comply with this rule.

Broadcasting.

There are 181 broadcasting stations on the charts of the radio sections of the department, it was learned on April 29.

On April 18 five licenses for broadcasting entertainment were issued and five on April 28, as follows:

WAAS, Georgia Radio, Inc., Atlanta, Ga.
KPO, Hale Bros., Inc., San Francisco, Cal.
WAAP, O. W. Taylor, Wichita, Kan.
WAAB, Times Picayune Pub. Co., New Orleans, La.
WWZ, John Wanamaker, New York, N. Y.
WAAV, Athens Radio Co., Athens, O.
WAAW, Omaha Grain Exchange, Omaha, Neb.
WBAB, Andrew J. Potter, Syracuse, N. Y.
WAAX, Radio Service Corps, Pittsburg, Pa.
WAAY, Yahrling-Rayner Piano Co., Youngstown, O.

Y. M. C. A. Radio School to Open Monday.

A new radio school established by the Y. M. C. A. will open Monday, May 1, 7:30 p. m. The initial meeting will be addressed by F. C. Baker, superintendent of Famous-Barr Co., and by W. E. Woods, president of the Benwood Co. and instructor in the night class of the Y. M. C. A. radio school. There will be practical demonstrations of modern equipment.

The Y. M. C. A. station is being tuned up to receive the broadcasting programs of Chicago, Pittsburg and St. Louis on the opening night. Equipment will be specially mounted so that students unfamiliar with radio apparatus will have an opportunity to observe the mechanism of the wireless and learn something of its construction. The public is invited to this opening lecture and demonstration.

The Y. M. C. A. radio school has been organized in response to a wide demand for training in this science. Methods employed in the United States Navy will be used in training students. Each student will be equipped with individual sending and receiving apparatus.

Lectures covering fundamental theory will be given, code practice for those who desire to train for positions as operators, and apparatus construction practice for those who wish to build their own equipment or to prepare to become radio engineers will be provided.

Broadcasting Lost Autos.

Station WPM, operated by T. J. Williams of Washington, D. C., is co-operating with the local police by broadcasting descriptions and the license numbers of stolen cars. To date no auto thieves have been caught and no missing autos have been located, but the service is believed to be very helpful to the police.

Even Girls Study Radio.

Students of Central High School, Washington, are taking up the subject of radio in several classes, in which there are a number of girl students. The work is under the direction of Dr. Hedrick of the physics department, and is believed the first course to be included in the curriculum of a municipal high school.

MOTOR JAUNT TO GUMBO AN IDEAL COUNTY TRIP

Plenty of Time Allowed for Motorists to Loaf and Enjoy Scenery.

A motor jaunt over fairly good St. Louis County roads to Gumbo and return is the second of a series of Sunday tours to be published by the Post-Dispatch with the co-operation of the Touring Bureau of the Automobile Club of Missouri.

The trip, which is only 51 miles in length, will allow the motorists plenty of time to loaf all the way and still be able to spend some time for lunch at Gumbo.

Upon leaving the city via Lindell boulevard one jaunts west to Skinker road then turn south to the Clayton road. The Clayton road is then followed to the Denny road where you turn north to the Olive Street road. At Stratman you turn left on to the Olive Street road, which is followed on through Creve Coeur, Bellefontaine and Chesterfield to Gumbo.

After leaving Gumbo the route is over the Kehr's Mill road to the Clayton road. The motorist then turns to the left and heads for home over the Clayton road. The complete log of this jaunt, which starts and ends at the Automobile Club, is as follows:

ROAD GUIDE OFFERED FREE TO TOURISTS

It's playground time again for America's millions, and the national parks, all bound 'round with the National Park-to-Park Highway, are beckoning with a greater urge than ever before to the vacationist and traveler, according to inquiries already received by the general offices of the National Park-to-Park Highway Association in Denver.

The association is issuing a 68-page free illustrated scenic booklet giving mileage and telling motorists how to get from one to another of their own national playgrounds. In this it has the co-operation of the National Park Service, American Automobile Association and practically every transcontinental highway leading to or crossing the 6000-mile master sightseeing lariat loop.

Fact is, there's nothing of equal grandeur on such a scale elsewhere in the world—picking wild flowers from among snow banks and packing a bathing suit and overcoat for the trip. Again, equally important are the auto camp and hotel facilities.

It's the call of the gypsy life, to be experienced in vest pocket edition form by the millions, and that's why the family of the man with a flivver already has "tuned in" and heard the beckoning message of the whispering pines in the national park playgrounds of the West.

A. A. A. CONVENTION TO BE HELD MAY 19—20

Out of courtesy to the American Medical Association, which is to hold its annual convention in St. Louis the week of May 22, the gathering of the American Automobile Association which was to have been held on May 22-23 has been advanced to May 19-20.

More than 1000 delegates representing the 600 automobile clubs throughout the country affiliated with the A. A. A. will be represented at the meeting here. This will be the first time in the history of the A. A. A. that an annual convention has been held outside of Washington, the headquarters and the present move is due entirely to the marked growth of automotive interest in the West in the past decade.

From Chicago will come a motorcade of 200 visitors to the convention. A unique program of entertainment is being prepared by the Automobile Club of Missouri through William King, the general manager, who secured the convention for St. Louis. During the two days' gathering there will be an election of officers and discussions as to good roads, antitheft and safety on the highways.

Immediately after the convention a campaign will be inaugurated under the auspices of the Automobile Club of Missouri for the organization of the motorists of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Kansas into a southwestern division of the A. A. A.

FINDS TOURING IN A SEDAN A PLEASURE

Frank M. Morgan, assistant professor of mathematics at Dartmouth College of Hanover, N. H., who started on an automobile tour of America April 1, arrived in St. Louis last week over the National Old Trails route from Washington, D. C., and will spend several days in St. Louis sightseeing before continuing his journey to the Pacific Coast.

Morgan's first stop on his long jaunt across the country was at Boston, from where he drove to New York and then on to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, before coming to St. Louis.

He has covered in all 1800 miles, and is very pleased with the wonderful condition of the roads and the scenic effects along the trails. He reports going was perfect through all the Eastern states, and although fields of Indiana were seemingly lakes of water and mud, the hard roads were not affected. He was very much impressed with the immense number of hogs in Indiana; said the roadways seemed to be lined with them.

Mr. Morgan, who is an experienced tourist, carries two combination bed tents, two dunnage bags and two suit cases. They have five people in the party and are making the tour in one of the new 1922 Chandler sedans. They expect to return by way of San Francisco, Seattle and the Northern trail to Boston.

MARMON ANNOUNCES ANOTHER PRICE CUT

Announcement of a reduction on all models of the Marmon cars, ranging from $515 to $765, effective May 1, was received yesterday by the More Automobile Co., local distributers from the Nordyke-Marmon Co. of Indianapolis.

The reduction, which is the third to be made on the Marmon car since Jan. 1, 1921, brings the price of the Marmon 34 model to within $235 of the price on April 1, 1916. The total reduction of the three price cuts since Jan. 1, 1921, is $1625.

The new prices f. o. b. Indianapolis is as follows: Touring model is now $3185, a reduction of $515; the coupe was reduced $715 and now sells for $3985; the sedan was cut $765 and now lists at $4385; the two-passenger speedster, which formerly sold for $3900, now lists at $3385, and the four-passenger speedster which was reduced $515 is $3435. The surban sedan was reduced from $5300 to $4685.

OAKLAND ADOPTS "FLAT RATE" CHARGES

The Oakland Motor Car Co. is putting into effect as quickly as possible its new plan of universal "flat-rate" charges for service.

Already the majority of its branches, distributors and dealers have put into effect this plan of set charges for practically every repair job that may be required on an Oakland car, says E. A. Hatfield, of the Mississippi Valley Motor Co. This specialization on a piece rate basis is doing away with the complaint frequently heard from motorists that they never have any idea what a specific repair will cost until after the job is completed. This has resulted in much dissatisfaction with the system now generally in vogue.

Another feature of service worked out by the Oakland Motor Car Co. is the training of mechanics in a special school at the factory at Pontiac. These mechanics go back to the branches and distributors and in turn open schools for the training of service men for Oakland dealers.

Tires With 500 Nail Holes Leak No Air

A new puncture-proof inner tube, which in actual use was punctured 500 times without showing the loss of any air when tested by a tire gauge, has been invented by Paul B. Coats, an electrical engineer of Chicago. It is inflated with air and has the same appearance as the regular inner tube, yet it removes all the necessity of changing tires until the casings are entirely worn out. Cars using these tubes are making from 8000 to 12,000 miles, without removing a tire from the wheel. A wonderful feature of this new tube is that it can be produced and sold at about the same price as the ordinary tube. Mr. Coats has turned over all rights on his invention to the Milburn Puncture-Proof Tube Co., Dept. A-29, Milburn Bldg., 330-335 W. 47th St., Chicago, who wants to place these tubes in a few cars here. They will make a very liberal offer to anyone who wishes to try them at the company's risk, until a distributor is appointed for this territory.

STUTZ

You No Longer Need to Pay a Penalty for Ultra-Fine Performance

The penalty for better-than-average performance in a motor car has been continual and costly service attention. Motoring maximums have been attained in the past only with highly sensitive mechanisms of intricate design. The Stutz—with the "D-H" Engine and Compensating Spring Suspension—for the first time affords all of the flexibility, absence of vibration, power and pick-up of complicated multi-cylinder motors while preserving a rugged simplicity that involves no hair-trigger adjustments or expert attention to keep the car at top form.

COLBURN LEAVES DORRIS TO JOIN HOUSING TRUST

Webster Colburn, who since January, 1918, has been vice president and general manager of the Dorris Motor Car Co., announced Saturday morning that he had resigned both positions with that company effective May 1. Colburn will become secretary and treasurer of the fiscal agency of the American Union Housing Trust, whose offices are 461 Title Guaranty Building.

This announcement came as a great surprise to the entire automobile trade of St. Louis with which Colburn has been connected for many years always in a prominent position. Hardly any man in St. Louis, unless it be George P. Dorris, has had a longer connection with the automobile trade than Colburn.

Nineteen years ago, or in 1903, he went with the St. Louis Motor Carriage Co., which had been organized by George P. Dorris to build motor cars, then in crude development. In August, 1905, he with Dorris and others, organized the Dorris Motor Car Co. and began the manufacture of the "Dorris" automobile. Colburn was secretary of the company up to January, 1918, when he was made vice-president and general manager and his efficient methods and close attention to the business have gone far toward bringing Dorris automobiles and trucks up to their present high standing in the automobile world.

Colburn has several times been a director of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association and is now a director. During the 1921 period he was vice-president of that organization. He has also been active in St. Louis civic affairs, particularly so in the affairs of the St. Louis Safety Council. During 1921 and 1922 he was the head of the Safety Council's Safe Drivers' School, which has been attended by upward of 400 drivers of commercial cars and trucks at its weekly sessions.

Colburn announced he would remain as a director of the Dorris Motor Car Company, but would devote practically all of his time to the business of the American Union Housing Trust, which he describes as "an organization to encourage and assist in the owning of homes and other real estate."

BATTERY MAKERS WARN AGAINST "REBUILTS"

Manufacturers of standard batteries have sent out warnings against the purchase of junked batteries that "look like new," or "are just as good."

These, they say, are doctored up so that they will stand up well for a short while. Old batteries are bought at junk rates, taken apart and rebuilt from salvaged parts.

High prices have helped the junked battery business. That is why manufacturers want to warn the motorist against buying cheaper batteries. They are costlier in the end.

Investigators who have torn down these salvaged batteries say they found only about 5 per cent of each battery represent new material. One new battery plate, alongside the old ones, an electrolyte, paint—and the battery looks like new.

The new plate, say the investigators, keeps the battery alive long enough for its sale and short use by the owner.

PAIGE DAYTONA MODEL MAKES NEW RECORD

In an exhibition run held recently a Paige 6-66, Daytona model, stock chassis, covered 10 miles on the San Carlos, Cal., speedway in 6 minutes, 28 1-5 seconds. This is at the rate of 92.2 miles per hour for the 10 miles. The car was piloted by the veteran driver Earl Cooper.

According to J. E. Newell of the Newell Motor Car Co., Paige distributers, this is believed to be the fastest time ever made for the distance by a strictly stock chassis.

The official record for the distance is held by this Paige 6-66 Daytona model stock chassis, which, driven by Ralph Mulford, set the record at the Uniontown speedway a year ago by covering 10 miles in 6 minutes, 21 48-100 seconds, or at the rate of 93.9 miles per hour. It is one of the nine world's stock chassis speedway records held by this car.

CLEVELAND ROADSTER USED AS BUSINESS CAR

"Although the new Cleveland six roadster is pre-eminently the young people's car, it is fast building up a large following among salesmen and managers of public service corporations," says John Boe, president of the St. Louis Motor Car Co., local distributer.

"The duties of these men are such that it is necessary for them to travel long distances by motor car, often carrying heavy, cumbersome baggage, consequently the unusually large storage capacity of this model appeals to them. Unlike other cars in its class, the Cleveland six roadster's luggage compartment is accessible not only from the rear deck, but also through an opening guarded by a lock, directly back of the driver's seat."

ADDITIONAL PARKING SPACE ON 12TH STREET

Additional parking space which will accommodate at least 25 automobiles has been provided for during the past week on the west side of Twelfth street between Olive and Locust streets.

The transcontinental telephone line follows the route of the Victory Highway from California to the Rocky Mountains.

KELLY-SPRINGFIELD CHANGES SALES POLICY

The recent move by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co. in consolidating its general offices in the new building at 250 West Fifty-seventh street, New York, is indicative of more than merely an effort to organize more efficiently the executive branch of its large business.

The truly interesting and significant feature of the reorganization of office arrangements is the fact that the New York branch has been moved to the company's warehouse at 553 West Fifty-seventh street, a step which is really equivalent to giving up the branch altogether, since it has now no display rooms, sales counters or any of the other appurtenances of the usual tire store.

The company intends to establish warehouses in various centers of distribution where railroadd facilities are best suited to give prompt service to its dealers, and where it now maintains branches these will be supplanted by offices, which in many cases will be in the warehouses themselves.

The St. Louis branch at 3221 Locust street will be closed and moved to the company's warehouse at Broadway and Mullanphy street.

SILENCE

In the Northland there is the brooding wilderness—Silence. "The Silent Places." ¶ Deep waters, stark pines, moose, wolf, trout and frontiersman are silent—the silence of strength unreckonable. ¶ When you have ridden in the Wills Sainte Claire you will realize that noise is not needful for the expression of vast power; that bulk and weight are not needful for strength and speed and safety. ¶ Here Science, even as Nature, has achieved perfection in lightness, compactness and silence.

Have you ridden in the Wills Sainte Claire?

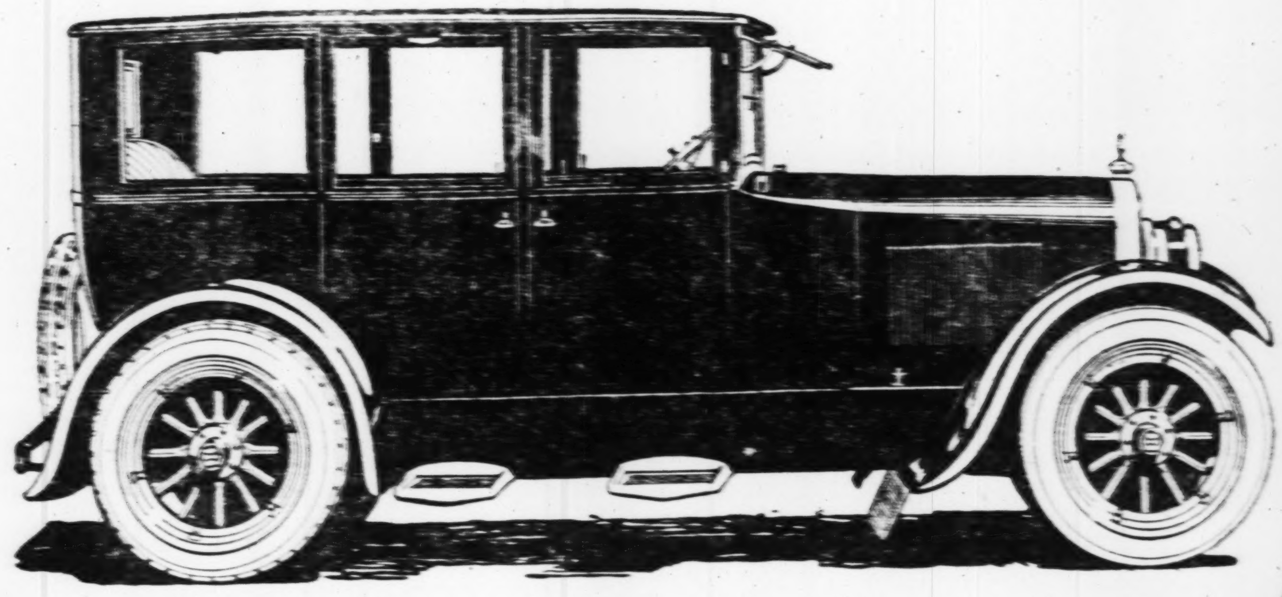
CLEVELAND SIX



The Wonder Car Of The Year

SEE this wonderfully beautiful, stylish Cleveland Six sedan—and no compromise type of closed car will ever again interest you.

For here is, without question, the most astonishing value ever offered.

In four months this new Cleveland Six sedan has swept into nation-wide popularity.

Its new design, its individual style, its smartness, appeal irresistibly to all who see it.

Its superb finish, the splendid quality and fine workmanship of the interior trimming and upholstery, its spacious comfort, make this sedan the equal of cars costing hundreds of dollars more.

Never until now has a full-sized, genuine four-door six cylinder sedan of such superlative quality been offered at a price which is so phenomenally low!

It is even lower in price than any four cylinder sedan of equal size and power—except one. And the Cleveland is a six!

Yet in this remarkable achievement there is not the slightest hint of sacrifice in quality.

The handsome metal-paneled bodies are built by Fisher, America's leading maker of fine closed car bodies.

In the powerful, pliant, smooth-running motor such features as silent chain drive, straight line manifold, double valve springs, roller valve-lifters, wick lubrication of rocker arms, are exclusive in the Cleveland or only found in much higher priced cars.

Thousands of these new Cleveland Six Sedans are already in the hands of owners who are more enthusiastic every day in their proud possession of this wonderful car and its remarkable performance.

SUBDIVISION LOTS IN UNIVERSITY CITY ARE SELLING FAST

Contracts Let for Three Houses in Ames Place and Six More Will Be Built in a Short Time.

UNIVERSITY PARK SITES IN DEMAND

Plans Drawn for Several Handsome Homes in This Tract and Surface Improvements to Beautify It Will Be Made.

By Berry Moore.

During the past week Ames place and University Park were noteworthy centers of real estate activity. The one is virtually an extension to Parkview and the other an addition to University Heights, both being in University City.

William Cady, real estate officer of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., announces the sale of eight lots in Ames place. All the lots have bene acquired as sites for homes and construction is to be started as soon as the plans are available.

The Mississippi Valley Trust Co., on behalf of R. A. & G. B. Bullock, has let contracts for construction of three houses on Melville avenue, which forms the line of demarkation between Ames place and Parkview, but which is embraced in the Ames place plat. Each building will have seven rooms, including two bedrooms 17x12 feet, a tile bath and hardwood floors, and will occupy a lot 50x130 feet. Contracts will be let for construction of six more buildings of the same size and type.

These buildings are being offered for sale from the blue prints and the prediction is ventured that they will be disposed of before completion.

Ames Place Nearly Sold Out.

With the exception of about 25 lots, Ames place, comprising 250 lots, is out of the market, so far as the Ames estate is interested, according to the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., under whose supervision it was laid out and which has exclusive sale of the tract. Most of the purchasers of lots in this addition have erected homes on a handsome scale.

Except for a dozen lots, Parkview has been absorbed, so far as the original owners of the ground are concerned, although a few lots are held for resale at materially advanced prices. Otherwise, the addition is virtually built up.

Many lots have been sold in University Park, placed on sale only a week ago. Lots in this addition are being exploited both for home sites and for investment. The tract lies on the north side of Delmar boulevard, constituting virtually a continuation of University Heights. The subdivision is right in the track of the westward growth of St. Louis, and therefore has decided speculative advantages.

Handsome Homes Planned.

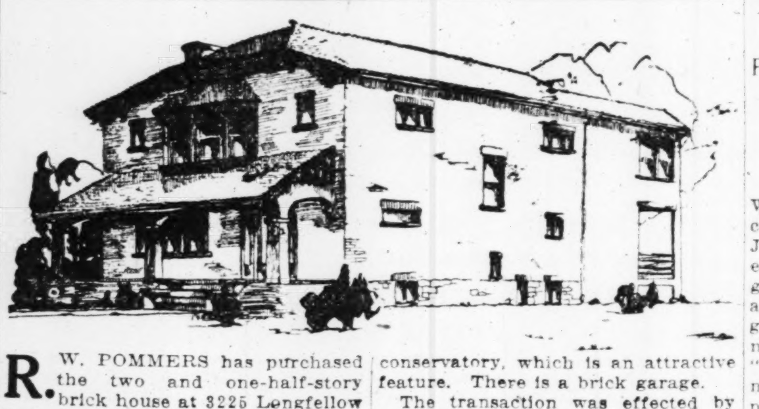
Plans have been made for several handsome homes for University Park, which will be started as soon as the plans are approved by the board of trustees of the adidtion, which is owned and being marketed by the Cyrus-Crane-Willmore organization.

Construction of surface improvements, details of which are being perfected, will be started in May, according to Willmore. As fast as the development proceeds, trees and shrubbery that will add to the natural beauty of the property will be set out.

The superb homes of Frank Rand, president of the International Shoe Co., William Niekamp, president of the Beck & Corbett Iron Co., and Mark Steinberg, are on the south side of Delmar boulevard, opposite University Park in the 7100 block, while Tood Cella recently started construction in this block of a home, the cost of which is estimated at $80,000, exclusive of the site.

"We will endeavor to make University Park even more beautiful than University Heights, the section adjoining University Park on the east," said Willmore in discussing the big new subdivision. "Part of the subdivision has been restricted exclusively to bungalows. The lots on Princeton, Cambridge and Cornell have been restricted to homes of not less than two full stories and not more than two and one-half stories in height. This will assure buildings of a high order, with lots 55 and 60 feet wide."

Longfellow Boulevard Residence Which Has Changed Owners



R. W. POMMERS has purchased the two and one-half-story brick house at 3225 Longfellow boulevard in Compton Heights, from the Marie Vogel estate. The house has nine rooms, a tile bath and a conservatory, which is an attractive feature. There is a brick garage.

The transaction was effected by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., in connection with the Mathews Realty Co.

HOMES AND APARTMENTS SOLD BY FRANCIS-PERRY-RUTH

The Francis-Perry-Ruth Realty Co. reports the sales last week of two apartments, three residences and two lots in the West End. They state that two four-family apartment buildings being erected under their supervision in North Parkview, although just under roof, have been sold from the plans.

They have sold the six-room two-story residence of the bungalow type at 7132 Waterman avenue for Walter W. Schiek to William H. Bryning, also the seven-room bungalow on the south side of Lynn avenue, just west of Hanley road, for Josephine Gordon to John Dell. In conjunction with John S. Blake they have sold the 10-room modern residence at 5138 Raymond place to Michael C. Murnane, president of the Crystal Plate Co., who is making extensive improvements and will occupy it as his home.

They have sold for Henry Bohnemeyer to Fred Schilling a 50-foot lot on the south side of Washington avenue, immediately adjoining the new site of the First United Presbyterian Church which is to be erected on the southeast corner of Adelaide and Washington avenues. Schilling is to improve the lot with an up-to-date six-family apartment, having suites of five rooms, sun room and sleeping porch. They have also sold another apartment site fronting 40 feet on the north side of Clemens avenue by 177 feet deep, about 120 feet east of Clara avenue, to be improved with a high-class apartment. This property was sold for John E. Massengale to Mabel A. White.

RESIDENCE AND STORE SOLD BY KOLLAS-LUPFER COMPANY

The Kollas-Lupfer Real Estate Co. reports the sale of 2904 Geyer avenue, in Compton Heights, an elegant nine-room residence, from Edmund L. Wachter to Albert Rist for a home. This company also sold the 50-foot lot on the southwest corner of Nebraska and Geyer avenues, adjoining the Wachter residence, from August H. Kollas to Albert Rist, the modern four-room flat, 3453 Keokuk street, for Nicholas Loch; 2637 Chippewa street, store building with three rooms and bath, for John Ramseyer to Fred Querling; 30 feet on the east side of Adkins avenue, north of Varrelmann avenue, for Ennis Rigler to Arthur Ritter; also made loans to the amount of $78,000, and has a number of sales under contract unclosed.

DANCING TO FOLLOW REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE BANQUET

The annual installation banquet of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange will be held in the Planters Hotel ballroom Wednesday evening, May 10, from 6:30 to midnight, as announced by B. F. Dickman, chairman of the committee in charge. The banquet and speakers will consume the time between 6:30 and 10 o'clock after which two hours will be given over to dancing and other entertainment. The dancing feature is an innovation, as it has been the custom heretofore to confine these affairs to men. This year special invitations are being extended to the ladies.

BUSINESS RECOVERY NOT UNIFORM, BANKER SAYS

President of Liberty Central Trust Company Speaks at Legion Meeting.

In a speech yesterday at the Fred W. Stockham Post No. 245, American Legion, at the American Annex, J. L. Johnston, president of the Liberty Central Trust Co., likened the general business situation of today as to a large mass made up of a great number of different elements, moving steadily but very slowly. "The different elements in the mass, moreover," said Johnston, "are not progressing at exactly the same rate; the relations between these different elements are changing from day to day and from week to week."

"In considering general conditions there are a large number of elements or sets of facts, that for many years have served to indicate and in some cases, predict, the trend of business. In a time like this, when we are emerging from a period of liquidation, it is not surprising to find a certain lack of uniformity in what these different indications show. In other words, improvement has started in some lines and not in others.

"The reason for our belief that general conditions are improving is that the great majority of these business indications are showing up more favorably as time goes on. While there are still a good many important factors that serve as obstacles, never the less the favorable elements are much more numerous than the unfavorable. What we should expect and, in fact, hope for, is the continued slow and steady progress toward normal conditions. We do not want any booms, but prosperity on a firm foundation."

"To use a phrase which has been frequently employed, we are justified in looking at the future with conservative optimism."

Thurman W. Payne, of the Bond Department of the Liberty Central, introduced Johnston. Robert Kratky, commander of the post, presided.

REALTY SALES REPORTED BY ANTHONY SCHMITT COMPANY

The Anthony Schmitt Real Estate Co. reports the sale of 3834 Windsor place, a single 4 and 5 room flat, for Joseph H. Weber to a client; a one-story, 4-room brick cottage at 3004 North Newstead avenue, for a client to Charles Camozzi and wife; 4525 St. Louis avenue, single 3 and 3 room flat, for a client to Thomas Hall and wife; 3134 Bell avenue, single 4 and 5 room flat, for Joseph H. Weber to Burrell Astrapp and wife; cottage, 3045 New Ashland place, for Paul Schmitt to Thomas Rooney and wife; 2204-06 South Fourth street, double three-room flat, for a client to John L. Schroer; 2734 Cass avenue, store and flat above, for a client to Joseph H. Weber; 3749-51-53 Cass avenue, four stores and flats above, for a client of the office; 3207 Eads avenue, six-room residence, for a client; 50 acres, improved farm, Binney, Ill., for Theodore L. Niemoeller to Louis Poirrier and wife; 175 acres near Woodland, Ill., improved; 110 acres, Farmington, Mo., improved; 2313 Wash street, six-family flat, for Roy Holden to Arthur A. Lawrence and wife; 40-acre farm, improved, Eminence, Mo., for Arthur A. Lawrence and wife, represented by the Associated Realty Co.; six-room bungalow, Maplewood, Mo.

"HOME FINANCE" REPORTS MANY LOANS TO PURCHASERS

A concern known as "Home Fifance," with offices in the Arcade Building, Eighth and Olive streets, reports having made many loans recently to purchasers of homes, and to home builders. The headquarters of the organization, of which H. A. Tills is the local head, and in Kansas City.

Prior to becoming identified with Home Finance, Tills was sales manager of the Lincoln Housing Trust, for more than two years. Miss Bessie Phillips was formerly with the Lincoln Housing Trust and is connected with Home Finance in an executive capacity.

R. L. Willis and C. C. Gardner are trustees for the institution, which is offering money at 3 per cent.

DEMAND FOR LOTS IN MOTOR HEIGHTS SAID TO BE GROWING

The demand for lots in oMtor Heights is increasing every week, according to the Davis Realty Development Co., which owns the property. It is situated between St. Louis, Goodfellow and Clara avenues. Along St. Louis and Goodfellow avenues investors are buying lots for business purposes.

Purchasers of lots in the remainder of the property expect to build apartment houses and homes for men working in the neighboring industrial districts. The large factories in the northwest section are rapidly beginning to work full time and the need for homes for workmen is increasing.

Sells O'Fallon Park Home.

Charles Gundlach reports the sale of 4240 West Florissant avenue, a 10-room residence, facing O'Fallon Park, for F. W. Beinke to Anna L. Brownfield, who will make it her home.

CALIFONIA SETTING PLANNED FOR NEW REALTY VENTURE

An original venture in providing suitable building lots for attractive homes has been undertaken in the establishment of Hollywood Heights, Webster, by the Alfred Baker Realty Co., 802 Chestnut street. The owners of this tract conceived the idea of bringing to St. Louis the attractive type of bungalow so popular in California. Hollywood Heights is being subdivided into lots of 50-foot fronts by 152 feet in depth, and is being offered to the public at a very reasonable price. As the usual type of California bungalow averages 35 feet in width it can readily be seen that 50-foot lots will give ample space between.

It is the idea of the owners that everything within this tract of land shall be as near like California as the natural and local resources of the community permit. Two 40-foot streets are being constructed, one of which will be named Hollywood place and the other Oaks court. The present stand of oak and hickory trees give the tract a natural park-like appearance.

In addition to the many beauties of the place, both natural and to be constructed, this site is also most conveniently situated as to transportation facilities. The Manchester avenue car line passes the property and the Missouri Pacific Railway station is within 200 feet of the northwest corner of the property, thus placing Hollywood Heights within 31 minutes of the heart of the business section of the city.

The Alfred Baker Realty Co., of 802 Chestnut street, St. Louis, are handling this property for the owners.

LOT SALES IN GREATER GARDENVILLE TERRACE

Agents Report Having Disposed of More Than $90,000 Worth in New Subdivision.

According to the agents, more than $90,000 worth of lots have been sold in Greater Gardenvile Terrace. The property is situated west of King's highway at 5900 south and is reached by the Cherokee car.

The terrace is being graded by Leonard Gray, a St. Louis grading contractor. James A. Hodges, who is handling the sale, for the Mederacke Building & Realty Co., says that more than 40,000 yards of dirt are being removed in order to give the terrace a gradual slope from King's highway west to the end of the property.

Improvements, including sidewalks, sewers, water and streets, are being rapidly installed. Contracts aggregating over $100,000 have been let by the Mederacke company preparatory to the erection of bungalows and flats in the terrace.

Hodges will establish an office in South St. Louis and his firm will be known as the James A. Hodges Investment Co. Hodges will be president and the other officers will be named later. The new company's business will be confined entirely to subdivision work, of which Hodges has long made a specialty.

LONG TRIED TO FALSIFY FACTS, HYDE DECLARES

Governor Gives Utterance to Wrath Over Democratic Senatorial Candidate's Speech at Poplar Bluff.

"APPROPRIATION FIGURES TOO HIGH"

Executive Defends Full Valuation Tax Plan, and Cites Benefit to Schools of State.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 29.—Gov. Hyde tonight gave utterance to wrath kindled by charges against his administration made by Breckinridge Long, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate in a campaign speech at Poplar Bluff Thursday night. The Governor declared in a prepared statement that Long "maliciously tried to falsify the issue by misrepresenting the facts" as to "true value" assessment of property for taxation, that Long had willfully tried to deceive with regard to appropriations of the last Legislature, and that Long's remarks upon "redistricting are so insincere as to be pitiful."

Long ought not to be blamed for the speech, however, Hyde observed, for "He did not write it." He does not know anything about the facts. His society duties in Washington have been too strenuous for him to inform himself. The speech is nothing but the fabricated dream stuff created of, for and by Rufe Hollister. Rufe, not Breck, is the yap. But Breck ought to check Rufe up on the facts. If he does not, I am afraid the palatial home of the Longs in Washington will never hold a Senator."

W. R. Hollister of Jefferson City, apparently referred to by the Governor, is Long's campaign manager.

Long Assailed Administration.

Long's speech, which so provoked the Governor, was delivered last Thursday night at Poplar Bluff, southeast Missouri, as the formal opening of a campaign against Senator James A. Reed for the Democratic nomination. Long studiously avoided any mention of Reed. Instead he devoted a large part of his speech to pillorying the Republican State administration, attacking its taxation policies, picturing it as extravagant and describing Hyde personally as a "politically ambitious and designing Governor."

After going over in considerable detail the appropriation phase of the Long charges, Hyde went into the taxation argument, declaring that although assessments had been increased in some respects, the State tax rate had been decreased from 18 cents to 8 cents exclusively for the blind pension tax and that the actual amount collected for State purposes exclusive of the blind pension tax was $1,122,000 less in 1921 than in 1920. The chief benefit from "true value" assessment from a practical standpoint, Hyde pointed out, is in increased finances which local subdivisions had been enabled to give to their schools, asking Long if the latter desires to go back to the old system.

Reference to Redistricting.

In discussing Long's condemnation of the administration consolidation bill, the Governor recalled that the Democratic State platform in 1920 declared for a budget bill which should require "abolishment of useless offices" asking what that meant but consolidation.

"At the very time Mr. Long was delivering his speech upon redistricting," Hyde said, "he was standing in a congressional district which is shaped like a hatchet and runs from Illinois to within two counties of Oklahoma, a district in itself so shamelessly gerrymandered as to give affront to the ideas of justice of any fair-minded man."

The Governor gave much care to the preparation of his statement, practically denying himself to callers during the day, while he went over figures and cast and recast the subject matter to be contained in his answer to Long, whose charges he took to be typical probably of those upon which Democrats will base their fight in the campaigns preceding the primary in August and the election in November.

Statement, in Part.

Hyde's statement, in part, follows:

"The speech made by Breckinridge Long at Poplar Bluff is so filled with false statements that it is possible to notice only a few. In the first place, the statement that the Legislature appropriated $30,254,916.11 is a willful attempt to deceive. If appropriations out of the [illegible] revenue funds are meant to be covered (and this is the only fair measure of State expenses) the statement is over $10,000,000 too large. If all appropriations, including roads, revolving funds and department not sustained by taxes but by fees collected, are intended to be covered, then the figures are millions too small for any administration in the last 10 years.

"In order to make a showing that the Legislature appropriated $30,000,000, Mr. Long included House bill No. 70, carrying $4,462,700 to eleemosynary institutions. This bill was a duplication due to the transfer of the eleemosynary institutions to the control of a nonpartisan board. Mr. Long must know that the amount never was a charge against the State revenue. It was afterwards repealed. He also includes $2,862,040 appropriated for departments supported by fees only. Not a cent of this is a charge against the State revenue. He also includes $300,000 appropriated for Capitol decoration, $530,000 for interest, $1,000,000 to pay Capitol bonds, none of which came out of the general revenue fund, but all of which comes from interest, the sinking fund, or other special funds.

Grand Total of $18,000,000.

"The utter falsity of the attempt to show appropriations of $30,000,000 out of the direct tax collected is best proven by the fact that the total gross income of the general revenue fund of the State is estimated at approximately $24,000,000 in two years. Out of this one-third must go to the public schools, leaving $16,000,000 to go to the payment of appropriations made by the Legislature. To this sum should be added approximately $2,000,000 which was left as the surplus by the Gardner administration, making a grand total of about $18,500,000 to be expended by the State for all administrative purposes.

"The appropriations made by the last Legislature, after deducting duplications due to the attempt to create consolidated departments, amounted to about $18,500,000. These appropriations were somewhat larger than the amounts appropriated by the Gardner administration in 1919. The increases in amounts are explained by the fact that since the great deficit of the Major administration, no new buildings had been constructed in Missouri and almost no repairs had been made on old buildings. It was the highest kind of economy as well as of vital importance to the welfare of the educational and eleemosynary interests of the State that these institutions be enlarged and put in better physical condition.

Funds for New Buildings.

"The Legislature appropriated for new buildings over $2,500,000 and for repairs on existing buildings nearly $1,000,000. It devoted to the State University and the State Teachers College $6,157,892, which is $2,878,736 more than the amount devoted by the Gardner administration to these institutions. The Legislature undertook some new and much needed activities for the State, such as increasing the appropriation and the usefulness of the State Board of Health, the State Geological Board; providing for the survey of waterpower; establishing a children's home and other betterments of State service.

"I would like to know whether Mr. Long complains of the expenditure of any of the $4,500,000 for new buildings and repairs of the State Institutions; of the $6,157,892 for the State University and the State Teachers' Colleges and all other expenditures for the betterment of the State service?

Increase in Farm Taxes.

"Taxes collected from the farmers of the State on farm lands were increased by the new assessment 12.4 per cent while the taxes on the farmers' hogs and mules and all other livestock were decreased from 26 to 58 per cent, so that upon purely farm property the entire increase upon the farms of the State was less than 2 per cent. Considering that a considerable proportion of the money, notes and bonds, and bank stock are owned by the farmers, it is not probable that the farmers of the States, as a class, paid as much taxes in 1921 to the State as was paid in 1920. The total amount of the increase for all the farmers of the State upon farm lands and live stock was only $26,528.09.

"The evident intention of Mr. Long was to create the impression that because property was assessed at its true value in 1921, instead of the fractional value of 1920, the amount of the taxes would be greatly increased. That this is a false presumption has been repeatedly shown. The Board of Equalization increased the assessment, taking the State as a whole, 70 per cent. They cut the rate for State purposes from 18 cents to 8 cents. It is perfectly obvious, therefore, that the amount of taxes collected for State purposes was less in 1921 than in 1920, the actual amount of decrease on property tax being $1,122,000, exclusive of the blind pension tax.

Effect of Full Valuation.

"The fact that the State collects less taxes this year than last is sufficient evidence that full valuation is not a tax increasing measure. Full valuation is a part of a program to give the power to the people of the counties and school districts to support their own roads, schools and local districts in whatsoever fashion they may themselves elect to support them. That full valuation has already accomplished much is sufficiently shown by the fact that in 1920 there were 852 rural school districts which had an assessed valuation of $30,000 or less, and therefore under the full constitutional maximum of 65 cents tax on the $100 valuation could not raise to exceed $195 a year to support their school. Under full valuation this number decreased to 252.

"In 1920 there were 868 high schools which could not raise to exceed $260 a year. This number has been decreased to 357. In 1920 there were 5511 rural schools which had to subsist on $520 a year or less. Full valuation has taken 2345 of these schools and placed them in a class where they can be supported by their patrons if the patrons so elect.

Benefit to Schools.

"The patrons of the rural schools do desire the right to support their own institutions. This is shown by the fact that in 1920 81 per cent of the school districts of the State voted voluntarily to tax themselves the full constitutional maximum, and in 1921, under full valuation, they increased their own taxes $7,372,472.80 for school purposes alone. Although the enumeration of school children increased only 1275 in 1921 over 1920, there was an increased enrollment of 41,226, and there were nearly 6,000,000 more school days taught during 1921 than there were in 1920.

"Since this has been accomplished by true valuation, accompanied by a reduction in the State property tax of $1,122,000 and without costing the farmer a single additional penny in State taxes, I would like to ask Mr. Long whether he would be willing to go back to an assessment on the farms of $722,000,000, thereby denying to the farmer the opportunity to use his own property as a basis within his own school district to support a school for his own children?"

NOTORIOUS WOMAN THIEF SOUGHT HERE

Cleveland Police Want "Cat-Eyed Housemaid."—$2500 in Rewards Up.

Elsie McDowell, one of the most notorious women thieves in the country, known to the police as the "cat-eyed housemaid," is being sought here at the request of the police of Cleveland, where she is charged with taking jewelry valued at more than $10,000 from the house of a wealthy resident of Cleveland Heights a few days ago.

A reward of $2000 is offered for her arrest, which is in addition to a standing offer of $500 which has been offered here since she robbed the home of Mrs. George C. Mackay, 5880 Lindell boulevard, of a quantity of jewelry Feb. 15, last. Other rewards are outstanding in several cities.

Gets Job as Maid, Then Steals.

Although she has been remarkably successful in carrying out her enterprises, the woman's scheme is almost always the same. She merely obtains employment in the home of a wealthy person, and awaits her chance to steal and escape.

In getting a position at the Mackay home, she used an ingenious device. She advertised for a maid. One named Elizabeth Decker answered the advertisement, and called upon the McDowell woman, bringing her references. The woman took the names of the references, and then applied at the Mackay home, giving her name as Elizabeth Decker, and furnishing the names which she had from the real Elizabeth Decker. These persons, in response to Mrs. Mackay's inquiries, gave Elizabeth Decker an excellent character, and Elsie got the job.

She worked there for three days and then when alone in the house with his mistress, maneuvered the latter into a closet and locked the door. She exhibited a revolver, and gave warning that she would use it. She collected all the jewelry she could find and departed.

Robbed Homes Here in 1905.

The Cleveland robbery was of a similar sort. The Cleveland police thought she might return here. She robbed three homes here in 1905. She was arrested in Cincinnati in 1911, but was dismissed because the statutory limitation had expired. Later, however, she was sent to the Joliet (Ill.) penitentiary for an indeterminate sentence, and served several years.

She is described as having one gray eye and one blue, from which she derives the sobriquet by which she is known to the police and the underworld.

New Pullman Service on C. & A.

An all-Pullman train, including a "stag" Pullman for men and a special drawing room Pullman for women, will be put into service tonight between St. Louis and Chicago by the Chicago & Alton Railroad. The train's daily departure time will be 11:59 p. m., with arrival in Chicago at 7:45 a. m. It will be a non-stop train and the first all-Pullman between the cities.

THE BEREAVED FAMILY.

APPLICANTS answering advertisements are advised to not mail original recommendations. Copies will do. The originals can be presented when the interview is granted.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

JONES.—The abbreviation G. O. P. stands for Grand Old Party.

C. T.—We cannot identify the coin described, take it to a coin dealer to determine its value.

C. H. L.—Read the motion picture magazines for information concerning the movie stars.

WANT TO KNOW.—Edgar Guest's address is 408 Atkinson avenue, Detroit, Mich.

B. B. S.—Lists of names of dancing instruction classes are given in the telephone and city directories.

S. P.—We advise you to advertise for this character of work, or watch the advertisements for housekeeping work.

B. S.—Write the War Department, Washington, D. C., to obtain the information you desire in regard to the location of the division.

M. K.—The small cent dated 1880 is worth 1c to 2c; of 1869, 1c to 3c; of 1864, 1c to 2c. The 5c piece of 1887 is worth 5c to 25c; of the year 1870, 5c to 10c.

BILLY.—The royal flush in playing draw poker is a difficult hand to make, therefore it would be the exception to have two or more players holding royal flushes. The suits would rank hearts, diamonds, clubs and spades and the two royal flushes held by players would be rated according to that ranking.

ANTHONY.—The average size of an adult male tiger is 9½ feet from the nose to tip of tail. Authentic measurements exceeding 11 feet are very rare, and stories of tigers being 15 to 18 feet are entirely erroneous. Its height at the shoulder is proportionately less than that of the lion, a large male measuring from 3 1-3 to 3½ feet. A 10-foot tiger will weigh about 300 pounds.

RADIO MAD.—Your location undoubtedly is bad for receiving wireless, but not hopeless. Your set seems all right, if connected properly. Can you not get some high school boy familiar with crystal sets to look your station over? Finding sensitive spots on crystal is something of a knack. Do not have the wire pressed too closely to the surface. It should touch it lightly.

JOHN.—The United States Shipping Board maintains free navigation schools for the Merchant Marine Service at the following ports: San Francisco, Cal.; Chicago, Ill.; New Orleans, La.; Portland and Rockford, Me.; Baltimore, Md.; Boston, Mass.; Jersey City, N. J.; New York and Brooklyn, N. Y.; Cleveland, O.; Philadelphia, Pa., and Seattle, Wash. Apply to Capt. E. L. Evans, Director of Recruiting Service for the United States Shipping Board, 45 Broadway, New York City, N. Y., as to the requirements for the service.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

RENTER.—You are entitled to a month's notice to vacate before he can put you out.

ONE-THREE-EIGHT.—You are entitled to the Missouri bonus from May 14, 1917, in our opinion.

TENANT.—You will have to vacate on the date stated in the notice.

F.—The witnesses need not sign the will in the presence of the lawyer, as long as they do so in your presence.

P. L.—Suit for injuries sustained in a railroad accident must be brought within 5 years after the injury occurred.

E. S.—The Constitution of Missouri is that a Governor shall be ineligible to re-election as his own successor.

WORRIED ONE.—A should have his marriage to B annulled, then he can marry the "common-law woman" or not, as he pleases.

C. B. M.—In our opinion you are entitled to a Missouri bonus for 3 months' service, i. e., $30, provided that your service was honorable.

CONSTANT READER.—On the facts you give, your employes had no right to do this, and you are entitled to a commission on the sale, the same as if you had sold the cages yourself. You can sue them for the commission, if you think it worth while.

MOTHER.—The husband's property, except such as has been acquired from the wife, is exempt from debts incurred by her before her marriage. The mother is not liable for the bill incurred by the daughter, unless it was for necessaries.

3-19—1. In reference to the meaning of the letters "SS" on an affidavit: The Supreme Court of Nebraska has said that "there is no particular virtue in the cabalistic character 'ss,' which is presumed to have been anciently symbolic of something, but nobody knows precisely what." It is generally held to be an abbreviation of "silicet" meaning "to wit." 2. The Bulk Sale Law is too long to summarize or reprint here. You can read it at the Public Library. Revised Statues of Missouri, 191, Vol. 1, pages 930-932.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

MAUD.—Nothing will restore the color of the hair, except dye which we do not recommend.

LOTTY.—You should consult an ear specialist. If unable to pay a private physician, apply at the clinic, Scott avenue and Duncan, or Grand and Caroline.

M. O.—There is no list of foods that prevent or alleviate high blood pressure. Abnormal blood pressure has many causes and hence its prevention and alleviation depends on the correction of the causes.

D. R. E.—The following is often of service in cases of piles: Equal parts of washed sulphur, cream of tartar and powdered sugar. Mix thoroughly and take one to two teaspoons of this in a glass of water before breakfast.

READER.—The Barnard Skin and Cancer Hospital, Theresa and Washington, has a clinic where skin affections are treated free of charge. The institute is very reliable, so you need not fear because of the fact taht it is free, inferior materials are used. The clinic hours are from 2 to 4.

P.-D. READER.—Acne (pimples) is often due to deranged digestion, although other derangements of the health may cause it. A careful examination should be made and any fault corrected. The condition is very often coincident with adolescence and is very often caused by some genito urinary disturbance.

SUBSCRIBER.—Each case of eczema is a problem in itself. A good general treatment is during the day to dab on zinc oxide and calamine lotion, every 3 hours and let dry on. At night apply Lassars paste and cover with lint or cotton. 2. A good cleansing wash for the throat is equal parts of salt, cooking soda and sugar, mix thoroughly, dissolve one teaspoonful to the pint. Follow with a spray of some bland oil, such as liquid vaseline or pineoleum.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank all of our friends for their kindness and sympathy shown us in our sad bereavement of our dear father, son and brother, Corp. Max Messmer of Company B, Fifty-sixth Infantry, and for the many beautiful floral offerings. We especially thank the Rev. Father Feldt of St. Bernard's Church for his service. We also thank the American Legion, pallbearers and Kriegshauser Undertaking Co. The bereaved family,

CHARLIE MESSMER, MARIE MESSMER BROWN AND OTTO MESSMER.

We desire to thank our relatives and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown us in our sad bereavement in the loss of our beloved mother, Frieda O'Brien, our sister, mother-in-law, grandmother, sister-in-law, aunt and great-aunt; also Rev. H. Drees for his consoling words, and the pallbearers, the American Auto Insurance Co., Hamilton-Brown Sunlight Shoe Factory Shoe and Leather Dept., and the beautiful floral offerings.

WILLIAM DANIELS, EDWARD O'BRIEN, SONS. (c)

We wish to extend our sincere and heartfelt thanks to our relatives and many friends for their kindness and sympathy shown us during our late sad hour of bereavement in the loss of my dearly beloved wife and our dear mother, Mrs. Johanna E. Beaury, and for their many beautiful floral offerings. We especially thank the Rev. Nelson E. Aregood for his kind and consoling words, the pallbearers and the undertaker, Geo. L. Pleitsch, for his kind and efficient service. Joseph Beaury Sr., husband; Joseph Jr., Rudi A. and George C. Beaury, sons. (c)

I hereby wish to extend my sincere and most heartfelt thanks to the relatives and friends for their kind sympathy and condolences shown during the sad hour of bereavement in the loss of my beloved husband and father, George L. Petry. Especial thanks to the Rev. McAtee, the pallbearers, the Lafayette Council, No. 1940, K. of C., W. C. U. Branch 46, Holy Name Society and Hessen Verein, Wm. J. Robert, undertaker, for their kind services rendered; and also for the beautiful floral offerings.

ELLEN PETRY AND CHILDREN. (c)

We extend sincere thanks to relatives and friends for kindness and sympathy shown in our late bereavement in the loss of dear husband and loving father, Michael O'Connor. We especially thank Rev. Fathers Jones, Walsh and Darsey of St. Thomas of Aquin's Church, Rev. Father Bernard of St. Anthony's, Religieuse of the Sacred Heart, Knights of Columbus, Police Department, pallbearers, Weick Bros., undertakers, and relatives and friends for beautiful floral offerings. The bereaved widow,

MRS. NORA O'CONNOR AND CHILDREN.

We desire to thank our relatives and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown us in our sad bereavement in the loss of our beloved mother, Anna Michel, our mother-in-law, grandmother, sister, sister-in-law and aunt; also Rev. C. H. F. Haas for his consoling words, the pallbearers, Commercial Printing Co. and Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co., St. Louis Beyern Verein and Wacker-Heiderle, undertakers, and for the beautiful floral offerings.

CARRIE AND ELLA MICHEL AND ANNIE RINGWALD, DAUGHTER (AND FAMILY). (c)

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Mollie Weitkemper, who passed away April 25, 1921. Sadly missed by HER FAMILY. (c)

In loving remembrance of my dear, sweet little mother, Anna J. Watkins, who died nine years ago, May 2, 1913.

JOHN ARTHUR WATKINS.

In loving memory of John F. Meyer, who departed this life April 28, 1921.
Gone but not forgotten by
LILLIAN J. MEYER AND FAMILY. (c)

In loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, Henry A. Suerig, who passed away two years ago, April 26, 1920.
Gone, but not forgotten. Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mary Doermer, who departed this life five years ago, May 2, 1917.
Gone but not forgotten.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of Mrs. Bridget Heffernan, who departed this life May 2, 1917.
You are gone but not forgotten,
Nor shall you ever be;
As long as life and memory lasts,
I shall always remember thee.
Sadly missed by DAUGHTER MAY.

In memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Philipine Kugler, who passed away May 4, 1921.
I often sit and think of you
When I am all alone.
For memory is the only thing
That grief does call its own.
Sadly missed by daughter and family,
MR. AND MRS. M. J. FASSEL. (c)

In loving memory of our darling daughter, Florine Orf, who departed this life five years ago, April 29, 1917.
None knows the depth of our regret;
We remember when others forget.
Only those who have lost can tell the pain
Of parting with one we loved so well.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER AND DADDY.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Wiethop, who departed this life one year ago, April 26, 1921.
Days of sadness oft come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow.
Love shall always keep you near us,
Though you left one year ago.
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from our memory fade;
Loving hearts will always linger
Round the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN.

In loving remembrance of my dear father, who departed this life April 26, 1897.
For five and twenty years
I've shed many bitter tears.
With shattered hopes and a sad heart,
We were cruelly forced to part.
But at last in prayer I've found sweet peace,
For nothing else my mind would ease.
And when my mission here's complete,
May heaven above be our retreat.
Truly missed by his daughter,
SHERRY. (c)

GOOD POSITION

Wanted: two young men with automobiles; must be endowed with an ambition to succeed and well supplied with determination, clean cut and dependable; if you possess the necessary qualifications we will offer you a very attractive and permanent position; mechanical device; write immediately for an interview, include phone number. Box G-49, Post-Dispatch.

$3,600 Position Open

A successful Chicago concern, represented in other cities, wants a representative in St. Louis and one for St. Joseph. This is a real position and does not pertain to stocks, bonds, real estate or insurance. Good references required and some financial responsibility. Our patented article, on the market about five years, is in the field by itself, positively nothing like it, and the great demand is rapidly growing almost hourly. The sworn records of our representatives show it is possible to make from $400 to $1000 monthly. We do not sell territorial rights, but you must be thoroughly reliable, energetic, ambitious and have some financial responsibility, even though small, otherwise please don't apply. The remarkable merits of our patented article have already received the written and enthusiastic indorsement of Governor, Judges, bankers and business men all over America. Read this ad over carefully before replying, then write at once, giving residence and phone number. Communications strictly confidential. Outside inquiries be prepared to come to St. Louis at once for personal interview with our traveling manager. Box G-50, Post-Dis.

SALESMEN WANTED

SALESMEN
WAGE EARNERS
Employed or Unemployed

Do you care to better your position? If so, do not overlook this proposition. We can use 20 salesmen who are willing to join the fastest selling organization of its kind in America. Experience not necessary. We will teach you in three evenings in our night school, 7:30 until 10, how to sell our line successfully. You will not be obliged to leave your present position until you complete our training and are satisfied. We offer the best proposition in St. Louis to establish, for yourself, a permanent and future position of high standing and remuneration. Applicants must be 25 years of age or over. Call evenings at 7:30 o'clock, 1019 Pine st. Ask for Mr. Parent. (c3)

SALESMEN

We want 10 good, reliable salesmen to help us develop Wood River, Ill. Experience unnecessary. Call at our office Monday.

SALESMEN

We are always covering additional territory and seeking men who have a record of more than the average ability as salesmen; selling jobbers only.

CRUNDEN-MARTIN MFG. CO.
Second and Gratiot Sts. (c80)

SALESMEN

You men who are considering the very serious matter of selling household electrical appliances will serve yourself and your customers and friends best by fully investigating the unusually clean-cut sales proposition that we have to offer to the right kind of men—men who are square with themselves.

Our products, the Eden Electric Clothes Washer and the "America" Electric Suction Cleaner, are thoroughly established, give unusual satisfaction and are truly a blessing in the home.

We will give you proper training, the positions are permanent and there is plenty of opportunity to earn real money, for men and young men who will work and want to succeed.

If you are interested in a sales position, see us at once.
DOMESTIC ELECTRIC CO.,
F. X. Meehan,
908 Pine St.

$50 a Week
and Commission

Are you satisfied with what you are making? Would you like to earn $100 to $300 a week. Come in and meet some of our men who are making that much and more, selling our proposition.

If you are willing to really work for big money, and feel that you can qualify, we will be glad to talk things over with you. We can use a few good men at $50 a week and commission.

We furnish you live leads. Good salesmen sell half of them. We also furnish you an automobile to show property. Prizes of cash and Essex automobiles given to customers make it easy for you to sell them and get their co-operation. We have been in business in St. Louis for 15 years. Come in and see us between 9 a. m. and noon only. Ask for Mr. Philbrook.

MISCELLANEOUS FOR SALE

A "ROLLING STONE" gathers "no dough." We've been here 11 years and going strong. We are certainly slipping you "the goods" for your "jack" here. We'll let you "listen in" on these big values at $15, $18 and $20 suits, top coats and gabardines for spring; save 25 to 40 per cent; 10 per cent discount on suits and overcoats when cashing soldier bonus checks. We've got it on the world for selling "clothes at the rock-bottom prices." We have scored a regular "knock-out." What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you. These fine garments are made by manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for salesmen; they are made better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit. This policy enables us to save you money. All we ask is to "go shopping around" first and come here last. We will certainly get your 'dough.' Buy more, pay less. Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau, will give transfer to our door. "Abrams, the Place to Buy Clothes," 920 N. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau av. (c)

HEALTH CERTIFICATES FOR MARRIAGE APPLICANTS URGED

The Missouri Parent-Teachers' Association, at the close of its convention last week in the Webster Groves High School, passed a resolution favoring a requirement that applicants for marriage licenses show certificates of health.

A committee was appointed to work for a provision in the new State Constitution for a county library tax. It was said that there are 89 counties in the State without a tax-supported library, and therefore 2,000,000 persons without access to a public library. All members were urged to work for county libraries.

Resolutions also were passed to support the County Unit and Towner-Sterling bills; to urge enforcement of child labor laws, calling special attention to the theaters, and for intensive organizations of mothers of children of kindergarten age and the sponsoring at the next session of the Legislature of a bill providing that kindergartens be established on petition of a sufficient number of parents. The delegates commended Will Hays and urged him to prevent rebooking of any "Fatty" Arbuckle films.

Men Answer Questions About K.K.K.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., April 29.—J. D. Copeland, Police Commissioner, and Fred Reynolds, clerk of a local fraternal organization, this afternoon appeared before the grand jury and answered questions about the Ku Klux Klan which they previously had refused to answer. For their refusal they were adjudged in contempt of court and fined $100 each and sentenced to jail.

NEAR EAST RELIEF OBSERVANCE TODAY

Special Speakers Including Armenian Noblewoman at Many St. Louis Churches.

With the arrival in St. Louis yesterday of Gen. Mesrop Azgapetian and his wife, Lady Anne Azgapetian, an Armenian noble woman, and prominent clergymen and speakers from seven States, final plans were made for the observance of "Near East Relief Sunday" today in about 100 churches of the city and suburbs.

The Near East Relief, a nonsectarian organization, chartered by Congress solely for the purpose of administering relief to the peoples of the Near East, is operating 176 orphanages in addition to various hospitals, clinics and soup kitchens.

The Sunday movement in St. Louis is under the chairmanship of the Rev. John MacIvor, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, and 100 prominent St. Louis men and women.

It is requested that persons desiring to aid the movement send their checks to W. W. Smith, State treasurer, Near East Relief, 1422 Chemical Building, St. Louis.

In addition to the local clergy who will speak today, the following out-of-town speakers will be heard: Dr. A. M. Brodie, Washington, D. C., at Second Presbyterian Church; Lady Anne Azgapetian, at Christ Church Cathedral; Alonzo E. Wilson of Chicago, at Union Methodist Church; Dr. A. C. McCrea, New York, at Second Baptist Church; Dr. W. E. Doughty, New York, at Third Baptist Church; Dr. E. E. George, Nashville, Tenn., at Grace Methodist Church; Capt. Wayland Brookes, Chicago, at West Presbyterian Church; Dr. J. E. Kirbye, Des Moines, Ia., at Church of Messiah; W. A. Biby, Topeka, Kan., at University Methodist; F. J. Michel, Chicago, at Central Presbyterian; John W. Mace, New York, at Grace Episcopal Church, Kirkwood; Miss Edith Kinsman, St. Louis, at Hyde Park Congregational Church; General Mesrop Azgapetian at Church of the Redeemer; the Rev. R. C. Hufstader, Des Moines, Ia., at the Water Tower Baptist Church; Mrs. Anne Branch Cushing of Webster Groves, at the Webster Groves Baptist Church; Lieut. Joel Irving Connolly of the United States Public Health Service at Clayton Presbyterian Church; J. E. Fox at St. Augustine Episcopal Church; Gilbert Goodlett at Salem Reformed.

In addition to the church meetings, there will be a community mass meeting of St. Louis Greeks, held at the Planters Hotel at 2 p. m. Sunday afternoon. Dr. Kirbye and Dr. McCrea will be the speakers.

RUSSIAN DRAMA TO BE GIVEN

Dr. Gregory Zilboorg will produce "The Violins of Autumn," a Russian drama by Sourguchev, for the first time in America, tomorrow evening at the Little Theater of the Artists' Guild. The play, written for Mme. Chekov, leading lady of the Art Theater in Moscow, was translated by Dr. Zilboorg for the St. Louis performers who include members of the Artists Guild, the Players and students of Washington University.

"The Violins of Autumn" will be repeated on May 2, 16 and 17, with the following cast: Hazel Ewald, Eric Leon Applewhite, Florence Walters, Dr. Alphonse McMahon, Gustavus Tuckerman, Earl Godbold, Dr. W. W. Cherry, Elizabeth Todd, Rosalind Isaacs, Elizabeth Lord, Adele Eames, John Coffman, Paul Reed and Carol Kamerer.

"Uncle Vanya," Chekov's drama, which has been given by the Guild players several times, will be repeated on May 4, 16 and 18, with private performances on May 10 and 12 for the Chamber of Commerce and the College Club.

STRIKE OF ROOFERS IS ENDED BY SIGNING OF AGREEMENT

Work Will Be Resumed Tomorrow by About 200 Who Had Quit Work.

The strike of union roofers, which has been in effect since Wednesday, ended yesterday evening by the signing of a contract with employers for one year at a wage of $1 an hour, with an apprentice to each three journeymen. The strikers, about 200 in number, will return to work tomorrow.

The workmen are members of the United Slate, Tile and Composition Roofers, Damp Workers and Waterproofers' Union, Local No. 2, representatives of which met delegates of the Master Roofers' Association, comprising the employers, in the Wainwright Building. The conditions of the contract, including the wage, are the same as those which the roofers have worked under for the last three years. The strike was caused by an effort to assign one apprentice to each five journeymen.

CONVENTION OF SPIRITUALISTS

The Missouri Spiritualist Association will open its State convention at Fraternity Temple, 25 North Grand avenue, with a mass meeting at 8 o'clock this evening. The program will include each day this week, except tomorrow, and the convention will be concluded next Sunday.

Tuesday at 8 p. m. a reception will be held. Beginning with Tuesday and continuing for the entire convention, except next Sunday, business sessions will begin at 10 a. m. There also will be business sessions at 2 p. m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. From Wednesday to Sunday, inclusive, public mass meetings will be held at 8 o'clock each evening. A Sunday school demonstration will be held at 2:30 p. m. next Sunday.

18 DRUG PEDDLERS ENTER PLEAS OF GUILT

All Sentenced to Prison or Jail and 45 Others Indicted Plead Not Guilty and Will Stand Trial.

Eighteen drug addicts and peddlers, charged in indictments returned by a Federal grand jury with using and selling drugs, pleaded guilty before Judge Faris of the United States District Court yesterday and were sentenced to terms in jail or the penitentiary, ranging from three months to four years.

Sixty-three indictments charging violations of the Harrison antinarcotic laws were returned Friday by the grand jury, which had been in session two weeks. The remaining 45 accused persons elected to stand trial and entered pleas of not guilty.

All of those indicted have been arrested within the last several weeks. Since their arrests those who were sentenced yesterday have been in the city jail. Time thus spent will be deducted from sentences.

In addition to the indictments charging violations of the antidrug laws were 13 indictments alleging other offenses. The total number of indictments, together with 80 informations charging more than 100 persons with violations of the Volstead act, increased the already congested docket.

Those sentenced on drug charges were James Alden, five months; Howard Brinkley, two years; Reuben Clark, five months; Carl Corbett, two years; August Cruse, four years; Harold Hudson, four years; Leo Kauffman, four years; Thomas Lawler, four years; Thomas Murphy, three years; Mike Walsh, two years, and seven negroes and a negress who were given sentences of from three months to four years.

Doctor Arrested in Junk Yard.

Dr. Frank S. Alexander of 2108 Market street was arrested at 5:24 p. m. Friday in a junk yard at Seventeenth and Pine streets by narcotic inspectors, after they said he had sold a drug addict one dram of morphine sulphate for $20.

The doctor, the inspectors say, was called there by telephone by the addict and after a moment's conversation on the sidewalk they went behind a junk pile, where the transaction was completed in the sight and hearing of the inspectors, who were hidden. The drug was paid for with marked money which the inspectors say was found on Alexander after his arrest. The drug for which he received $20 is said to have cost him $1. Alexander was fined $1250 and costs by Judge Faris early in 1920 for selling two drams of morphine to an informer for $70.

BABY GASPS SIX HOURS AFTER IT HAD BEEN PRONOUNCED DEAD

Physicians Unable to Detect Heart Beats or Circulation, but Breathing Continues Several Hours.

As an undertaker's assistant was preparing the body of a 19-day-old negro child for burial at the undertaking establishment of Edward Mercer, Coroner of Madison County, at Granite City, at 4:20 p. m. Friday, he was startled to hear a gasp from the baby, which had been pronounced dead by a physician at 10:20 o'clock that morning.

The physician and another doctor were called, but by a thorough examination could detect no heartbeat or signs of circulation. At intervals, first of about a minute and later not more than once in 10 minutes, the infant continued to breathe in gasps. It was taken home and efforts made to revive it until 7:20, when all respiration ceased and it was again pronounced dead. The death certificate, made out earlier in the day, was altered as to the time of death, and the child was buried at Granite City yesterday afternoon, as first planned.

The physician who handled the case told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had never heard of a similar case in a child of that age and could offer no explanation. The baby, which weighed less than four pounds at birth and had taken almost no nourishment, had been almost dead for 10 days, he said. When pronounced dead the first time, the infant had become cold, he declared, and signs of rigor mortis were apparent.

Dr. Ralph L. Thompson, professor of pathology at the St. Louis University School of Medicine, said last night that he believed the case to be unique in medical annals for so young a person. He said cases of suspended animation among adults were known. A circulation and heart beat so low as to escape detection by the instruments of the physicians must have been present, he said.

Dr. Henry Schwarz, professor of obstetrics at the Washington University Medical School, said he had never heard of such a case of suspended animation in a baby so young. The only explanation he felt justified in advancing, he said, was that the instruments used by the physicians in their examination were faulty in some respect.

HARBORD READY TO SAIL ABROAD

Deputy Chief of Staff Will Confer on "Retreat" From Rhine.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Major-General Harbord, deputy chief of staff, cleared up his desk today preparatory to sailing from New York Monday for a two months' trip to Europe. While he is to confer with Major-General Allen at Coblenz relative to the work of closing out the affairs of the American Army of Occupation on the Rhine by July 1, most of Gen. Harbord's time abroad will be devoted to relaxation from the cares of his post here. Mrs. Harbord will accompany him.

FASHION AND OTHER COMMENT FROM PARIS

Women to Be "Symphonies" in One Color and Some Shoes Are to Be Red.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 29.—The return to simple organdie dresses, with extended hips, as in the days of Louis XIV, is promised by the big Paris dressmakers, who are just beginning to display their midsummer models. These "period dresses" all have the appearance of old fashion, but can be worn without corset, an element in women's dresses regarded as absolutely essential to the proper effect of dress in the time of Louis XIV.

Having decided that spring and summer frocks must have capes to match, fashion creators have decreed that shoes must now be worn to match the cape and dress. Paris shoemakers, therefore, have begun the manufacture of summer shoes of all shades, brick red, oyster and beige being the three colors most in demand.

Under this new dictum of fashion, women this summer, to quote one Paris dressmaker, will be "symphonies in one color." There will be no mixture or blending of colors. Every woman will have gown, cape, stockings and shoes of the same shade.

Dressmakers now feel they will be amply compensated for the long reign of black, whose vogue made the woman's wardrobe some 50 per cent cheaper than it is today.

Silk Hats Coming Back.

Among the incidental victims of the war, the high silk hat was one whose fate was regarded as definitely settled. It disappeared with the mobilization and it was found that marriages and funerals could be celebrated without its presence. None were manufactured. None were visible in stores. It required, during the war, a ministerial or an ambassadorial function of first importance to produce these rare specimens of apparel.

But now a Lazarus-like resurrection has occurred. The Jockey Club, the most aristocratic special body in France, has pronounced the "come forth" by deciding that henceforth its members must not appear at races without their shiny silk toppers.

Dempsey Comments on Cafe Bill.

"This is the most expensive town I've ever struck," exclaimed Jack Dempsey the other day as he looked over a bill presented him at the end of a meal in a boulevard cafe.

The champion pugilist, with Jack Kearns, his manager, a French newspaper man and the correspondent as his guests, each had just taken the equivalent of an ordinary American business man's lunch. Dempsey drank water and the three guests took an ordinary light wine. The bill read 226 francs, which, with the customary 10 per cent tip, increased it to 250.

Dempsey immediately translated the amount into dollars.

"Twenty-five bucks!" he expostulated. "Why, I could eat meals like that for a week in New York for that money."

"It must be great, Jack," said the correspondent, as guest and hosts sauntered out of the restaurant "to look over the boulevard crowds and be able to say to oneself: 'There's not a man in that crowd I can't lick.'"

"Don't you believe it," replied the champion, modestly. "There are perhaps half a dozen men on the boulevard now who, with a little training, could knock me for a goal."

Nurses' School Nears Completion.

The Florence Nightingale school for nurses, the permanent memorial to American nurses who gave their lives in France during the war, is now nearing completion at Talence near Bordeaux. It will be dedicated May 12, the 102d anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale.

No less than 273 American nurses died on duty in France, and 50,000 nurses in the United States have contributed to the fund making this school possible.

A simple bronze inscription on the building reads: "In memory of our comrades who died in service in the Great War, we nurses of America dedicate this memorial to the higher education of nurses for humanity and France."

St. Louis County Court Restrained From Going Ahead With 5 Indictments Against Realty Operator.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 29.—The Supreme Court en banc issued today a temporary order restraining Circuit Judge Wurdeman of St. Louis County from proceeding with five indictments pending in that county against Beverly C. Stevens, real estate operator, who was released Christmas eve from the penitentiary after serving two terms for illegal practices. The writ is returnable in 30 days and will be argued at the October call.

The contention on which the petition is based is that further proceedings are barred by the statute of limitations. The State's contention is that during the time that Stevens has been in prison the statute of limitations has not run.

Other cases, about 70 in all, are pending against Stevens in other counties, action in which, it is understood, will await final decision in the Supreme Court proceeding.

Groceryman Robbed of $80 by Negro.

Mat Young, proprietor of a grocery store at 4242 Finney avenue, was preparing to close up at 9:30 o'clock last night and had taken $80 from the cash register and put it in his pocket when a negro entered with a drawn revolver and took the $80 from him and ran away.

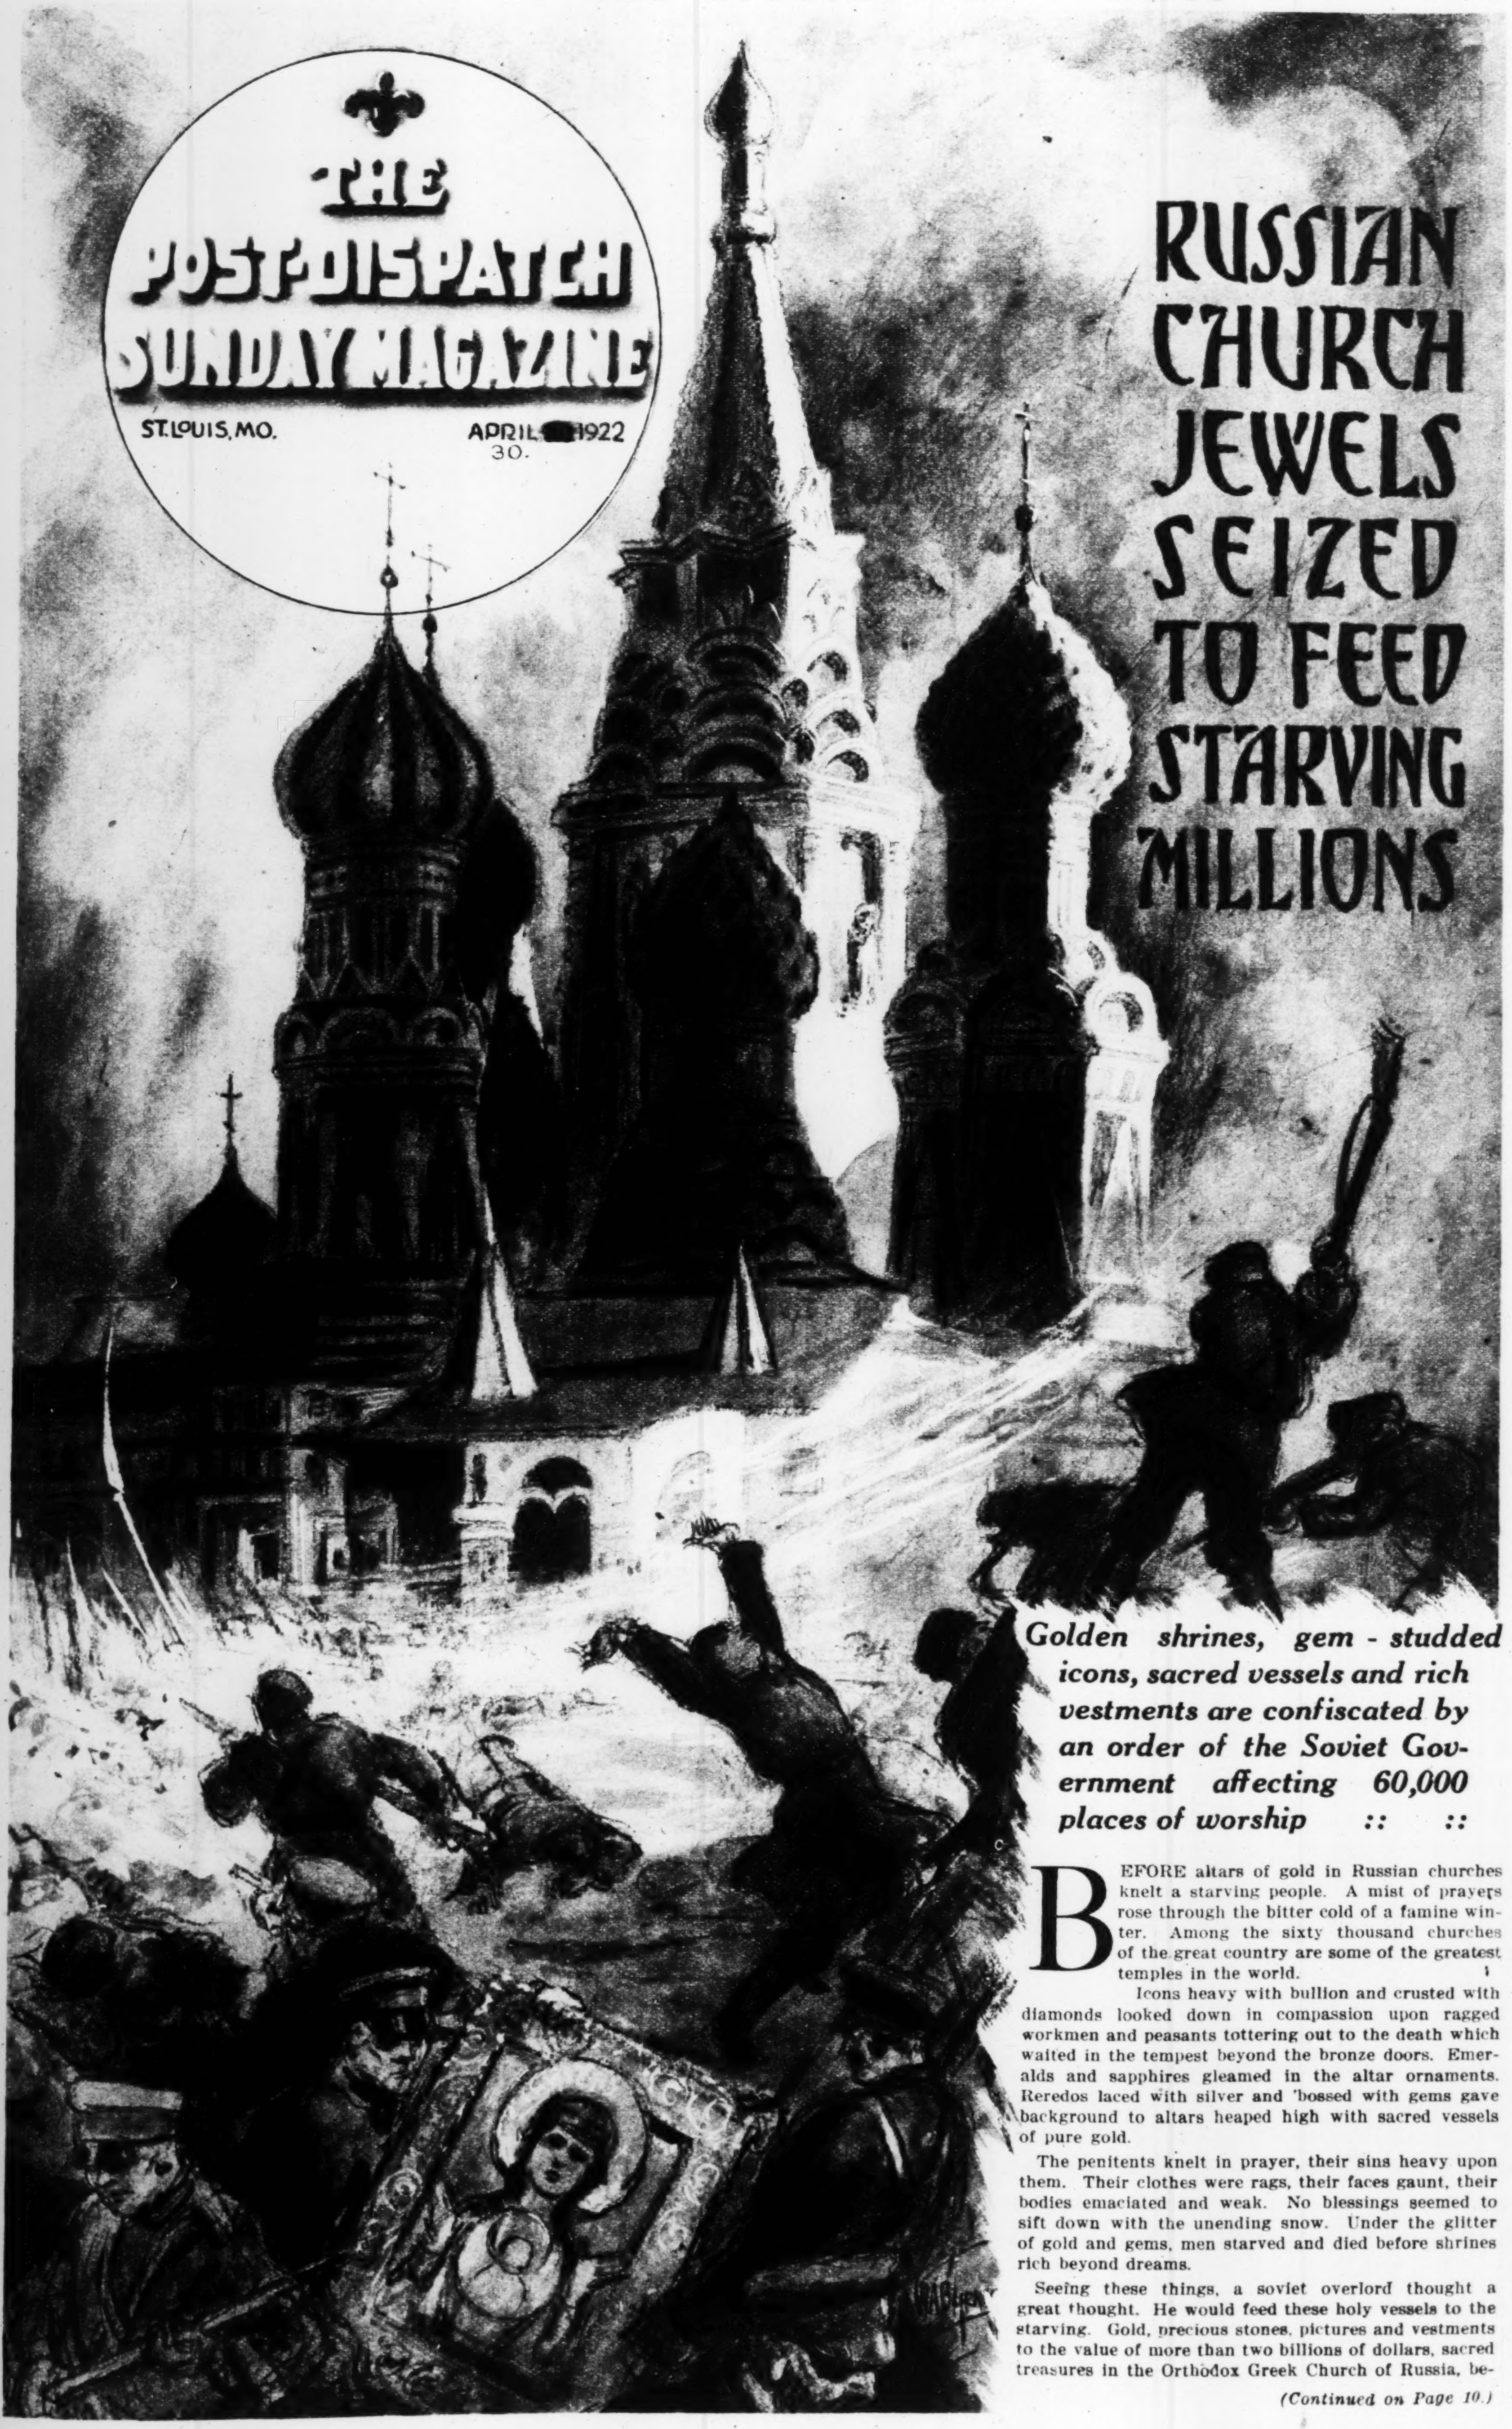
RUSSIAN CHURCH JEWELS SEIZED TO FEED STARVING MILLIONS



Golden shrines, gem - studded icons, sacred vessels and rich vestments are confiscated by an order of the Soviet Government affecting 60,000 places of worship :: ::

BEFORE altars of gold in Russian churches knelt a starving people. A mist of prayers rose through the bitter cold of a famine winter. Among the sixty thousand churches of the great country are some of the greatest temples in the world.

Icons heavy with bullion and crusted with diamonds looked down in compassion upon ragged workmen and peasants tottering out to the death which waited in the tempest beyond the bronze doors. Emeralds and sapphires gleamed in the altar ornaments. Reredos laced with silver and 'bossed with gems gave background to altars heaped high with sacred vessels of pure gold.

The penitents knelt in prayer, their sins heavy upon them. Their clothes were rags, their faces gaunt, their bodies emaciated and weak. No blessings seemed to sift down with the unending snow. Under the glitter of gold and gems, men starved and died before shrines rich beyond dreams.

Seeing these things, a soviet overlord thought a great thought. He would feed these holy vessels to the starving. Gold, precious stones, pictures and vestments to the value of more than two billions of dollars, sacred treasures in the Orthodox Greek Church of Russia, be-

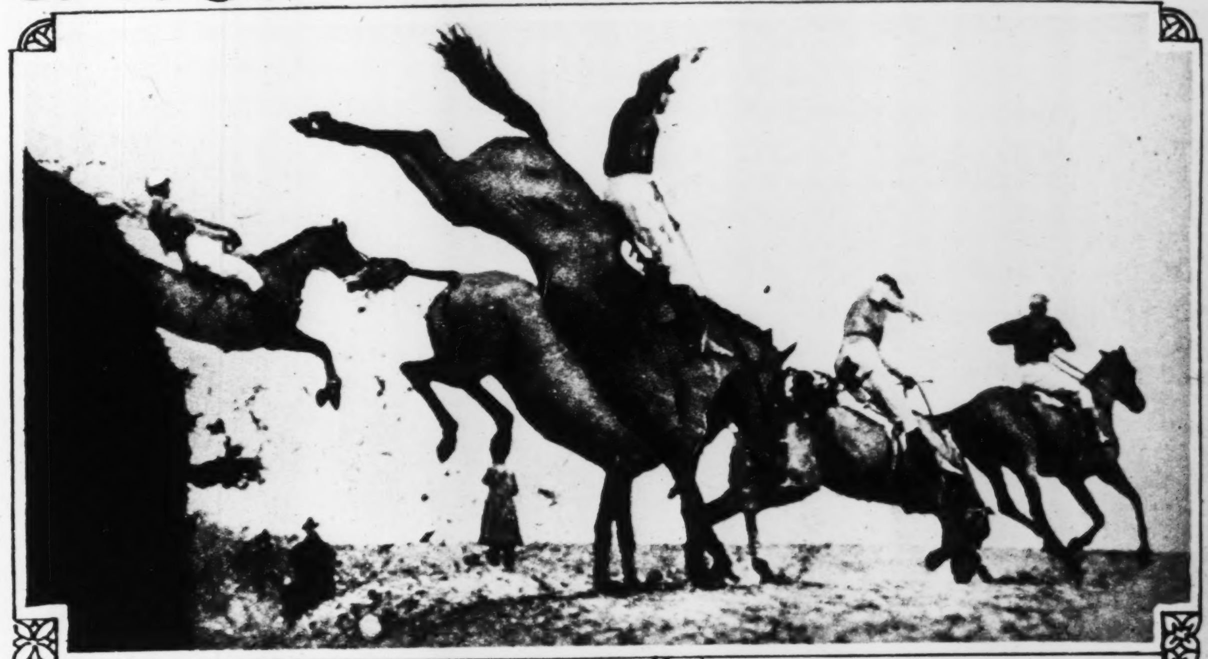
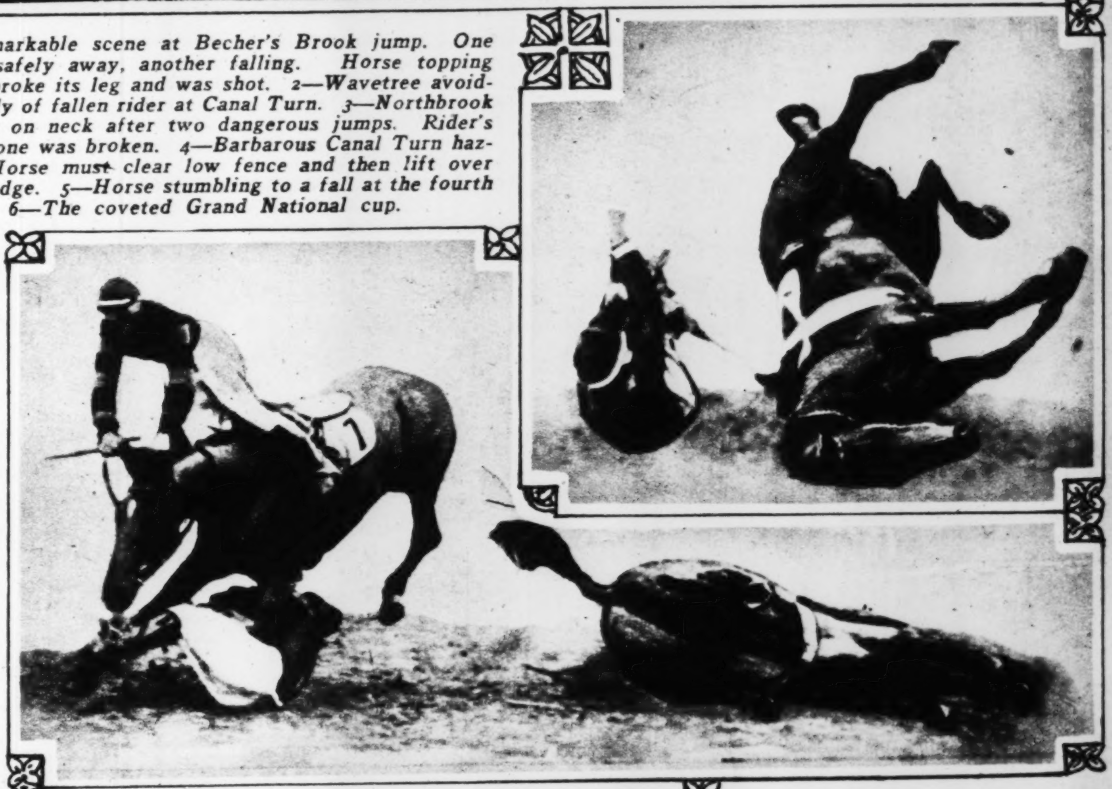
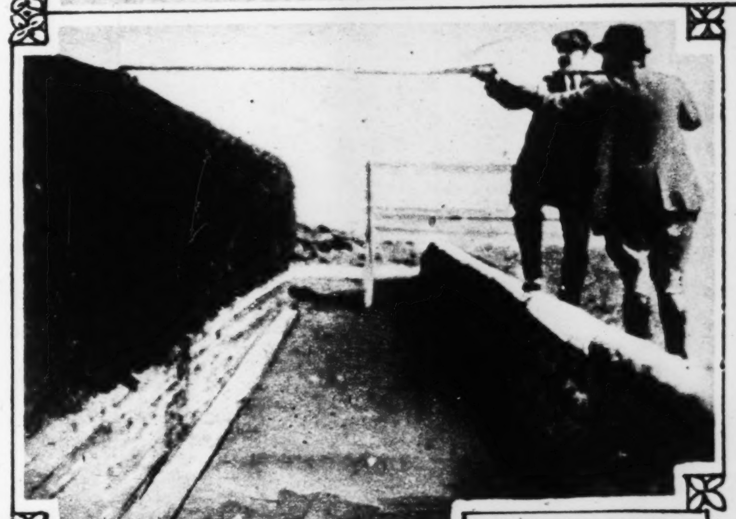
The Cruelest Race in the World

Grand National Steeplechase, an annual event at Aintree, near Liverpool, England, calls for limit of endurance of horses and riders—Only one out of thirty-two starters this year got around the course without a fall—Four most difficult hazards must be surmounted twice in the race—Killing of horses and serious injury to riders are common occurrences ::



1—Remarkable scene at Becher's Brook jump. One horse safely away, another falling. Horse topping fence broke its leg and was shot. 2—Wavetree avoiding body of fallen rider at Canal Turn. 3—Northbrook landing on neck after two dangerous jumps. Rider's collarbone was broken. 4—Barbarous Canal Turn hazard. Horse must clear low fence and then lift over high hedge. 5—Horse stumbling to a fall at the fourth fence. 6—The coveted Grand National cup.





THIRTY-TWO high bred horses, each one famed throughout Great Britain for its spirit, speed and all the other qualities that go to make up a marvelous racehorse, stood quivering, with excitement, March 24, at the start of the famous Aintree steeplechase course near Liverpool, where each year for more than a century England's principal steeplechase event has been held. Atop each horse was a gentleman rider. Along the four-and-a-half-mile course there were gathered, waiting for the horses to pass in their mad flight, thousands upon thousands of England's gentility. For the Grand National is the outstanding sport event of the year in the British Empire.

The 32 horses started, springing away with their heads out, nostrils extended, the coursing of their sporting blood plainly visible along the ridges made by veins that stood out beneath their tender skins.

"Which one of these splendid horses would survive the four and a half miles—which one would keep to its feet to the end?" For it is not often that more than one or two horses reach the finish of the Grand National. And that is why even the sportsmen in England are crying that this great steeplechase is the cruelest thing in the world.

This year, of the 32 horses that started only one reached the finish. He, of course, was the winner. All the others fell. Only 75 per cent of them succeeded in passing the Canal Turn Fence, the eighth jump on the course. The others fell later. It has been the record of the Grand National for several years that one-third of all the horses who enter the race fall, sometimes injuring themselves for life, sometimes killing themselves outright, sometimes crippling their riders, within the first mile of the course.

For some reason the public this year turned its attention to the poor horses whose broken necks, twisted legs and bruised bodies dotted the course for miles, while the solitary winner was being cheered and acclaimed.

The fact that only 32 horses started in the chase is accepted as evidence that in all England there were only 32 horses whose owners felt that they were brave and strong enough to successfully overcome even a portion of the obstacles which mark this famous course.

The treacherous Canal Turn Fence is photographed on this page. First, there is a ditch six feet wide and two feet deep, with a fence two feet high at the near bank of the ditch. It would seem almost cruel in itself to drive a horse with a heavy gentleman rider across a six-foot ditch, with a two-foot space to clear at the very beginning of his leap. But for the spectators of the Grand National such a jump would be thought ridiculous. Therefore, there is added at the other side of the ditch a five-foot foliage fence, which is more than three feet thick. Those who are familiar with steeplechasing know at once that the horse must clear at least 15 feet in this one leap to avoid tripping. Last year, of the 31 horses that entered the Grand National, only nine were left when this jump was reached. Of these nine only four went on. Of the 27 accidents more than a dozen were so serious as to virtually remove the horses from the racing field. Two were permanently crippled.

Then there are two other outstanding obstacles on the course. One is Valentine's Brook, the other is Becher's Brook. At Becher's Brook the fence is five feet six inches high, with a two-foot rail four feet in front of it. After the horse has cleared these obstacles in his leap, he must still cover an ugly ditch, running with murky water, four feet deep and several feet wide.

It was at Becher's Brook that the noted steeplechase horse Awbeg, one of the noblest animals in Great Britain, fell to his knees, rolled over on his side, with his head under him, breaking his neck. Immediately behind Awbeg came the wonderful Wavetree, considered to be one of the best steeplechasers ever sent along the course. Wavetree, cheered by a shout from his jockey, lifted himself into the air just as Awbeg's heels disappeared beyond the fence. His was a splendid leap. As he raised for the fence, clearing the foliage by at least eight inches, the gallant animal saw stretched on the ground, just where he himself would land, the quivering body of his predecessor. A few feet still beyond was Awbeg's rider scrambling to his feet, madly endeavoring to get out of the way. The spectators saw Wavetree's nostrils shoot out, they saw his body, even though it was poised in the air, twitch as if suddenly racked with a spasm. Bravely the horse tried to change the course of his flight. His front legs stiffened, shot to one side, much as if they were hands and arms and he were trying to reach away from the catastrophe confronting him, and his head veered around to follow, in sturdy effort to guide himself so that he might land at one side of the fallen Awbeg. Partly he succeeded.

His body cleared that of the horse which had fallen in his path. But he could not clear Awbeg's rider, who was just getting on his knees. Wavertree's forefeet seemed to land squarely on the fallen rider's shoulder. It seemed as though horse and two riders were about to be tangled in a floundering mass. Somehow, though, Wavetree planted his feet in such a way that he missed the fallen rider completely, and the photograph on this page shows just how he did it. An instant after the photograph was taken Wavetree had fallen forward on his neck, giving it a bad twist, from which he may never recover. His rider had had time to prepare for the spill, and walked off the course unhurt.

Just beyond this dangerous jump is another which is even worse, and the scene of more accidents. This is Valentine's Brook. The fence is several inches higher and is built at the end of a long run over roughly plowed ground.

Next comes the water jump, where the steeplechaser almost requires wings. First, there is a two-foot rail, then a few feet further along is a stiff thorn hedge, and beyond this—a running stream of water 15 feet wide. It would seem as though any horse that has survived the Canal Fence, Valentine's Brook, Becher's Brook and the Water Jump should be sufficiently pitied to be excused from further tortures. But no, these are only four of the obstacles he must surmount. There still are 28 more, and not only must he make these 28 other jumps, but he must go over each of the four main obstacles a second time.

How Much Is One Kiss Worth?

Just one, cost a University of London don his position, but publicists, in earnest cross-fire argument, seem to agree that the price is excessive—One lonely kiss, two years old, emerges from court :: :: :: ::

HOW much is it worth to kiss a nice girl? A man's job? Mr. Justice Greer of the English High Court of Justice said it was. The man who lost his job over it said it wasn't, not by a long shot, and went so far as to intimate that the girl in such cases had as much cause to be grateful as the man who kissed her.

It was the result of a misunderstanding, anyhow, he declared. When she said: "Stop! Let me go!" he thought she was just making the "customary" excuses; it never once dawned upon him that she really meant it. Indeed, he is not satisfied to this day that she was wholly sincere. "All nice girls pretend to object to being kissed," he explained. "How was I to know that she was an exception?"

Obviously, this was a scandalous statement to make right out in open court. What makes the thing worse is the fact that the man is a person of great learning; not merely a scholar, but one who taught scholars. To be precise, he was an instructor in the University of London, one of the most dignified and reputable seats of learning in the known and habitable world. In brief, he was a don.

Worse yet, he is a young fellow, such a one as might be expected to feel the pulse of sentiment—or, if that figure of speech is ambiguous—such a chap as would naturally be open to the influence of Spring, moonlight and similar stimulants. He was, too, in his feeble professorial way. While it wasn't exactly moonlight that moved his academic soul to folly, it was a darkened lecture room and the faint side glow of a stereopticon lantern, which probably is as near to moonlight as anything which the faculty would admit to exist.

The thing that made the offense so serious to his superiors, however, was that the young woman was a pupil, and it is a tradition, written or unwritten, in all schools from barber colleges to Oxford, that the teacher may not buss the pupil. Whether the rule is fair to either will not be raised here; the point is that it is a rule, and a very venerable one.

On the occasion in question, there was a dance at the university, which has 3000 students, of which 1000 are of the fairer gender. Being a frolicsome young man, that is, for a don, Prof. George Joseph Jones of the chemistry department joined in the merriment. And in the course of time he and Miss Margaret Hughes Brown saw fit to sit out a dance. To that end they wandered into a lecture room, took a seat in a rear corner, and then and there he placed his arm around the young person's waist and importunately kissed her.

However reprehensible this action was, it is only just to the instructor to state that the complaint to the college officials was not made by Miss Brown. She told a friend, whether in pride or indignation is not known; the friend told a vice president of the school, and he told Sir Gregor Foster, the provost. The latter promptly dismissed the tutor.

All this happened two years ago, but the matter came to light recently when the instructor's suit against the university for wrongful dismissal came to trial in the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice.

Prof. George Joseph Brown launched his case in a very bellicose attitude. He declared pointblank that the circumstances were such as to tempt any man of spirit, and that he did kiss the young person, and so far as he could discern—in the dark—the young person did not seriously object. And, for that matter, why should she?

But the evidence for the defense was that she did object, vocally and specifically. She had asked him to stop. She had demanded to be freed from his circling arm. And he hadn't complied. He hadn't paid any more attention than if she had said nothing. Here it was that the plaintiff ventilated his understanding of the attitude of nice girls toward kissing. And that was where he started something.

Mr. Justice Greer dismissed the case, upholding the dismissal, but the furore raised by the matter continued. Editors wrote ponderous essays on the moral, ethical and anatomical aspects of it. Titled ladies were asked for their opinions, and gave them. "Is it a fact that nice girls always pretend to object to being kissed?" they were asked.

It may be interesting to know that numerous authorities upheld the young professor's statement. Lady June Butler, daughter of the Earl of Carrick and one of the most beautiful of all Englishwomen, said it was her belief, after extended opportunities for observation, that nice girls do invariably make that identical pretense, and she defended them for doing so.

With candor only to be found in a cultured Englishwoman, she declared "a girl, to be really nice in the eyes of the man, must make his conquest worth having. She is suprised—as she is expected to be; and protests—just as she is supposed to. She must object, but not too much. Finally, in the face of his blandishments, endearments and ardent wooing, she gives in and he wins—as both intended."

An American critic of manners, H. L. Mencken, already had said that it is the secret aim of every woman to convince the man that he has won her promise to marry "by sheer force of horsepower." As a matter of fact, he declared, the situation was nearly always the result of careful planning by the woman, who had led the man up to that point with infinite pains and care. "Only such an incredible popinjay as man," said he, "could see himself as the hero of a transaction which contains at bottom as much gross trafficking as the sale of a mule."

His attitude on that subject is reflected by that of Stephen Haddon, the English essayist and critic. "Man is the most naive and unsuspecting of all nature's creatures," he writes. "In his business he may be a human shark, savage, sardonic and wholly skeptical of the motives of those around him. He may be a shrewd politician, adept at reading other men's minds. But put him on a davenport, under the soft glow of a piano lamp (which she has calculatingly adjusted to give the best possible effect) and his cerebrum promptly goes to sleep, and frequently does not awaken until he has committed himself irrevocably to some engagement that is obviously to his worst possible interests.

"Pitted against this moony, bovine creature is one whose wits have been sharpened in the bitterest competition that society has yet developed, namely, the competition for providers. In addition to the secret lore which her mother has imparted to her, and which is handed from one generation to another of women, she has an aptitude for the business which is a heritage from many maternal ancestors. It is her chief business in life. A successful marriage is the goal at which virtually every woman aims, and it is practically her only goal. When she has accomplished that her future is assured, barring accidents. Is it any wonder, then, that many a man counted as intelligent by his fellows, wakes up some morning to find himself married, without having more than the vaguest idea of how he came to do such a preposterous thing?"

One pose which the woman finds valuable is that of innocence, and even ignorance, he declares. "The average man instinctively shrinks from a woman who he regards as shrewder than himself. He wants some fairy, disembodied creature who has never thought of anything grosser than the perfume of lilacs. Consequently, the huntress make it her business to see that he finds just such a one."

Another writer, being skeptical of Haddon's conclusions, and feeling that he had at least exaggerated the case, determined to make an actual test of the proposition. He accordingly caused to be inserted in a large daily newspaper an anonymous communication setting forth views similar to those held by the critic. That is, he declared that women were almost invariably sharper than men; that men's boasted mental superiority was a smoke screen under which they were constantly outwitted and compelled to do the very things they least wanted to do. In the game between the sexes, he said, woman almost invariably won, because she kept her head and used better judgment.

The effect of the publication of this statement was perfectly astounding. The newspaper was flooded with communications hotly denouncing the writer for unfairness—to women. The responses, nearly all from women, assailed him in the bitterest language, describing him as a cynic, a woman hater, and even as a monster, because of his "hateful attitude toward women." In short, for once they apparently had been completely outwitted, and had fallen ingloriously into the trap set for them. The "unfairness to women" of which they complained was, in fact, a drastic assertion that women were superior to men; that they used their wits to more advantage, displayed sounder knowledge of the facts of life, and did better for themselves. No more vigorous partisanship of women could have been imagined.

Naturally, the writer was forced rather violently to agree with Haddon that women certainly did not want to be regarded as men's mental superiors; and that they probably found it profitable to keep up the opposite pose.

This is the question which is now agitating the publicists and students of society in England. By the odd perversity which always seem to mark such questions, the women find their chief supporters among a certain section of the men whom such scholars as Haddon describe as "sentimentalists." Judging from some of the feminine opinions that have been ventured, a woman Judge might have rendered a decision quite different from that of Mr. Justice Greer. Prof. George Joseph Jones might have got damages.

English Expert Predicts Famine for Next Year

SIR WILLIAM BEVERIDGE, a distinguished English scientist, has issued in London a remarkable prediction of severe crop failures in 1923. This already has given rise to the question: "Will next year be a period of widespread famine?"

Computations Sir William has made indicate there are four different weather cycles that affect crops. All of these combine in a maximum unfavorable phase indicating heavy and harmful deluges during the period from February to September, 1923, the growing season of next year.

The prediction is based on the variation in wheat prices in Europe during the last 300 years. Sir William, using the periodgram method of computation, finds that the maximum price from 1500 to 1869 came at intervals of about 15 1-3 years. This abnormality, his statistical analysis shows, is due to four weather cycles, temporarily operating all together. One of 4.37 years corresponds to one that has been identified in sun spots. Another of 5.11 years has been found in temperature and rainfall records. Two others, that are less definite, those of 2.74 and 3.71 years, seem to have been identified in meteorological data.

"The year 1923 is destined to repeat something like the experiences of 1315, the year of the worst and most general harvest failure known in European history," says Sir William Beveridge, "in the excessively improbable event of my arithmetical analysis being complete and accurate in every particular."

The leading scientific weekly magazine of England, Nature, believes the prediction well founded. "On the face of it, the evidence seems sound and the reasoning careful and critical," this magazine says, editorially. "To the crowd, if not to the man of science, the fulfillment of a prophecy always seems to give more adequate support to a theory than any number of agreements with past events, and the year 1923 may be awaited with an interest mingled with anxiety."

YELLOWSTONE PARK'S GOLDEN JUBILEE.

Greatest of the national parks was discovered by Jim Bridger, whose tales of its wonders were not believed—The creek that flowed so fast its bed was hot—Later explorers found geysers and other wonders which vindicated the solitary trapper's veracity—Oldtime stage coach has given way to the automobile, but scenic wonders are unchanged :-: :-:

Tourists viewing the great falls of the Yellowstone from Artists' Point.

THIS year celebrates the golden anniversary of the Yellowstone as America's great national park.

When, on June 19, the train that carries the first regular travelers to enter the grand old playground in its gala fiftieth year leaves Salt Lake City, every click of its wheels between there and the park entrance at West Yellowstone, every de luxe car in its make-up and every person aboard will be a tribute and a vindication to a man once called the greatest liar of his time, the man who discovered the Yellowstone.

Early in the '50's a solitary trapper pushed through an unknown, Indian-infested region to the north of the great Teton range. He had left the country of the Crows and Sioux behind, and pushing toward that of the Blackfoot tribes, crossed a divide and entered a region such as he in all of his wanderings had never before seen or dreamed of. Below him was a valley from which rose a thousand smokes, and as his way led him down into it, he passed hot bubbling springs and saw that the smokes were jets of living steam.

Further, coming to the valley's floor, he stood aghast, for with a roar a gigantic column of boiling water and steam rose in front of him a hundred feet high.

Jim Bridger had discovered the Yellowstone.

Imagine poor old Bridger's predicament when he returned to civilization with his tales of boiling hot springs "as big as a man's body, spouting higher than the flagpole in Virginia City," of a gushing, roaring, spewing hell back there in the mountains, filled with wonders such as no man had ever seen before.

For Bridger had acquired a reputation far and wide as the inventor of wild tales with which to regale the tenderfoot.

And now that he had really seen the most marvelous thing of its kind in the world, a thing that outstripped even his wildest imaginings, no one would believe him!

Jim Bridger, who discovered the Yellowstone and told "tall tales" which later were found to be in the main true.

The oldtime stage coach of the Yellowstone, now practically extinct. The automobile has crowded it out.

In fact, people of the day proposed to carve as his epitaph:

"Here LIES Jim Bridger."

But the tales excited curiosity, and in 1869 David Folsom, C. W. Cook and a helper, named Peterson penetrated up to Yellowstone Lake, afterward crossing over to the Firehole River and up as far as the lower geyser basin. They didn't even get as far as Old Faithful or see the wonders surrounding it, but what they did see was so wonderful that they hesitated to tell their story to any but intimate friends, lest they acquire a reputation like Bridger's.

Following them came the Washburn expedition, organized by Nathaniel Pitt Langford, which visited Yellowstone Lake, all of the geyser basins, Yellowstone Canyon and falls, and named Mount Washburn, Old Faithful Geyser and other now famous points in the wonderland.

These men, Gen. Harry D. Washburn, Samuel T. Hauser, Warren C. Gillette, Cornelius Hedges, T. C. Everts, Benjamin Stickney, Lieut. G. C. Doane of the Second Cavalry, Jacob Smith and Mr. Langford, with a detail of cavalrymen and packers while in camp at the junction of the Firehole and Gibbon Rivers, first conceived the idea of a national park.

As the direct result of their work the bill creating the Yellowstone National Park was passed by Congress on March 1, 1872.

Now, 50 years later, when the first visitors of the opening of Yellowstone's golden anniversary season go through, they will travel not as Washburn and Langford did, with pack animals, through brush and with river beds for trails, but over a faultless road from West Yellowstone, in vehicles which had not been conceived in the early explorers' day. And when they arrive at what is now Madison Junction, they will cross the river and find, out on a point under the shadow of National Park Mountain, a slab which they will decorate in honor of the occasion. On it they will see the following inscription:

Junction of the
Gibbon and Firehole Rivers,
Forming the Madison Fork of the Missouri.
On the point of land between the tributary streams, September 19, 1870, the celebrated Washburn Expedition which first made known to the world the wonders of the Yellowstone, was encamped, and here was first suggested the idea of setting apart this region as a national park.

And this idea, conceived around that old campfire, changed America, for the Yellowstone and other national parks that followed it have "sold" America to itself, and have helped to make of modern Americans an out-of-doors nation.

One radical change from fifty years ago. The animals have become tame by association with human vistors.

Outing costumes of old-time travelers through the Yellowstone showed women with long, dragging skirts, flimsy shoes, balloon-sleeved waists, high pompadours and flappy hats and duster coats. The men wore cutaway coats and derbies. Compare this with golden anniversary year. Trim-cut breeches and boots of both sexes, and one realizes how the national playgrounds have "sold" the great outdoors.

Old-timers are to be among the golden anniversary celebrants, coming to see the Yellowstone "50 years afterward," and the many other changes they will note are significant.

The greatest difference between the playground of 1922 and the one of years ago is the disappearance of the old-time stage coach, noticed by all and mourned by many. There was romance in the old stages and in their drivers. With these old fellows of an almost-gone type driving four-up, horses prancing to be on the way, baggage going into the "boot" and everyone bidding for the place of honor beside the driver, even the start used to carry a thrill, especially for the Easterner. The careening ride over the rutty roads, whip cracking, dust flying, taking corners on a wheel, as it were, gave a real Western touch to the park tour of old, and the old-time drivers delighted in showing the "dudes" how they did it out in the wild and woolly. Most of them, indeed, were able exponents of Jim Bridger. Classic tales of how Old Faithful once froze while erupting into a solid 100-foot column of hot ice, all about the hot-water fish that swim in the boiling pools, weird bear stories and many others regale the long rides between points of interest.

Once a real Wild Western bandit added an individual touch by holding up a whole string of stages, as each rounded a secluded point of rocks. He was a humorous soul, and, relieving each passenger of valuables, announced that he had paid his admission to the big show, and could now retire to the grand stand—a ledge

"Bertie" Acuff to Marry More Millions

Former Roberta Acuff, whose lively girlhood was spent here, wedded David G. Joyce, Chicago millionaire, and divorced him—Now her engagement is announced to Reginald Gouraud, adopted son of Mrs. Aimee Crocker-Ashe-Gillig-Gouraud-Miskinoff, heiress to California millions—"Bertie" was remarked for wit and beauty :: :: :: :: ::

WEALTH, which eludes most people, no matter how industrious and thrifty and persistent and wily they may be, seems to dog the footsteps of a Missouri-born girl, once a resident of St. Louis.

Already, the former Roberta Acuff has had one millionaire husband, and divorced him. Now she is engaged to another man, who, if not actually a millionaire, is potentially one. Her new fiance is Reginald Gouraud, one of the four children who were adopted by Mrs. Aimee Crocker-Ashe-Gillig-Gouraud-Miskinoff, and may reasonably be expected to share in the vast estate which the latter inherited from her father, the late E. B. Crocker of California.

These later events followed a St. Louis background in which Miss Roberta had spent a happy girlhood in a $25,000 residence on Washington avenue, attended expensive schools and been envied not only for her personal attractions but as the daughter of a man whose income ranked him among the wealthy men of St. Louis.

Money and the wonderful things which money will buy and will make possible have flowed in this young woman's direction as iron is drawn by a magnet.

Strangely enough—or is it just the ironical twist which Fate enjoys giving to her combinations?—the former Roberta Acuff is said not to care particularly for luxury, but to have simple tastes and to be, by her own preference, decidedly a "home girl." So state the relatives in Webster Groves with whom she lived for years.

Announcement of the engagement to Reginald Gouraud was made by his mother, Mrs. Aimee Crocker Gouraud, as the latter is usually known. The cablegram from Paris said that the marriage would occur soon, and the couple would sojourn for a time in Biarritz. Mrs. Gouraud, whose numerous marriages and whose lavish entertainments have made her famous among the newspaper readers of two continents, is one of the most popular American hostesses in Paris. Local relatives of Roberta knew about her friendship with the Gourauds, but the engagement came as a surprise.

Which is much like the circumstances of her first marriage. Her parents have been dead for a dozen years, and it was not long after becoming an orphan that Roberta took the management of her affairs into her own hands. And very competent those hands seem to be. From preparing the French-fried potatoes for which she has a long-established reputation in the family circle to putting aside firmly a millionaire husband when that seemed necessary, those hands never have failed their owner.

Trouble came, a-plenty, for even the tide of money cannot keep misfortune away. But Roberta has stayed serene, kind-hearted, solicitous about the happiness of those around her, say her friends. Just so is she remembered by the people who knew her in her girlhood days in St. Louis.

Perhaps such an equipment is just as well for one about to marry into the Gouraud family. The prospective mother-in-law has been married four times, once to Jack Gouraud, whose brother, Powers Gouraud, afterward married Aimee's own daughter, Gladys, thus creating one of those strange tangles of relationship.

Afterward Gladys and Powers were divorced, and the former married Walter Russell, a member of the original Florodora Sextet. The latter now are separated, but not divorced.

When Aimee Gouraud divorced "Prince" Miskinoff, the reason given was that Yvonne, one of the four adopted children already mentioned, had fallen in love with the "Prince," and it was even reported that Yvonne had married him, afterward. But Yvonne denied the report, which probably was mere rumor. Then Dolores, another adopted daughter, brought the family back in the limelight by threatening to marry an Egyptian potentate.

Roberta Acuff, in photographs ranging from childhood to the present. Picture in center shows her at time of her first marriage, in 1912.

But what was the limelight to any of the Gourauds? For years and years that name has figured in some of the most entertaining articles published. Besides the matrimonial events in which Aimee Gouraud or her children played leading parts, there has been a steady grist of news about other activities of Aimee. She would be giving a bizarre and sumptuous entertainment in Paris, or reported as maintaining a menagerie of strange pets in her New York apartment, or starting off on a strange journey, or buying or having stolen from her a piece of jewelry of extraordinary value. Hers is a unique personality, which manifests itself in picturesque ways. But shrewd, always. Said Powers Gouraud recently:

"After four husbands, four trips around the world, four ropes of pearls and four adopted children, she finds herself with more money today than when she inherited, with her sister, a half share in the Crocker millions."

The Crocker estate has been estimated at various figures, from $10,000,000 up.

Such is the family into which the former "Bertie" Acuff of St. Louis will marry. When some of her friends here learned the news, they gasped, then congratulated—the Gourauds. But Aimee Gouraud's kindness of heart is one of her marked characteristics, just as St. Louis friends of Roberta attribute the same quality to her. So it is being predicted that the marriage will turn out happily and that Roberta will not figure in another of the fantastic episodes in the history of the house of Gouraud.

Roberta Acuff was born 32 years ago, in Bolivar, Mo. Her grandfather was Nelson Acuff, a man of considerable prominence in Southwestern Missouri. Afterward her father, Alonzo Acuff, moved with his family to Springfield, Mo., where they resided for two years. Then they came to St. Louis, when Roberta was about 9 years old. Alonzo was a salesman for the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., with Arkansas for his territory.

Alonzo Acuff is remembered as one of the most competent men who ever traveled out of St. Louis. Energetic, able and noted both for his ability as an after-dinner speaker and for his wit in everyday conversation, his value to the company grew and grew, as did his commissions. Finally he was given a place on the board of directors, and for years enjoyed an income which classed him among the rich, although the money was earned instead of coming in the form of dividends, coupons or rentals.

"If Roberta has inherited her father's wit and her mother's beauty, as they say she has, she must be a very attractive woman now, and a fortunate one," remarked a high official of the Ely & Walker concern. "I often saw her, when she was a young girl and thought she was very pretty, although rather inclined to be stout."

The Acuff home was a residence on Washington avenue, east of Union, which cost $25,000. Young Roberta went to Mary Institute for awhile, then to the Sacred Heart Convent, and afterward attended Monticello Seminary at Godfrey, Ill. Her every wish, within reason, was gratified by parents who adored her and had plenty of money.

Then Fate, as if in a petulant mood, gave Roberta the first buffet she had received. Domestic trouble developed in the luxurious Acuff home and the parents separated, Mrs. Acuff going to live with her daughter at the Washington Hotel, while Acuff went to Polk County. Three years afterward, in 1907, there was a divorce. Meanwhile Acuff's health had broken and he died in 1909. Mrs. Acuff died two years later.

Roberta, now blooming into young womanhood, went to live with her aunt and the latter's husband, M and Mrs. James H. Howe of 549 Pig Bend road, Webster Groves. With them she made her home until the time of her first marriage, which occurred in 1912.

The engagement of Roberta to Louis E. Wilson of St. Louis had been announced in 1907, by her mother, but it was broken off soon afterward. Mrs. Howe, discussing her niece's affairs a few days ago, said the engagement was "only a schoolgirl romance," and never was taken seriously by anyone.

In 1912 Roberta was visiting her brother, Tom Acuff, in Detroit, when a telegram came to Mrs. Howe, an-

Tacitus Verified After 2000 Years

Laborer falls into a hole just outside chief gate of Rome and discovers beautiful temple built underground by Taurus, whose death, according to ancient Roman historian, was caused by Agrippina, Nero's mother, who coveted his property—Many bas-reliefs in pure white stucco still perfectly preserved

Another bas-relief in pure white stucco in Temple of Taurus.

Still perfect bas-relief found in long-lost Temple of Taurus.

Ancient statue of Agrippina, mother of Nero.

A LABORER walking on the tracks of the Rome-Naples Railway fell into a hole. The accident happened just outside the Porta Maggiore, best known of the gates of Rome. When he scrambled to his feet he discovered that he had fallen into the courtyard of an ancient temple which evidently was built by Taurus nearly 2000 years ago and had been forgotten by all succeeding generations.

The laborer looked about him in the subterranean darkness. He found a long passage and followed it, thinking he could find an exit. He came to the ruins of a great building. He struck matches and peered about the walls. All was curious to him, but he recognized the appearance of a temple.

The laborer reported to his foreman. A hole in the ground in Rome always is worth investigating. They went together, and after the engineer had seen for himself he excitedly rushed to the headquarters of the archeological authorities of Rome, and excavation work was begun on the spot within a fortnight.

The official report of the explorations has just been published. The forgotten ruins proved to be of a Greek temple, dedicated to an unknown deity, gleaming with bas reliefs in white stucco, which reveal a lost art. A lost temple, a lost deity, a lost art—all discovered because of the heedless feet of an uninterested laborer!

But the history of the temple is known. The famous Roman historian, Tacitus, wrote of it. It dates back to the first century, A. D.

The Underground Basilica, as Rome is beginning to call its latest historic treasure, now has been completely excavated and artists and archeologists have been allowed to study the structure. Among the foreigners who were permitted by the Government to visit the basilica is an American archeologist, Miss Ernestine Franklin, the only woman member of the American Academy of Art in Rome. She has made a detailed study of the temple.

The building was partly filled with debris and the entrance was caved in; otherwise the temple was almost as intact as it must have been when a priestess celebrated some forgotten rites at its altar 2000 years ago.

The basilica has a central nave nearly 40 feet long, flanked by side aisles marked off by four arches supported on oblong pillars and ending in an apse. The antechamber leads into the main part of the temple and gives the only light, for there are no windows. In the half-twilight of the temple the goddesses and graceful dancing figures on the walls seem to glow with life.

The most astonishing thing about this discovery is that it verifies and changes into history a story which for 20 centuries has been held as tradition. It is likewise amazing, and in no way according to precedent, that the temple was not buried by the blanket of time. It had been premeditatively and purposefully concealed under the earth by a builder who wished a secret sanctuary where he might worship hidden securely from public observance.

Tacitus tells the story that Agrippina, mother of the Emperor Nero, and from whom he inherited both his ambition and his cruelty, caused the death of a certain Statilius Taurus, who had been Governor of Africa, but who had returned to Rome. Agrippina had condemned him to death on the charge that he had been practicing foreign religious rites in the very capital of the empire. Tacitus wrote she wanted for herself the magnificent gardens of Taurus, on the Esquiline Hill, which was the fashionable residence district of first century Roman society. Here the nobles had villas and gardens.

Taurus knew Agrippina; he knew her cruelty; he knew after he was condemned that she would devise most terrible tortures for him. Therefore, he committed suicide rather than submit to the suffering which he accounted inevitable unless death should intervene.

Now the underground basilica was unearthed in exactly the spot where the unfortunate Taurus had his gardens. There is every possibility, according to the archeologists, that the story told by Tacitus was true, and that Taurus celebrated his foreign rites—believed to have been some form of sun worship—in this lovely white temple sunk below the olive and lemon trees of his garden. There is no doubt that the temple was an underground one, for it is 14 feet below the level of the ancient road unearthed in the neighborhood.

Aside from its historical interest the basilica contains the most superb stucco bas reliefs known to exist. They are pure white and, in spite of their delicacy, almost perfectly preserved—as described by Miss Franklin. The entire surface of walls and ceilings is divided by moldings into panels. Mythological scenes alternate with decorative motifs of victories crowning trophies, winged genii, gorgon heads and palmettes.

The antechamber differs from the main room in that it is decorated in dark red and blue, with pictures of Bacchic revelry. One relief shows the mad Agave with the head of Pentheus, the subject of the Bacchae of Euripides.

In the vault of the nave is pictured a winged genius carrying off Ganymede to be the cupbearer of Jupiter, and another genius bearing away a female figure thought to represent one of the daughters of Leucippus. Some of the scenes are done in a spirit of humor. There is a picture of Jason, who is made so small that he has to climb on a table to reach the Golden Fleece, while a Brobdingnagian Medesa gives a magic potion to the dragon.

The most magnificent work is that in the half-dome of the apse. It shows a woman clad in a long garment which floats out behind her in the wind as she leaps down from the rocks into the sea. In one hand she holds the seven-stringed lyre. A winged Eros assists her, and in the sea a figure holds a scarf as if to break her fall. A scaly-tailed Triton rises from the water. At the left an Apollo with a bow stands on a cliff and behind him sits a veiled figure in an attitude of lamentation. The scene is believed to represent the poetess Sappho leaping from the Leucadian cliff to escape her love for the boatman Phaon.

Seen in the mysterious light entering through the antechamber the reliefs have a fairylike quality. They possess not only motion but rhythm, and are done in a spirit of delicate phantasy.

There evidently was an altar or throne before the apse, and under the floor beneath were found the bones of a pig and a dog. Bones of other animals were discovered under the floor of the antechamber, so it is evident that sacrifice of animals was a frequent ceremony. Since the decoration is purely Greek in style and shows no trace of Oriental or early Christian influence it is thought that the cult was that of the Neo-Pythagoreans, a Greco-Italian sect. Belief in immortality is suggested by some of the frescoes, which represent spirits carrying off the soul to another life.

It is not, of course, authentically proved that the victim of Agrippina built this temple that he might practice his rites without being discovered. But little doubt remains. Taurus might have sealed up the entrance to the temple as soon as he felt Agrippina's envious eye on his gardens. In any case, nearly 2000 years of wars have been waged on the plains above without any intrusion into the ancient solitude of this mystic retreat.

PROFIT FROM GAME ON THE FARM

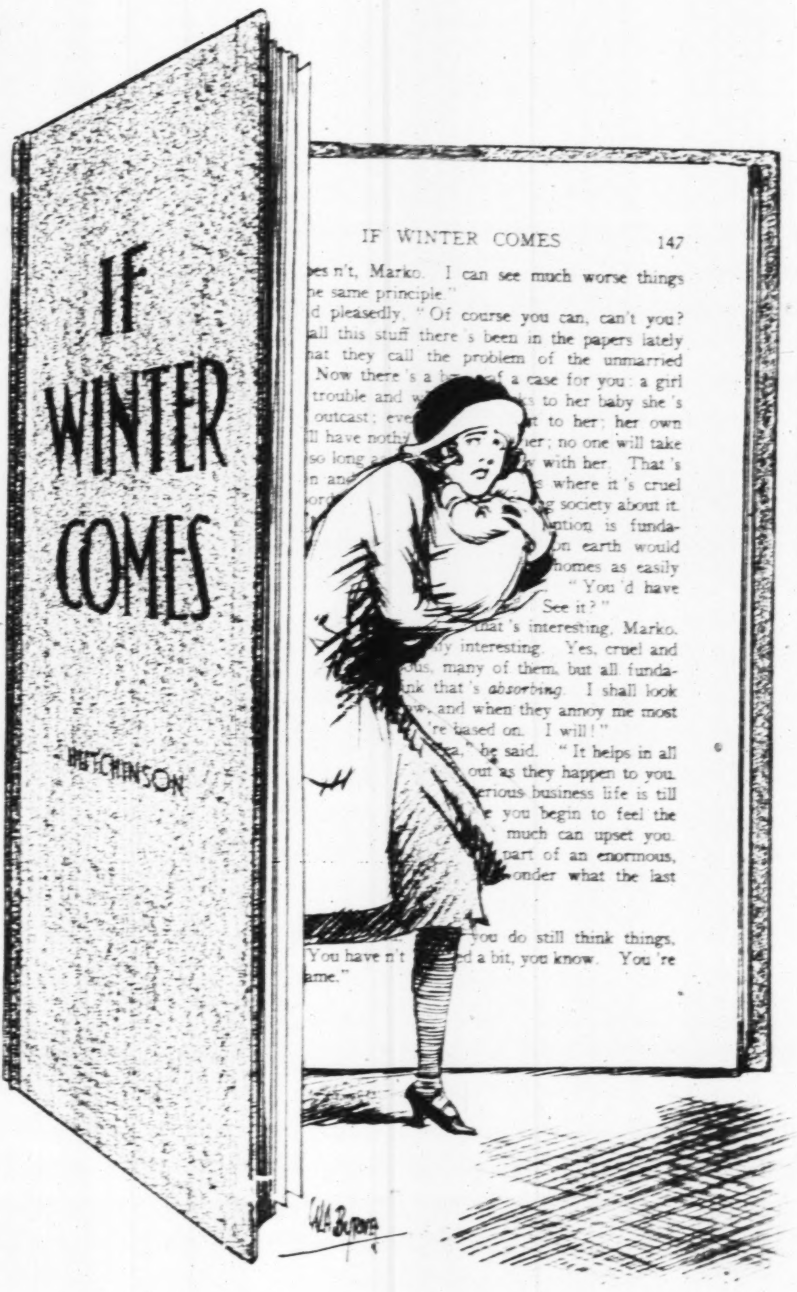
THE rabbits, quail, pheasants, wild turkeys and ducks that live in the wood lot and on the farm are not usually considered to be of great value, but Dr. T. S. Palmer, expert in game conservation, of the United States Biological Survey, after an investigation of the nation's game resources believes that wild life can be made profitable not alone for food and pleasure, but for direct revenue as well.

"Under favorable conditions the game on the farm may be greatly increased and even produced artificially, though as yet game farming has made only a beginning in the United States," he says. "Pheasants and pheasant eggs have been distributed in certain States and in some cases the persons receiving them have been successful in rearing the birds, but comparatively little concerted effort has been made by farmers to raise any large numbers of pheasants, either in co-operation with game departments or for supplying the market. Pheasants, wild turkeys, mallard ducks, black mallards, and wood ducks can be reared on farms, and commanding higher prices than poultry, might be made even more profitable."

Another method of utilizing the game on the farm and of making it render a direct return is to sell or lease the shooting rights. Owners and tenants do not as a rule attempt to obtain a direct return by leasing the hunting privileges.

Nearly every farm produces some game which may be hunted in open season, as rabbits, quail, squirrels, or other species, and this has a certain food or recreational value. Upland game birds are often of more use as destroyers of weed seeds or noxious insects than they are as food. One out of 16 persons in this country hunts game of some kind, Dr. Palmer estimates. Under normal conditions probably more than 6,000,000 persons engage in hunting during the open season.

LIKE "BRIGHT EFFIE" IN THE NOVEL



Ina Norris, of Marion, Ill., a real life instance of the sad lot which falls to the woman who has a "little baby" and no wedding ring—Strange parallel to the plight of pathetic figure in "If Winter Comes"—Though not made an outcast by her own family she found that contravention of the convention code carries the grimmest of penalties—Death for her baby and herself was her chosen way out :: ::

THE tragedy of the unmarried mother!

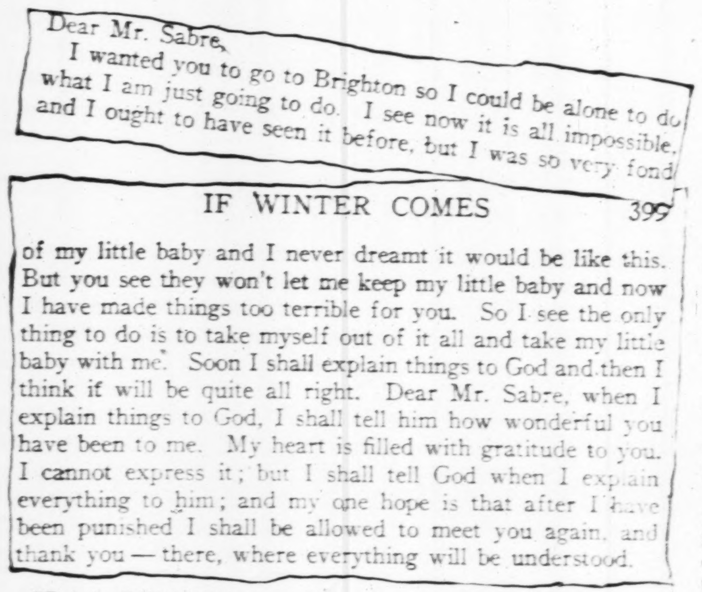
It has been an age-long agency for the grinding of hearts between the upper millstone of Right and the nether millstone of Wrong. It has at various times, in widely different civilizations, been intensified and made more horrible by stern, unbending pronouncements of the law, but worse than these have been those unwritten laws which have their basis in public opinion and are not set down in any statute book—the grim and pitiless provisions of the Code of Convention.

Just recently the millstones closed down on Ina Norris and her "little baby" at Marion, Ill., in striking similarity to the way in which they applied their crushing force to Bright Effie and her "little baby" in A. S. M. Hutchinson's widely read novel of recent issue, "If Winter Comes." Like Effie of the novel, Ina Norris killed her baby and herself.

From Penny Green, England, to Marion, Ill., U. S. A., is a long way on the map, but conventions minimize metes and bounds and problems which confronted the fictional Effie and the actual Ina, each trying to make her way in the world with a baby and no wedding ring, were the same at base.

Mark Sabre, the finely upright hero in "If Winter Comes," sums it up: "Now there's a brute of a case for you. A girl gets into trouble, and while she sticks to her baby she's made an outcast; every door is shut to her; her own people will have nothing to do with her; no one will take her in—so long as she's got the baby with her. That's convention and you can imagine cases where it's cruel beyond words."

In the book this was the sort of ostracism that fell to the lot of Bright Effie. Her own people would have nothing to do with her. And when, out of goodness of heart, Mark Sabre took her into his home his kindly act caused him to be dragged through the mire of the divorce court and almost to the prisoner's dock for trial as an accessory to murder after Effie had killed herself and her "little baby"—she always called it that—never a child or just a baby, but always her "little baby."



Dear Mr. Sabre,
I wanted you to go to Brighton so I could be alone to do what I am just going to do. I see now it is all impossible, and I ought to have seen it before, but I was so very fond of my little baby and I never dreamt it would be like this. But you see they won't let me keep my little baby and now I have made things too terrible for you. So I see the only thing to do is to take myself out of it all and take my little baby with me. Soon I shall explain things to God and then I think if will be quite all right. Dear Mr. Sabre, when I explain things to God, I shall tell him how wonderful you have been to me. My heart is filled with gratitude to you. I cannot express it; but I shall tell God when I explain everything to him; and my one hope is that after I have been punished I shall be allowed to meet you again, and thank you — there, where everything will be understood.

IF WINTER COMES 399

"Bright Effie's" letter to Sabre from "If Winter Comes."

The sad story of Ina Norris and her "little baby" are spread on the records of Williamson County, Ill., in transcripts of the testimony at two inquests and a warrant under which Claude Greer, named by Ina as the father of her child, was held for investigation as to whether he had guilty knowledge of the killing of the baby. D. L. Duty, State's Attorney of the county, who issued the warrant, said after further investigation that there was no basis for prosecuting Greer on the charge of complicity. Greer departed from Marion after being released on bond.

Ina Norris' baby, Bernardine, was born May 22, 1919, when Ina was 18 years old. Its short and legally fatherless life came to a tragic end March 17 of this year. Ina gave her "little baby" a fatal draft of carbolic acid. She attempted, by the same agency, to follow the child into the beyond, but her mother, entering the room, knocked the bottle from her hand.

Yes, Ina's mother was at hand to save her. For in that respect Ina, after transgressing, was in better case than Bright Effie of the novel. Of her it could not be said: "Her own people will have nothing to do with her." She had been permitted to keep her "little baby" and live at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Norris, in Marion. Yet, with that advantage, the lot of an unmarried mother was too hard to endure.

The reader of the novel, "If Winter Comes," instinctively wonders what would have been the ultimate fate of Effie and her baby if her parents had not refused to shelter them and if Harold Twyning had returned from the war to make honorable amends. Perhaps all would have been well and perhaps—well, in the case of Ina Norris the mantle of that charity which begins at home did not protect against tragedy following on the heels of tragedy.

Three weeks after taking her little baby's life Ina Norris ended her own, April 7 last, by plunging headfirst into a barrel of rainwater in the yard of her parents' home.

The sequel showed that in her disordered state she saw a reason in the future as well as in the past for this act of self-destruction.

If Bright Effie had remained at home with her baby!

Ina Norris remained at home with hers—and, yet——

The families of Perry Greer and Joel Norris were neighbors in Crab Orchard, a farming settlement outside of Marion. Claude Greer and Ina Norris, about the same age, were playmates and together attended the grade school in Marion. The families were closely bound by the ties of friendship. They worshiped together at the Crab Orchard Baptist Church.

There came a time when Ina could no longer defer the telling of a sad story to her mother. In its recital she mentioned the name of Claude Greer.

State's Attorney Duty told a Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine reporter that statements made to him in his investigation made it apparent that from the time of this sad recital Ina Norris' parents never evinced a disposition to deny the haven of their home to Ina and her baby. It was equally apparent, he said, that the disclosure was followed by a conference between the Norris and the Greer families, at which it was agreed that Claude Greer, then 18 years old, had not the earning power to support a wife and that time would be given to him to right the wrong. The Norris family gave up its farm and moved into Marion, where Ina's baby was born.

A short time later Claude Greer obtained employment in Marion as driver of a jitney automobile for a company controlled by Elijah Lewis, Mayor of the town.

The story of the boy who had a purpose in working had become current in Marion. While some frowned on him others held out a helping hand and gave him a chance to make good.

There was also some help for the young mother. She obtained employment as an operator at the Marion telephone exchange.

Visits were still exchanged by the Norris and Greer families. Even Claude Greer visited the Norris home to see the baby and its mother. Sometimes he called with his service car and took her for a ride.

Here, it would seem was tolerance different from the treatment usually meted out to the unmarried mother. The Conventional Code was much less rigidly enforced than in the case of the fictional Bright Effie. Yet the end was not happiness.

It is not to be supposed that Ina Norris, unmarried mother, felt no silent but stinging rebukes. Her "own people" did not turn her out, but there were some who had known her since her childhood who knew her no more.

In her anguish Bright Effie of the novel wrote: "I can't, I can't. I simply cannot give up my little baby. He's mine. He looks at me and knows me and stretches out his tiny little hands to me, and I can't give him up. I can't let my baby go. Whatever I've done, I'm his mother and he's my little baby and I can't let him go."

That was the awful shadow that fell across Bright Effie's life.

In the case of Ina Norris the first shadow was not so deep, but a second and more awful shadow spelled her doom.

Ina Norris gave up her employment at the telephone switchboard and returned home. Again she had a sad disclosure to make to her mother. More than ever there was reason now, she said, for Claude Greer to keep his promise.

A portion at least of the world she had known had responded to the call of compassion and human sympathy. Would it be equally responsive to another call?

A pathetic figure as an inquest witness was Joel Norris when he testified:

"Ina Norris, my daughter, was 20 years of age the twenty-seventh day of last April and was a single woman. She has always lived with her mother and me. She had repeatedly threatened to take her own life. At about 5:30 this morning I went to the barn to milk. I saw Ina come out of her bedroom.

"The next I saw of her was when my daughter, Gladys, took the milk pail from me at the lot gate after I had finished milking. As Gladys turned facing the east she screamed and I ran around the corner of the garage and saw my daughter Ina in a rain barrel which had been about two-thirds full of water. She had lowered herself head-foremost into the water. I immediately took her out of the water and began to scream. Several neighbors came and did what they could to revive her, but she was dead.

"She had repeatedly stated to me that having a child and expecting another, she would kill herself unless Claude Greer married her. He had repeatedly promised to marry her and failed to keep his promise. She attempted to commit suicide on March 17, at which time she killed her baby, Bernardine, with carbolic acid."

At the outset of her unmarried motherhood the world was kinder to Ina Norris than to Bright Effie, but the brand of the unmarried mother was upon her, and having left the conventional path her feet went down into darkness.

Cro-Magnon race, the first men physically like those of today, probably came from Asia and they completely dispossessed the Neanderthal type of men, who became extinct—A nomadic hunting people, which developed remarkable artistic ability—Pictures they made are found in caverns of widely-separated localities—Their average height was more than six feet, and brain capacity exceeded present average

IN EUROPE, in the old Stone Age, some 25,000 or 30,000 years ago, a social, industrial and racial revolution of so profound a nature took place that even the World War is dwarfed in comparison with it.

This stupendous upheaval was caused by the migration from Asia of a superior race of men, the Cro-Magnons. Like the coming of the white men to America, with the consequent extermination of the red men, so the arrival of the Cro-Magnons in Europe was the signal for the passing of the Neanderthal race that had occupied the land for upwards of a hundred thousand years.

The Cro-Magnons belonged to the species of man known as Homo sapiens, the same species to which we belong, and are the first members of this species known to science. They dominated Europe with their industry and art until the close of the Upper Paleolithic Age, when for reasons not yet entirely clear they underwent a decline and with their disappearance brought to a close the Old Stone Age in Europe. Their skeletonal remains and specimens of their industry and art are very widely distributed over the continent.

When they entered Europe they were the highest products of an evolutionary development which must have occupied hundreds of thousands of years, and probably took place in Asia. Their physical structure is entirely of Asiatic type, and their stations are abundantly developed along the Mediterranean coasts, both of Europe and Africa.

The date of the arrival of the Cro-Magnons in Europe is fixed at 25,000 years ago, or at the close of the fourth glaciation. From evidence of various kinds we know that the Postglacial period has been from 25,000 to 30,000 years. So the date of the Cro-Magnons in years is fixed with much greater confidence than that of earlier species of men, such as the Neanderthals, the Piltdown race and the men of Heidelberg.

While the Cro-Magnons left no written records, they buried their dead in grottos and caves and painted pictures of themselves and the animal life about them upon the walls of the caverns in which they lived. Their bones and their art are being recovered in many places in Europe, notably in France; and scientists have reconstructed for us their physical appearance, manners and customs, and have discovered numerous specimens of their art.

The extinction of the Neanderthals by the new and virile Cro-Magnons seems to have been complete. In savage warfare the men are often killed and the women taken into the families of the warriors, but this was apparently not the case with the Neanderthals, for mixture of the two species has not been discovered.

When the Cro-Magnons entered Europe, France and the British Isles were joined together, the latter still forming part of the European continent. The climate, just at the close of the fourth glaciation, was dry and stimulating; the summers were warm or temperate, the winters cold. Western Europe was then a fresh and wonderful game country, with food in the forests, meadows and streams in the greatest abundance.

For this kind of a home the Cro-Magnons were especially well fitted. They were a nomadic hunting people, probably using the bow and arrow, and developed an extraordinary appreciation of the beauties of nature, especially the beauty and majesty of the magnificent animal life about them. This included the mammoth, the reindeer, the woolly rhinoceros, the musk-ox, wild horses, sheep and asses. Other animals which still persisted that glacial times were the arctic fox, the arctic hare, lemmings, cave bear, wildcat, wolf, fox and bison.

The people lived in great, open camps, and in these camps, such as the one at Solutre, France, the bones of the animals they hunted are found in great abundance. At Solutre the bones of a vast number of wild horses, estimated at not less than 100,000, are found distributed in a wide circle around the camp.

Remains of the Cro-Magnon race were first discovered in 1868, in a grotto in the little hamlet of Cro-Magnon, in France, whence the name was given to this race. Five skeletons were then recovered, in the grotto accidentally discovered by a workman. The first skeleton taken out was that of an old man, and it is now the famous type, "Old Man of Cro-Magnon." The next was that of a woman, whose forehead bore the mark of a wound from some heavy blow. The other three skeletons were those of a child and two young men.

Numerous other specimens have been found since the original discovery, and from the complete skeletons now available we know that the average stature of the Cro-Magnons probably exceeded six feet. The "Old Man of Cro-Magnon" measured 6 feet 4 1-2 inches. Their brain capacity was very great, that of Cro-Magnon women exceeding the brain capacity of the average man of today. The diameter of the head across the cheekbones was greater than that across the cranium, but the forehead was high, broad and imposing. The limb bones were long and robust.

With prominent cheekbones, massive chin and eyes set well apart, the Cro-Magnon man constituted one of the finest races physically that the world has ever seen.

And this splendid fellow was the first of the present species of man, Homo sapiens. Truly, an upstanding and a noble type. With a modern haircut and dressed in modern garb, he could walk along Lindell boulevard without causing any comment other than admiration for his magnificent physique. Yet his date goes back in Europe some 25,000 years or more; and he was in all essentials a savage of his time.

With a brain capacity exceeding that of the average of today, he could have taken a college education with profit to himself and honor to his alma mater. He was probably our equal in brain power, yet all this went for naught in the absence of opportunity for education and training. The Upper Paleolithic Age closed with his decline and disappearance and the next period of man is called the Neolithic.

More than 90 skeletons have been found in some 15 widely distributed localities of Western Europe. But the Cro-Magnons left behind them much more than their skulls and bones. They were the Greeks of the Paleolithic Age. Their artistic sense was highly developed and it is evident they had a keen appreciation of the beauty of the wonderful mammalian life about them. Upon the walls of the caverns they left drawings and paintings of the bison, mammoth, ibex, deer and many other animals with which they were familiar.

These paintings are executed with astonishing skill and spirit. They are found in caves where no daylight ever entered, and in places almost inaccessible to sight and reach. The subjects are all animals, for they were the only ones of interest to a race that lived by the chase.

When man advances from the hunter stage to the more settled agricultural life, these spontaneous naturalistic drawings no longer appear. Neolithic man shows a marked advance over his Paleolithic predecessors in all the useful arts of life, as seen in his tools

The Upper Paleolithic Age is divided into several riods, the last of which, the Magdalenian, is the cul- nating one of Paleolithic civilization. Here the o-Magnons reached the highest development of their t, immediately preceding their sudden decline and appearance as the dominant race. The men of this riod are known as Magdalenians, the name being ken from the type station, La Madaleine, just as the eeks were known as Athenians.

It was probably during this period that the bow arrow were introduced. The bison pictured on walls of the caverns show several barbed points king in their sides.

Prof. H. F. Osborn of the American Museum, an thority on the men of the Old Stone Age, writes as lows:

"The Cro-Magnon artist, whose life brought him close touch with nature and who evidently fol- ed the movements both of the individual animals the herds for hours at a time, has rendered his ervations in the most realistic manner.

"While many figures are of real artistic worth and h a high level, others are more or less crude at- pts; the composition of figures or of groups of res is rarely undertaken.

"We infer that there was a tribal organization, and it has been suggested that certain unexplained implements of reindeer horn, often beautifully carved and known as 'batons de commandement,' were insignia of authority borne by the chieftains.

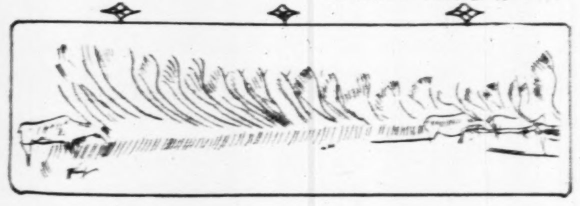
"There can be little doubt that such diversities of temperament, of talent and of predisposition as obtain today also prevailed then, and that they tended to differentiate society into chieftains, priests and medicine men, hunters of large game and fishermen, fashioners of flints and dressers of hides, makers of clothing and footwear, makers of ornaments, engravers, sculptors in wood, bone ivory and stone, and artists with color and brush.

"In their artistic work, at least, these people were animated with a compelling sense of truth, and we cannot deny them a strong appreciation of beauty.

"It is probable that a sense of wonder in the face of the powers of nature was connected with the development of a religious sentiment. How far their artistic work in the caverns was an expression of such sentiment and how far it was the outcome of a purely artistic impulse are matters for very careful study. Undoubtedly the inquisitive sense which led them to go into the deep and dangerous recesses of the caverns was accompanied by an increased sense of awe and possibly by a sentiment which we may regard as more or less religious. * * *

"We have already seen evidence from the burials that these people apparently believed in the preparation of the bodies of the dead for a future existence."

Returning to a detailed study of the art of the Cro-Magnons, some representations of which are given on these pages, Dr. Osborn says: "The mammalian life of Magdalenian times is of interest not only in connection with the climate and environment of the Cro-Magnon race, but with the development of their industry and especially of their art. It is noteworthy that the imposing forms of animal life, the mammoth among the tundra fauna and the bison among the meadow fauna, made a very strong impression and were the favorite subjects of the draftsmen and colorists.



Herd of reindeer, engraved by Cro-Magnon artist in impressionistic style upon an eagle's bone. Discovered in a grotto in France.
—American Museum of Natural History.

"The artists and sculptors have preserved the external appearance of more than 30 forms of this wonderful mammalian assemblage, which accord exactly with the fossil records preserved in the fire hearths of the grottos and shelters, and with the deposits assembled by beasts and birds of prey in the uninhabited caverns.

"No artists have ever had before them at the same time and in the same country such a wonderful panorama of animal life as that observed by the Cro-Magnons. Their representations in drawing, engraving, painting and sculpture afford us a view of a great part of the life of the period, including its contingent of forms from the tundras, steppes, Alpine summits and Eurasiatic forests and meadows, and the one surviving member of the Asiatic fauna, the lion."

Like the Greek and Roman and Babylonian civilizations, and countless others, that of the Cro-Magnons underwent a decline and perished from the earth. Whether they left any descendants in the races of modern Europe is a mooted question, and just why such a splendid race degenerated is equally so. Prof. Osborn says:

"The decline of the Cro-Magnons as a powerful race may have been due partly to environmental causes and the abandonment of their vigorous nomadic mode of life, or it may be that they had reached the end of a long cycle of physical development, which we have traced from the beginning of Aurignacian times. We know as a parallel that in the history of many civilizations a period of great artistic and industrial development may be followed by a period of stagnation and decline without any apparent environmental causes.

"In Europe a very broad face and a long, narrow cranium is such an infrequent combination that anthropologists maintain that it affords a means of identifying the descendants of the prehistoric Cro-Magnon race wherever they persist today. Since Dordogne, France, was the geographic center of the race in Upper Paleolithic times, is it merely a coincidence that Dordogne is still the center of a similar type?

"The present people of Dordogne agree with but one other type of men known to anthropologists, namely, the ancient Cro-Magnon race. The geographical evidence that here in Dordogne we have to do with the survivors of the real Cro-Magnon race seems to be sustained by a comparison of the characteristics of the prehistoric skulls found at Cro-Magnon with the heads of the types living there today. * * *

"The prehistoric Cro-Magnon men would seem, therefore, to have remained in or near their early settlements through all the changes of time and the vicissitudes of history. It is, perhaps, the most striking instance known of a persistency of population unchanged through thousands of years."

The Paleolithic, or Old Stone, Age was followed in Europe by the Neolithic, or New Stone, Age and its close was the dawn of history. This may have been some 2500 or 3000 years B. C. In the Neolithic period the stone implements were sometimes polished, but no metal except copper was used until near its close. Agriculture received increasing attention, and the characteristics of the people were those of husbandmen rather than hunters and fishers, as in the Paleolithic times. Certain animals and plants were domesticated and pottery was made, but without the aid of a potter's wheel.

An interesting event bearing upon life in Neolithic times was the discovery in 1853 of the lake dwellings of these people. The winter had been unusually cold came subject to seizure and are being seized by the soviet government.

Soviets' Honesty of Purpose Questioned

Sacred vessels and emblems which have served their religious offices for centuries; icons which have been borne in battle-front through holy wars, jeweled effigies of the Christ and of the Virgin and of the saints, before which worshiped innumerable millions of people who lived and died in the faith—all these are to be taken and, if the announcement of the Russian Government can be accepted, used for the succoring of the famine-stricken millions.

At behest of old King Midas all things were turned to gold; then Midas starved because he could not eat gold. In Russia it appears that all precious metals and all precious stones found in the churches are to be turned into bread through commercial transmutation and fed to the starving.

This is the most stupendous relief measure that any Government ever has devised. Early in March came the announcement from Moscow, seat of the soviet rule, that these splendid treasures of the 60,000 church buildings in Russia were to be requisitioned and sold for the purpose stated.

Throughout Christendom this startling announcement is being received with approval by some and with disapproval by others. The humanitarian aspect of the matter meets with universal approval, but the Lenine-Trotzky regime is under such suspicion as to motives that many persons, both of the clergy and the laity, denounce the requisitioning of the church treasures as a soviet scheme for feeding the revolution rather than the starving people.

The very decision proves as nothing else could have done the desperate nature of the crisis in that country's economic conditions, for religion always has played a dominant part in the life of the Russian masses, and such a step was bound to meet with bitter opposition. Put church property, even the sacred vessels themselves, have in past times in other countries been sold during periods of calamity, to alleviate suffering and save lives.

It is not so much the selling of church treasures for strictly utilitarian and material purposes which gives this piece of current history its peculiar interest, but rather the vast scope of the affair. The 60,000 religious structures which will be affected by the Government's decision range from magnificent cathedrals in Moscow, Petrograd and other large cities to little parish churches in obscure peasant communities.

What the monetary value of the gold and silver, the diamonds and other precious and semi-precious stones in Russian cathedrals, monasteries, convents and churches may be, it is impossible to ascertain accurately. But that the total runs into fabulous figures there is no doubt. Even the icons, those holy pictures which have been so characteristic a feature of Russian life in church, home, school, places of employment and even in railroad stations, and which often are framed in noble metal and studded with gems, must have a marketable value beside which the traditional "king's ransom" would be but a handful of farthings.

Icons are panel pictures, varying from a few inches square to life size, and usually painted in tempera on a gold ground. They are often partly covered with a gilt metal shield, with apertures left for the face and hands, which are kept flat, the robes and headdress being embossed in relief. This is the result of the controversy in the seventh and eighth centuries, when all plastic representation of the human form was condemned. Often of little artistic merit, many are set with jewels of fabulous value. The subjects include all the saints of the Old and New Testaments, also Greek and Russian saints.

"The value of the church treasures in Russia, before the war, was more than two billions of dollars. How much more than that immense figure, no man knows."

So declares the Rev. Alexis Borochovich, pastor of the Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic Church of St. Michael the Archangel, at 1125 Hickory street.

"One picture alone at Kiev," continued the Russian priest, "a famous representation of the blessed St. Mary, adorned with gold and diamonds, is valued at ten million gold rubles." (Under normal rates of exchange this would be $5,150,000.) "Many of the icons and other treasures are very old and have been venerated for centuries. It is dreadful to think that any of them must be melted down. But there is bitter need in Russia. Certainly the people must have food.

"I do not believe, however, that these things are being taken from the churches for the benefit of all the people. Probably it is being done for the bolshevists and their propaganda. First they robbed the people of all their gold, silver and precious stones, soon after they came into power, in 1917. Now they are taking such articles from the churches.

"If the talk of using this wealth to help the poor and hungry people of the famine districts is only an excuse, then they are doing a very wicked thing, an abominable thing. But we can only wait and see."

Tall, elderly and very clerical, with long gray hair and beard, Father Borochovich conducts services in his native tongue for a small congregation, in a chapel which has been carefully extemporized on the ground floor of a former residence.

Across one end of the church room extends the regulation inconostasis, or screen, on which are painted or hung the icons. Three doors in the screen communicate with the nave, where the worshipers stand, for there are no pews or seats in a Russian orthodox

What St. Louisans of Clergy and Laity Say of Seizure of Church Jewels for Relief of Famine Sufferers

ARCHBISHOP GLENNON.

THE MOST REV. JOHN J. GLENNON, Archbishop of the Diocese of St. Louis, termed the requisitioning of church treasures in Russia as "sacrilegious seizure." There are many instances, he said, in the history of France, Italy, Spain and England, where treasures of the church and even the sacred vessels were sold during a crisis and the proceeds used to relieve human misery and save lives.

"Not only were these things done with the consent of the Bishops, but at their direction," remarked the Archbishop. But the circumstances of the present case are quite different, in his opinion. He continued:

"I could admire and would applaud the action of the bolshevists in feeding the starving, if I thought that was their true purpose. But I fear that instead of feeding the hungry they are only feeding themselves, and doing so on the spoils they have taken from the churches, not with the consent of the church authorities but by sacrilegious seizure.

"The whole affair would wear a different aspect if the 'requisitioning' were done with the permission or approval of the church authorities. Then the sacred vessels, which, after all, must be the chief objects of the seizure, could be prepared or secularized, if I may use the word, melted down and converted into exchange for the purchase of food. Often in history has this been done, and even the sacred vessels have been melted down to relieve dire distress.

"The soviet government, however, has made this impossible, since it has suppressed religion and exiled the priests and Bishops of Russia. Now it tries to complete the suppression and loots the churches under the specious plea that it is going to feed the hungry.

"The end does not justify the means, ever, and the soviet government does not justify itself."

GEORGE W. SIMMONS

GEORGE W. SIMMONS, who in 1919 spent seven months in Russia as special representative of the War Council, American Red Cross, believes it possible that the removal of gold and silver objects, precious stones and other articles of marketable value from Russian churches may have progressed much farther than indicated in news dispatches.

"These announcements from Moscow," he said, "may be for the purpose of preparing the world to hear that the 'requisitioning' already has been accomplished. I don't believe the bolshevists to be sincere in anything. They are liars, and admit that they are. Nothing they say is entitled to any credence.

"As for a desire to give food to the starving millions of Russia, that certainly would be a proper feeling on the part of the bolshevists, but not one that entitled them to any special commendation. It is the way they should feel about the ghastly conditions which they have brought about entirely by their own mismanagement and incapacity.

"The only things which interest them are the abolition of all government and of the private ownership of property. There is no crime at which they would stop, if they thought it would do any good in accomplishing those ends or retaining themselves in power.

"The church buildings were among the first places plundered. The communists are opposed to the church because it has been a rallying point for the peasants, who never have accepted communist principles and who are responsible for the failure of Lenine and Trotzky's program against private ownership of property and against private trade.

"I haven't any faith in the announcements that the bolshevists are intent upon relieving the famine sufferers, in their plundering of the churches. The plundering no doubt is an actual fact, but not for the purposes which they would have the world believe."

FORMER AMBASSADOR FRANCIS

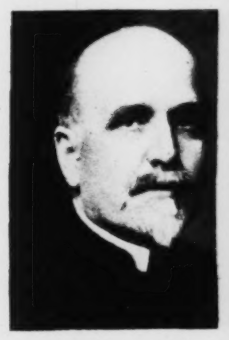
DAVID R. FRANCIS, former Governor of Missouri, who was Ambassador to Russia at the time of the revolution and afterwards, made this comment on the seizure of church treasures:

"Very reprehensible, but quite in accord with the soviet communist government's policy of robbery and murder ever since it got control in Russia."

Former Gov. Francis was in Russia as Ambassador of the United States from April, 1916, to November, 1918. He was there when the Kerensky revolution started and when it was succeeded by the bolshevist regime of Lenine and Trotzky.

From his own first-hand observation he was convinced that Lenine was sent into Russia by Germany to withdraw Russia from the war by demoralizing its army. He has been outspoken in his opinion that the motives of the bolshevist leaders have always been sinister and selfish.

DR. JOHN W. DAY



THE REV. DR. JOHN W. DAY, pastor of the Church of the Messiah, commented on the requisitioning of church treasures in Russia as follows:

"As the matter is reported in press dispatches from Russia, I feel that the value of the precious things taken will serve the Lord better in feeding hungry children than in decorating the altars of churches. I would not like to be understood as approving the reckless violation and looting of churches, and the church authorities should co-operate with Government officials in applying these treasures to the relief of the starving.

"The righteousness or unrighteousness of it all depends on the exact circumstances of the case. An awful situation exists in Russia and the news accounts sound as if the people had been driven by desperation and stern necessity to do what they have done. If they were, you can't blame them. There may have been no violation of the churches. The removal of such valuables should be done with proper reverence and formality, and a due regard to the sanctities.

"I guess that we'd do the same thing in this country, under similar circumstances."

DR. IVAN LEE HOLT

THE REV. DR. IVAN LEE HOLT, pastor of St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church South, said:

"One of the tragedies of the centuries has been the starving of people under the shadow of great churches whose interiors were covered with gold. No one can have a real Christian spirit and desire to hold in churches the only gold there is for feeding hungry men and women. There are, however, two things to be taken into consideration in this Russian situation.

"In the first place, there is a strong probability that the bolshevik government desires to use the gold for its own support and very little of it will go to the poor. The present government has been antichurch and would take particular pleasure in despoiling the church. I should be moved much more nearly to sympathy if this move were recommended by some American relief committee, rather than the bolshevik government.

"In the second place, there is plenty of money in the world to feed starving Russia if people would give it. A great many may find ease for their consciences by approving the plan to rob the churches of Russia."

church. Upon the walls are numerous other icons, some of them life size and framed in gilt. In the yard is a tall structure of heavy timbers, with a winding flight of steps to the top, where a large bell is swung.

This is but an humble little church, struggling for existence in a foreign land, and only in the essentials does it suggest those splendid homes of the same faith which today in Russia are being stripped of their ornaments so that men, women and children may get just enough food to escape starvation. Other denominations are represented in Russia, too, but the orthodox church is by far the largest, with more than 87,000,000 adherents, prior to the war.

Scarcely a book about travel in Russia but has its comment, often lengthy and somehow recalling the fairy tales of our youth, on the splendor and riches of the churches. For example, here is what John L. Stoddard, the travel lecturer, says in describing the interior of St. Isaac's Cathedral at Petrograd:

"Before its gilded altar screen are 10 columns of malachite, 30 feet high, and pillars of lapis-lazuli, each of which cost $30,000. This exceeds every other display of these marvelous stones that the world knows. We are accustomed to regard a small fragment of either as a valuable ornament. Imagine, then, whole columns of them five times as high as ourselves!

"Yet this is only in keeping with the entire building; for in St. Isaac's we tread a pavement of variegated marble; we ascend steps of polished jasper; we clasp railings of pure alabaster, and we are surrounded by walls inlaid with verd-antique and porphyry, interspersed with vast mosaic portraits of the saints and shrines of gold encrusted with jewels.

"One portrait of Christ is studded with diamonds, the largest of which is valued at $35,000. The whole, in fact, is so magnificent as to appear incredible till actually seen."

Exterior view of St. Isaac's Cathedral.

For another glimpse of ecclesiastical magnificence in the land where the Czars once ruled, turn to C. Fillingham Coxwell's book, entitled "Through Russia in War-Time." In a description of the Cathedral of Assumption, alluded to as "the chief glory of the Kremlin" at Moscow, he says:

"Five gilded domes on round towers, which, with the white walls, are pierced by a few high, narrow lights, without; coolness and darkness, sides and pillars generously showing figured saints, within! The frescoes deal much with the ideas of medieval religion, for angels and monks, even knights, appear in them; while, too, scenes from the Holy Virgin's life, the early councils of the Greek Church, and the Last Judgment, have a share in the representations.

"But, abundantly as exist here the holiest imaginable relics, nothing exerts so compelling an attraction as the great iconostas, which, with certain sacred objects, is said to contain five tons of gold. Almost with deeper feelings of awe are the faithful stirred when they see, to the left of the holy door, the Vladimir Virgin, a picture reputedly the work of St. Luke."

The iconostasis, or screen, and shrine of silver in the Monastery of the Trinity of St. Sergius, at Sergievsky Posad, in Moscow region.

Such are some of the finer church buildings which are yielding up a portion, at least, of their treasures. It seems likely that most of them will be taken by the authorities. The soviet decree, issued late in February, directed the seizure of all precious metals and stones "which would not interfere with the interests of the various cults." Then it was announced that the All-Russian Central Committee would determine what articles were absolutely necessary for religious purposes and exempt from requisition.

A dispatch from Moscow dated April 4 said that the requisitioning of church treasures was "in full swing through Russia, but under the tensest circumstances." Another Moscow dispatch told of four parishioners being killed and 10 wounded when Red Guards fired into a crowd that was obstructing the doorway of a provincial church and endeavoring to prevent the authorities from carrying out the decree.

Another interesting message, this time from Petrograd, described one difficulty with which soviet officials already were contending. It appears that since the edict was issued there have been many mysterious "thefts" and disappearances of church treasures, which had not occurred or at least had not been reported until the work of collecting the treasures began.

One of the churches looted was the Chapel of the Iberian Virgin, in the Red Square of the Kremlin, Moscow. According to the report, the chapel was entered by robbers, who obtained jewels valued at 5,000,000 gold marks, which, at normal rates of exchange, would amount to $2,575,000. Diamonds, pearls, bejeweled necklaces and crowns and other ornaments were stripped from some of the most famous icons in Russia.

Advices from Russia also state that with a few exceptions, where looting of churches occurred during the early days of the revolution, the church treasures have been left practically intact. This statement, of course, was promptly challenged by some people in this country, who, however, did not have any definite information on which to base their accusations.

Patriarch Tikhon, head of the Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic Church, is understood to contend that, since the church and the state are now separated from each other, title to the church wealth rests in the hands of the parishioners of each church. Therefore, it is reported from Moscow, where he resides, the patriarch feels that it is for each parish to decide what treasures it will surrender for the famine relief.

A Moscow newspaper, in connection with this gigantic requisitioning of church vessels and ornaments, has described some of the more famous objects owned by different cathedrals. Probably the most noted one is the bejeweled icon, "Our Lady of Kazan," in the Kazan Cathedral at Petrograd. A representation of the Virgin Mary in beaten gold, it weighs 10 pounds and is decorated with 1665 larger and 1432 smaller diamonds, 638 rubies, 7 sapphires, 1400 pearls and 155 other jewels. Hung about the neck is a necklace of huge, first-water diamonds.

In the Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul, at Petrograd, there is another famous icon, known as the "Holy Jerusalem Lady," of solid gold. About two feet square, it contains 38 karats of large diamonds, 13 karats of medium-sized diamonds and 14 1-4 karats of smaller stones. In this same cathedral are 24 other icons of almost equal value, says the Moscow newspaper article.

Another valuable array of church treasures is in St. Isaac's Cathedral at Petrograd, which was opened in 1858, after the expenditure of $14,000,000. On the opening day there was presented to the cathedral a total of 210 articles containing 81 pounds of gold and 4788 pounds of silver. Later a shrine of solid silver was built which weighed 468 pounds. St. Isaac's also has an icon which is 21 inches wide and 28 inches tall, done in gold overlay and further ornamented with a wreath in large diamonds.

Amid the welter of famine reports which come out of Russia, with their varying estimates of the population which must go breadless (the figure is always in millions), the occasional trace of propaganda, the shocking narratives brought back by disinterested observers, one fact stands out predominant: the enormous dimensions of this tragedy which has settled down over Russia like a vast and terrible cloud.

But conditions are improving, according to former Gov. James P. Goodrich of Indiana, who recently completed an extensive tour of Russia for the American Relief Administration. He even predicted that by May 1 food provided by America would have reached the remotest parts of the famine area, although seed grain may not have reached some localities in time for the spring planting. He said the death rate was rapidly diminishing, especially among children.

The Heart of Little Shikara

By EDISON MARSHALL

IN TWO PARTS

This story won the $500 O. Henry Memorial Prize for 1921.

PART ONE

IF IT hadn't been for a purple moon that came peering up above the dark jungle just at nightfall, it would have been impossible to tell that Little Shikara was at his watch. He was really just the color of the shadows—a rather pleasant brown—he was very little indeed, and besides he was standing very, very still. If he was trembling at all, from anticipation and excitement, it was no more than Nahar the tiger trembles as he crouches in ambush. But the moon did show him—peering down through the leaf clusters of the heavy vines—and shone very softly in his wide-open dark eyes.

And it was a purple moon—no other color that man could name. It looked almost unreal, like a paper moon painted very badly by a clumsy stage hand. The jungle moon quite often has that peculiar purplish tint, most travelers know, but few of them indeed ever try to tell what causes it. This particular moon beamed down here and there between the tall bamboos, transformed the jungle—just now waking—into a mystery and a fairyland, glinted on a hard-packed elephant trail that wound away into the thickets, and always came back to shine on the coal-black Oriental eyes of the little boy beside the village gate. It showed him standing very straight and just as tall as his small stature would permit, and looked oddly silvery and strange on his long, dark hair. Little Shikara, son of Khoda Dunnoo, was waiting for the return of a certain idol and demigod who was even now riding home in his howdah from the tiger hunt.

Others of the villagers would be down to meet Warwick Sahib as soon as they heard the shouts of his beaters—but Little Shikara had been waiting almost an hour. Likely if they had known about it, they would have commented on his badness, because he was notoriously bad, if indeed—as the villagers told each other—he was not actually cursed with evil spirits.

In the first place, he was almost valueless as a herder of buffalo. Three times when he had been sent with the other boys to watch the herds in their wallows, he had left his post and crept away into the fringe of the jungle on what was unquestionably some mission of witchcraft. For small, naked brown boys, as a rule, do not go alone and unarmed into the thick bamboos. Too many things can happen to prevent them ever coming out again, too many brown silent ribbons crawl in the grass, or too many yellow, striped creatures, no less lithe, lurk in the thickets. But the strangest thing of all—and the surest sign of witchcraft—was that he had always come safely out again, yet with never any satisfactory explanations as to why he had gone. He had always looked some way very joyful and tremulous—and perhaps even pale if from the nature of things a brown boy ever can look pale. But it was the kind of paleness that one has after a particularly exquisite experience. It was not the dumb, teeth-chattering paleness of fear.

"I saw the sergeant of the jungle," Little Shikara said after one of these excursions. And this made no sense at all.

"There are none of the King's soldiers here," the brown village folk replied to him. "Either thou liest to us, or thine eyes lied to thee. And didst thou also see the chevron that told his rank?"

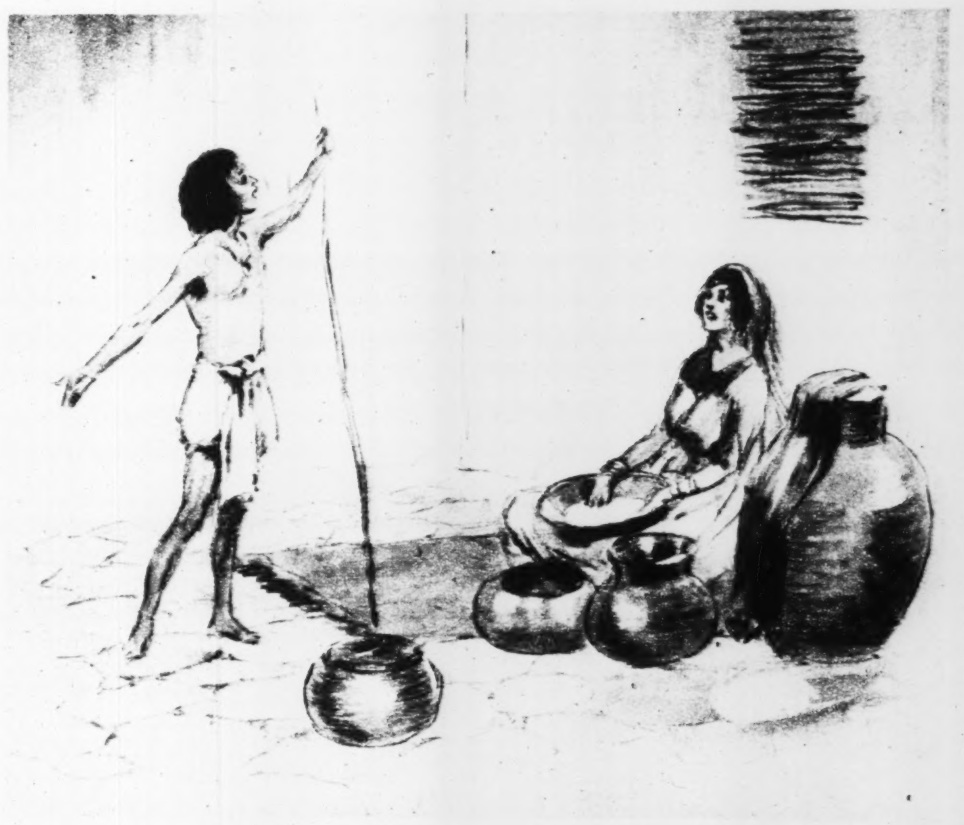
"That was the way I knew him. It was the black bear, and he wore the pale chevron low on his throat."

This was Little Shikara all over. Of course, he referred to the black Himalayan bear, which all men know wears a yellowish patch, of chevron shape, just in front of his forelegs; but why he should call him a jungle sergeant was quite beyond the wit of the village folk to say. Their imagination did not run in that direction. It never even occurred to them that Little Shikara might be a born jungle creature, expatriated by the accident of birth—one of that free, strange breed that can never find peace in the villages of men.

"But remember the name we gave him," his mother would say. "Perhaps he is only living up to his name."

For there are certain native hunters in India that are known, far and wide, as the Shikaris; and possibly she meant in her tolerance that her little son was merely a born huntsman. But in reality Little Shikara was not named for these men at all. Rather it was for a certain fleet-winged little hawk, a hunter of sparrows, that is one of the most free spirits in all the jungle.

And it was almost like taking part in some great hunt himself—to be waiting at the gate for the return of Warwick Sahib. Even now, the elephant came striding out of the shadows; and Little Shikara could see the trophy. The hunt had indeed been successful, and the boy's glowing eyes beheld—even in the shadows—the largest, most beautiful tiger skin he had ever seen. It was the great Nahar, the royal tiger, who had killed 100 cattle from nearby fields.



I, too, will some time return with such a tiger skin.

Warwick Sahib rode in his howdah; and he did not seem to see the village people that came out to meet him. In truth, he seemed half-asleep, his muscles limp, his gray eyes full of thoughts. He made no answer to the triumphant shouts of the village folk. Little Shikara glanced once at the lean, bronzed face, the limp, white, thin hands, and something like a shiver of ecstasy went clear to his 10 toes. For, like many other small boys, all over the broad world, he was a hero-worshiper to the last hair of his head; and this quiet man on the elephant was to him beyond all measure the most wonderful living creature on the earth.

He didn't cry out, as the others did. He simply stood in mute worship, his little body tingling with glory. Warwick Sahib had looked up now, and his slow eyes were sweeping the line of brown faces. But still he did not seem to see them. And then—wonder of wonders—his eyes rested full on the eyes of his little worshiper beside the gate.

He was just a great sportsman who was also an English gentleman, and he had learned certain lessons of impassiveness from the wild. Only one of the brown faces he beheld was worth a lingering glance. And when he met that one his eyes halted in their sweeping survey—and Warwick Sahib smiled.

That face was the brown, eager visage of Little Shikara. And the blood of the boy flowed to the skin, and he glowed red all over through the brown.

It was only the faintest of quiet, tolerant smiles; but it meant more to him than almost any kind of an honor could have meant to the prematurely gray man in the howdah.

The beaters had assembled in a circle under a tree, and most of the villagers had gathered to hear the story. He slipped in among them, and listened with both outstanding little ears. Warwick Sahib had dismounted from his elephant as usual, the beaters said, and with but one attendant had advanced up the bed of a dry creek. This was quite like Warwick Sahib, and Little Shikara felt himself tingling again. Other hunters, particularly many of the rich sahibs from across the sea, shot their tigers from the security of the howdah; but this wasn't Warwick's way of doing. The male tiger had risen snarling from his lair, and had been felled at the first shot.

Most of the villagers had supposed that the story would end at this point. Warwick Sahib's tiger hunts were usually just such simple and expeditious affairs. The gun would lift to his shoulder, the quiet eyes would glance along the barrel—and the tiger, whether charging or standing still, would speedily die. But today there had been a curious epilogue. Just as the beaters had started toward the fallen animal, and the white heaven-born's cigarette case was open in his hand, Nahara, Nahar's great, tawny mate, had suddenly sprung forth from the bamboo thickets.

She dove straight to the nearest of the beaters. There was no time whatever for Warwick to take aim. His rifle leaped, like a live thing, in his arms, but not one of the horrified beaters had seen his eyes lower to the sights. Yet the bullet went home. They could tell by the way the tiger flashed to her breast in the grass.

Yet she was only wounded. One of the beaters, starting, had permitted a bough of a tree to whip Warwick in the face, and the blow had disturbed what little aim he had. It was almost a miracle that he had hit the great cat at all. At once the thickets had closed around her, and the beaters had been unable to drive her forth again.

The circle was silent thereafter. They seemed to be waiting for Khusru, one of the head men of the village, to give his opinion. He knew more about the wild animals than any mature native in the assembly, and his comments on the hunting stories were usually worth hearing.

"We will not be in the honored service of the Protector of the Poor at this time a year from now," he said.

They all waited tensely. Shikara trembled. "Speak, Khusru," they urged him.

"Warwick Sahib will go again to the jungles—and Nahara will be waiting. She owes two debts. One is the killing of her mate—and ye know that these two tigers have been long and faithful mates. Do ye think she will let that debt go unpaid? She will also avenge her own wound."

"Perhaps she will die of bleeding," one of the others suggested.

"Nay, or ye would have found her this afternoon. Ye know that it is the wounded tiger that is most to be feared. One day, and he will go forth in pursuit of her again; and then ye will not see him riding back so grandly on his elephant. Perhaps she will come here to carry away our children."

Again Shikara tingled—hoping that Nahara would at least come close enough to cause excitement. And that night, too happy to keep silent, he told his mother of Warwick Sahib's smile. "And some time I—I, thine own son," he said, as sleepiness came upon him, "will be a killer of tigers, even as Warwick Sahib."

"Little sparrow hawk," his mother laughed at him. "Little one of mighty words, only the great sahibs that come from afar, and Warwick Sahib himself, may hunt the tiger. So how canst thou, little worthless?"

"I will soon be grown," he persisted, "and I—I, too—will some time return with such a tiger skin as the great heaven-born brought this afternoon." Little Shikara was very sleepy, and he was telling his dreams much more frankly than was his wont. "And the village folk will come out to meet me with shoutings, and I will tell them of the shot—in the circle under the tree."

"And where, little hawk, wilt thou procure thine elephants, and such rupees as are needed?"

"Warwick Sahib shoots from the ground—and so will I. And sometimes he goes forth with only one attendant—and I will not need even one. And who can say—perhaps he will find me even a bolder man than Gunga Singhai; and he will take me in his place on the hunts in the jungles."

For Gunga Singhai was Warwick Sahib's own personal attendant and gun carrier—the native that the Protector of the Poor could trust in the tightest places. So it was only to be expected that Little Shikara's mother should laugh at him. The idea of her son being an attendant of Warwick Sahib, not to mention a hunter of tigers, was only a tale to tell her husband when the boy's bright eyes were closed in sleep.

"Nay, little man," she told him. "Would I want thee torn to pieces in Nahara's claws? Would I want thee smelling of the jungle again, as thou didst after chasing the water buck through the bamboos? Nay—thou wilt be a herdsman, like thy father—and perhaps gather many rupees."

But Little Shikara did not want to think of rupees. Even now, as sleep came to him, his childish spirit had left the circle of thatched roofs, and had gone on tremulous expeditions into the jungle. Far away, the trumpet call of a wild tusker trembled through the moist, hot night; and great bell-shaped flowers made the air pungent and heavy with perfume. A tigress skulked somewhere in a thicket licking an injured leg with her rough tongue, pausing to listen to every sound the night gave forth. Little Shikara whispered in his sleep.

A half-mile distant, in his richly furnished bungalow, Warwick Sahib dozed over his after-dinner cigar. He was in evening clothes and crystal and silver glittered on his board. But his gray eyes were half closed; and the gleam from his plate could not pass the long, dark lashes. For his spirit was far distant, too—on the jungle trails with that of Little Shikara.

II.

ONE sunlit morning, perhaps a month after the skin of Nahar was brought in from the jungle, Warwick Sahib's mail was late. It was an unheard-of thing. Always before, just as the clock struck 8, he would hear the cheerful tinkle of

THIS story, "The Heart of Little Shikara," took the first O. Henry memorial prize of $500 as the best short story published in 1921. The author, Edison Marshall, lives at Medford, Ore., and is a native of Indiana. He is in his twenty-eighth year and has devoted his entire time to short-story writing since he was 20. His work has appeared in many magazines. This story appeared first in Everybody's Magazine and is reproduced here by arrangement with the Metropolitan Newspaper Service.

the postman's bells. At first he considered complaining; but as the morning drew to early afternoon, he began to believe that investigation would be the wiser course.

The postman's route carried him along the old elephant trail through a patch of thick jungle beside one of the tributaries of the Manipur. When natives went out to look, he was neither on the path nor drowned in the creek, nor yet in his thatched hut at the other end of his route. The truth was that this particular postman's bells would never be heard by human ears again. And there was enough evidence in the wet mold of the trail to know what had occurred.

That night the circle under the tree was silent and shivering. "Who is next?" they asked of one another. The jungle night came down, breathless and mysterious, and now and then a twig was cracked by a heavy foot at the edge of the thickets. In Warwick's house the great Protector of the Poor took his rifles from their cases and fitted them together.

"Tomorrow," he told Gunga Singhai, "we will settle for that postman's death."

Singhai breathed deeply, but said nothing. Perhaps his dark eyes brightened. The tiger hunts were nearly as great a delight to him as they were to Warwick himself.

But while Nahara, lame from Warwick's bullet, could no longer overtake cattle, she did with great skillfulness avoid the onrush of the beaters. Again Little Shikara waited at the village gate for his hero to return; but the beaters walked silently tonight. Nor were there any tales to be told under the tree.

Nahara, a fairly respectable cattle killer before, had become in a single night one of the worst terrors of India. Of course, she was still a coward, but she had learned, by virtue of a chance meeting with a postman on a trail after a week of heart-devouring starvation, two or three extremely portentous lessons. One of them was that not even the little deer, drinking beside the Manipur, died half so easily as these tall, forked forms of which she had previously been so afraid. She found out also that they could neither run swiftly nor walk silently, and they could be approached even by a tiger that cracked a twig with every step. It simplified the problem of living immensely.

Gradually the fact dawned on her that unlike the deer and the buffalo, this new game was more easily hunted in the daylight—particularly in that tired-out, careless twilight hour when the herders and the plantation hands came in from their work. At night the village folk kept in their huts, and such wood cutters and gypsies as slept without wakened every hour to tend their fires. Nahara was deathly afraid of fire. Night after night she would creep round and round a gypsy camp, her eyes like two pale blue moons in the darkness, and would never dare attack.

And because she was taking her living in a manner forbidden by the laws of the jungle, the glory and beauty of her youth quickly departed from her. The mange came upon her, and she lost flesh, and certain of her teeth began to come out. She was no longer the beautiful female of her species, to be sung to by the weaver birds as she passed beneath. She was a hag and a vampire, hatred of whom lay deep in every human heart in her hunting range.

Often the hunting was poor, and sometimes she went many days in a stretch without making a single kill. And in all beasts, high and low, this is the last step to the worst degeneracy of all. It instills a curious, terrible kind of blood lust—to kill, not once, but as many times as possible in the same hunt. Nahara didn't get a chance to kill every day; so when the opportunity did come, like a certain pitiable kind of human hunter who comes from afar to hunt small game, she killed as many times as she could in quick succession. And the British Empire raised the price on her head.

One afternoon found her within a half-mile of Warwick's bungalow, and for five days she had gone without food.

Soon a villager, who had been working in Warwick's fields, came trotting in Oriental fashion across the meadow. His eyes were only human, and he did not see the tawny shape in the tall grass. If anyone had told him that a full-grown tigress could have crept to such a place and still remained invisible, he would have laughed. He was going to his thatch hut, to brown wife and babies, and it was no wonder that he trotted swiftly. The muscle of the great cat bunched, and now the whipping tail began to have a little vertical motion that is the final warning of a spring.

The man was already in leaping range; but the tiger had learned, in many experiences, always to make sure. Still she crouched—a single instant, in which the trotting native came two paces nearer. Then the man drew up with a gasp of fright.

For just as the clear outlines of an object that has long been concealed in a maze of light and shadow will often leap, with sudden vividness, to the eyes, the native suddenly perceived the tiger.

He caught the whole dread picture—the crouching form, the terrible blue lights of the eyes, the whipping tail. The gasp he uttered from his closing throat seemed to act like the fall of a firing pin against a shell on the bunched muscles of the animal; and she left her covert in a streak of tawny light.

But Nahara's leaps had never been quite accurate since she had been wounded by Warwick's bullet, months before. They were usually straight enough for the general purposes of hunting, but they missed by a long way the "theoretical center of impact" of which artillery officers speak. Her lame paw always seemed to disturb her balance. By remembering it, she could usually partly overcome the disadvantage; but today, in the madness of her hunger, she had been unable to remember anything except the terrible rapture of killing. This circumstance alone, however, would not have saved the native's life. Even though her fangs missed his throat, the power of the blow and her rending talons would have certainly snatched away his life as a storm snatches a leaf. But there was one other determining factor. The Burman had seen the tiger just before she leaped; and although there had been no time for conscious thought, his guardian reflexes had flung him to one side in a single frenzied effort to miss the full force of the spring.

The result of both these things was that he received only an awkward, sprawling blow from the animal's shoulder. Of course, he was hurled to the ground; for no human body in the world is built to withstand the ton or so of shocking power of a 300-pound cat leaping through the air. The tigress sprawled down also, and because she lighted on her wounded paw, she squealed with pain. It was possibly three seconds before she had forgotten the stabbing pain in her paw and had gathered herself to spring on the unconscious form of the native. And that three seconds gave Warwick Sahib, sitting at the window of his study, an opportunity to seize his rifle and fire.

Warwick knew tigers, and he had kept the rifle always ready for just such a need as this. The distance was nearly 500 yards, and the bullet went wide of its mark. Nevertheless, it saved the native's life. The great cat remembered this same far-off explosion from another day, in a dry creek bed of months before, and the sing of the bullet was a remembered thing, too. Although it would speedily return to her, her courage fled as she turned and raced into the bamboos.

In an instant Warwick was on his great veranda, calling his beaters. Gunga Singhai, his faithful gun carrier, slipped shells into the magazine of his master's high-calibered close-range tiger rifle. "The elephant, Sahib?" he asked, swiftly.

"Nay, this will be on foot. Make the beaters circle about the fringe of bamboos. Thou and I will cross the eastern fields and shoot at her as she breaks through."

But there was really no time to plan a complete campaign. Even now, the first gray of twilight was blurring the sharp outlines of the jungle, and the soft jungle night was hovering, ready to descend. Warwick's plan was to cut through to a certain little creek that flowed into the river and with Singhai to continue on to the edge of the bamboos that overlooked a wide field. The beaters would prevent the tigress from turning back beyond the village, and it was at least possible that he would get a shot at her as she burst from the jungle and crossed the field to the heavier thickets beyond.

"Warwick Sahib walks into the teeth of his enemy," Khursu, the hunter, told a little group that watched from the village gate. "Nahara will collect her debts."

A little brown boy shivered at his words and wondered if the beaters would turn and kick him, as they always had done before, if he should attempt to follow them. It was the tiger hunt, in view of his own village, and he sat down tremulous with rapture in the grass to watch. It was almost as if his dream—that he himself should be a hunter of tigers—was coming true. He wondered why the beaters seemed to move so slowly and with so little heart.

He would have known if he could have looked into their eyes. Each black pupil was framed with white. Human hearts grow shaken and bloodless from such sights as this they had just seen, and only the heart of a jungle creature—the heart of the eagle that the jungle gods, by some unheard-of fortune, had put in the breast of Little Shikara—could prevail against them. Besides, the superstitious Burmans thought that Warwick was walking straight to his death—that the time had come for Nahara to collect her debts.

III.

WARWICK SAHIB and Singhai disappeared at once into the fringe of jungle, and silence immediately fell upon them. The cries of the beaters at once seemed curiously dim. It was as if no sound could live in the great silences under the arching trees. Soon it was as if they were alone.

They walked side by side, Warwick with his rifle held ready. He had no false ideas in regard to this tiger hunt. He knew that his prey was desperate with hunger, that she had many old debts to pay and that she would charge on sight.

"Where are the men?" Warwick asked, quietly. "It is strange that we do not hear them shouting."

"They are afraid, Sahib," Singhai replied. "The forest pigs have left us to do our own hunting."

Warwick corrected him with a smile. "Forest pigs are brave enough," he answered. "They are sheep—just sheep—sheep of the plains."

"There is little use of going on," Warwick said. "It is growing too dark. But there will be killings before the dawn if we don't get her first."

The servant stood still, waiting. It was not his place to advise his master.

"If we leave her, she'll come again before the dawn. Many of the herders haven't returned—she'll get one of them sure. At least we may cross the creek and get a view of the great fields. She is certain to cross them if she has heard the beaters."

In utter silence they went on. One hundred yards farther they came to the creek, and both strode in together to ford.

The water was only knee-deep, but Warwick's boots sank three inches in the mud of the bottom. And at that instant the gods of the jungle, always waiting with drawn scimitar for the unsuspecting, turned against them.

Singhai suddenly splashed down into the water, on his hands and knees. He did not cry out. If he made any sound at all, it was just a shivering gasp that the splash of water wholly obscured. But the thing that brought home the truth to Warwick was the pain that flashed, vivid as lightning, across his dark face; and the horror of death that left its shadow. Something churned and writhed in the mud; and then Warwick fired.

St. Louisan Shows How to Figure in a Circle

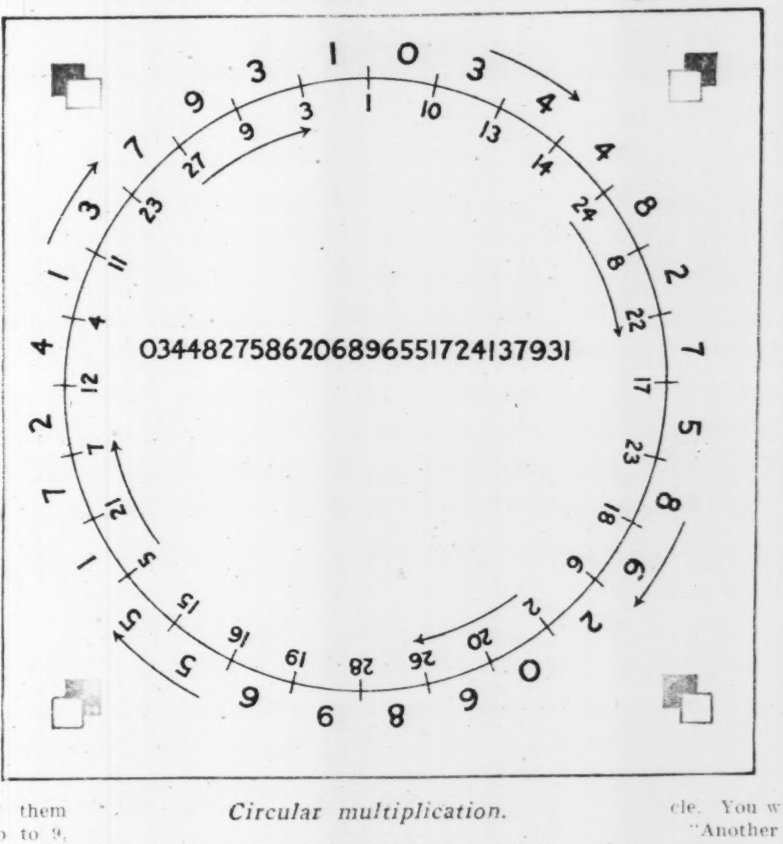
CIRCULAR multiplication is something new under the sun. It originated only a few weeks ago in St. Louis and in the mathematical mind of a young man who never has looked higher mathematics in the face and yet can "figure" accurately and almost instantly up into the septillions and beyond.

Talk about reasoning in a circle! That's easy. But figuring in a circle—now did you ever do that, or ever think of doing it? T. Gilmore Patterson, connected with the new business department of the National City Bank, went home the other night after an average day's work and rested himself up by inventing what he calls circular multiplication.

The diagram printed here is Exhibit A as to circular multiplication. Though it may look formidable, there is nothing difficult about it once you get the hang of it. Mr. Patterson says that so far as he knows—and he seems to know pretty far indeed, speaking of figures—circular multiplication is of no practical use to anybody. It will not solve the problem of the fourth dimension, but it will give entertainment and mental stimulation to those who like to make excursions into the mysteries of the numerals.

Now take a look at the diagram. Observe the circle. Inside the circle you see a set of numbers from 1 to 28, though they do not run consecutively. Outside the circle you see another set of figures, all of them single numerals, running the gamut from zero to 9, but not consecutively. In the middle of the circle is a line of figures beginning with zero and ending with 1. From the first figure 3 to the ultimate 1 this stands for a vast total which really has nothing to do with the mystery of circular multiplication.

Let it be enough to know that you wish to multiply that sum by any number from 2 up to 28. For example, let us multiply it by the top number, 28, and let us do it in a hurry—not lose time by setting down painfully two more long rows of figures and then another required in the adding process to find the answer.



Circular multiplication.

The number 28 happens to be near the top of the circle. Read to the right, outside the circle, a few figures—9, 6, 5, 5, 1. Just enough to serve as a guide when you glance at the long line of figures to find the numerals corresponding. About the middle of the line the figures read 9, 6, 5, 5, 1, etc.

Now, just lift all the figures lying to the left of the figure 9 and transfer them to the right of the line, not forgetting that little old zero, which counts for something when thus moved. The line as newly assembled represents the original line multiplied by 28. If you don't believe it, get a sheet of paper and a pencil and multiply it in the old-fashioned way.

Take another number—anything from 2 to 28—follow the same simple process, and the result you get is mathematically correct.

Very simple—yes? Easy when you know how. But how on earth did Mr. Patterson ever figure it out? If you ask him he will say:

"I don't know. Some days ago I read in the Post-Dispatch 'Letters From the People' column some discussion or other of the figure 9. That night I sat down and worked out this thing I call circular multiplication. Just how I conceived the idea I cannot explain—it's in my head, but I can't tell you how it got there, nor how I got it out, that is, into the circular form.

"I began by dividing a sum composed of 9's by the prime number 29. The result of that division is the line of figures you see in the middle of the circle. All numbers below 29 are multiples of that sum. Just put down half a dozen or so of 9's and divide by 29, and then compare with the start of the sum in the circle. You will find they tally.

"Another method of getting the key-line, so to call it, is to set down first the figure 1, then 3, then 9, then 27, etc., with the original 1 at the right, the 3 on the line below to the left, the 9 on the next line below to the left of the 3, and so on.

"You will find that after multiplying each of these sums by 3 and then adding up, remembering that the blank spaces at the right represent zeros, you get the key line of figures reading from right to left."

European Invasion of 25,000 Years Ago - - and dry and the water in the Swiss lakes sank to a lower level than had been hitherto recorded. The low water laid bare many acres of land that had always been submerged before; and along the edge of the retreating water great piles were discovered, driven into the ground, and at their base immense quantities of horn and stone implements and broken fragments of pottery. Discoveries of numerous lake dwellings, not only in Switzerland, but later in many parts of Europe, have given us more information concerning the life of Neolithic times than any other discoveries before or since.

Prof. John M. Tyler of Amherst College has just published a book on the life of the New Stone Age in Europe. He gives considerable attention to these lake dwellings, the number of which is very large, although we may well believe that the number found and explored is but a small part of the total number that must have existed during prehistoric times. Lake Neuchatel has more than 50 of these dwellings; Lake Geneva has 40; Lake Constance more than 40, and Lake Zurich has at least 10.

Rudely sharpened piles were driven into the bottom of the lake with heavy stone mallets. This must have been laborious work, yet in some of the lake settlements more than 50,000 piles have been counted. Upon these piles the small dwellings were erected. Some of the walls are still standing and, after excavation, indicate the size and arrangement of the dwelling.

For domestic animals the lake dwellers had dogs, pigs, cattle and sheep. Certain varieties of wheat, barley, millet, oats and other grains have been found at the dwelling places. Several fruits, such as the apple, pear, cherry, plum and several berries are known, from the remains of their seeds, to have been eaten.

Two writers have recently given us vivid pen pictures of life as it was in that far-off time. Dr. Tyler, referring to the lake dwellers, says:

"Could we have sat on one of these village platforms of a summer afternoon and looked out to the wheatfields on the shore, and seen the canoes come in with fish and game, and the cattle returning from the mainland pasture; could we have watched the men fashioning implements and all manner of woodwork, and the women grinding the grain or molding pottery, or spinning and weaving, we should have found a great deal to please and interest us.

"The fruits and berries, the smell of roasting fish and baking bread, of cakes well flavored with the oil from beechnut or flax, or perhaps sifted over with the seeds of the poppy or caraway, would have been far from disagreeable. We should have felt that it was a goodly land and that life was well worth living."

And the second picture of that ancient life is by H. G. Wells: "Away beyond the dawn of history, 3000 or 4000 years ago, one thinks of the Wiltshire uplands in the twilight of a midsummer day's morning. The torches pale in the growing light. One has a dim apprehension of a procession through the avenue of stone; of priests, perhaps fantastically dressed with skins and horns—and horrible painted masks—or chiefs in skins adorned with necklaces of teeth and bearing spears and axes, their great heads of hair held up with pins of bone; of women in skins and flaxen robes, of a great peering crowd of shock-headed men and naked children. They have assembled from distant places, the ground between the avenues and Silbury Hill is dotted with their encampments. A certain festive cheerfulness prevails.

"And amidst the throng march the appointed human victims, submissive, helpless, staring towards the distant smoking altar at which they are to die—that the harvests may be good and the tribe increase. To that had life progressed 3000 or 4000 years ago from its starting place in the slime of the tidal beaches," where the tide ebbs and flows twice in 24 hours.

Both of them had forgotten Mugger, the crocodile, that so loves to wait in the mud of a ford. He had seized Singhai's foot and had already snatched him down into the water when Warwick fired. No living flesh can withstand the terrible, rending shock of a high-powered sporting rifle at close range. Mugger had plates of armor, but even these could not have availed against it if he had been exposed to the fire. As it was, several inches of water stood between, a more effective armor than a two-inch steel plate on a battleship. Of course, the shock carried through, a smashing blow that caused the reptile to release his hold on Singhai's leg, but before the native could get to his feet he had struck again. The next instant both men were fighting for their lives.

They fought with their hands, and Warwick fought with his rifle, and the native slashed again and again with the long knife that he carried at his belt.

At last, by a lucky stroke, Singhai's knife blinded one of the lurid, reptile eyes. He was prone in the water when he administered it, and it went home just as the savage teeth were snapping at his throat. For an instant the great reptile flopped in an impotent half-circle, partly reared out of the water. It gave Warwick a chance to shoot, a single instant in which the rifle seemed to whirl about in his arms, drive to his shoulder and blaze in the deepening twilight. And the shot went true. It pierced the mugger from beneath, tearing upward through the brain. And then the agitated water of the ford slowly grew quiet.

The last echo of the report was dying when Singhai stretched his bleeding arms about Warwick's body, caught up the rifle and dragged them 40 feet up on the shore. It was an effort that cost the last of his strength. And as the stars popped out of the sky, one by one, through the gray of dusk the two men lay silent, side by side, on the grassy bank.

Warwick was the first to regain consciousness. At first he didn't understand the lashing pain in his wrists, the strange numbness in one of his legs, the darkness with the great white Indian stars shining through. Then he remembered. And he tried to stretch his arm to the prone form beside him.

The attempt was an absolute failure. The cool brain dispatched the message, it flew along the telegraph wires of the nerves, but the muscles refused to react. He remembered that the teeth of the mugger had met in one of the muscles of his upper arm, but before unconsciousness had come upon him he had been able to lift the gun to shoot. Possibly infection from the bite had in some manner temporarily paralyzed the arm. He turned, wracked with pain, on his side and lifted his left arm. In doing so his hand crossed before his eyes—and then he smiled wanly in the darkness.

It was quite like Warwick, sportsman and English gentleman, to smile at a time like this. Even in the gray darkness of the jungle night he could see the hand quite plainly. It no longer looked slim and white. And he remembered that the mugger had caught his fingers in one of its last rushes.

He paused only for one glance at the mutilated member. He knew that his first work was to see how Singhai had fared. In that glance he was boundlessly relieved to see that the hand could unquestionably be saved. The fingers were torn, yet their bones did not seem to be severed. Temporarily at least, however, the hand was utterly useless. The fingers felt strange and detached.

He reached out to the still form beside him, touching the dark skin first with his fingers, and then, because they had ceased to function, with the flesh of his wrist. He expected to find it cold. Singhai was alive, however, and his warm blood beat close to the dark skin.

But he was deeply unconscious, and it was possible that one foot was hopelessly mutilated.

For a moment Warwick lay quite still, looking his situation squarely in the face. He did not believe that either he or his attendant was mortally or even very seriously hurt. True, one of his arms had suffered paralysis, but there was no reason for thinking it had been permanently injured. His hand would be badly scarred, but soon as good as ever. The real question that faced them was that of getting back to the bungalow.

Walking was out of the question. His whole body was bruised and lacerated, and he was already dangerously weak from loss of blood. It would take all his energy, these first few hours, to keep consciousness. Besides, it was perfectly obvious that Singhai could not walk. And English gentlemen do not desert their servants at a time like this. The real mystery lay in the fact that the beaters had not already found and rescued them.

There was only one thing to believe. The beaters had evidently heard him shoot, sought in vain for him in the thickets, possibly passed within a few hundred feet of him, and because he had been unconscious he had not heard them or called to them, and now they had given him up for lost.

Then he called into the darkness. A heavy body brushed through the creepers, and stepping falsely, broke a twig. He thought at first that it might be one of the villagers, coming to look for him. But at once the step was silenced.

Warwick had a disturbing thought that the creature that had broken the twig had not gone away, but was crouching down, in a curious manner, in the deep shadows. Nahara had returned to her hunting.

slightly above—and enjoy watching the next stage pay toll. He collected quite a haul, but was afterwards captured and served a term in the penitentiary.

But that can never happen again. Imagine a lone bandit trying to stop a string of huge, roaring 90-horsepower juggernauts, even if it were possible for him to operate at all within the cordon of trained rangers that police the wonderland far better than the average big city is protected.

The stage coach went out and the automobile came in during 1915, not without mourning for the passing of the famous bit of park romance. But the need of faster transportation was but another proof of how the national parks have brought America to the out-of-doors, for where the old coaches carried a comparative few, thousands now throng Yellowstone in a season, and the motor busses furnish transportation for many who now come annually. And this year over a hundred thousand are expected and planned for during golden anniversary year.

With the automobile came the elimination of the historic night stops at the Fountain Hotel in the lower geyser basin, at the Thumb and at Norris Geyser Basin, for now tourists can go all the way through to Old Faithful, then to the lake, to the canyon, over Dunraven Pass, though Camp Roosevelt to Mammoth Hot Springs, and, in one more jump, from the latter point to West Yellowstone. Motors speeded up the trip, eliminated long hours of road travel, and at the same time allowed more time for actual sightseeing at every point.

The automobile brought the magnificent park roads from West Yellowstone to the "loop" at Madison Junction, around the loop through Old Faithful, the lake, canyon, Camp Roosevelt, Mammoth Hot Springs and Norris Basin, from the loop at the lake over Sylvan Pass to Cody, and from Thumb Station to the south entrance and Jackson's Hole, the roads are among the highest class of motor highways.

And with them came the tourists driving their own cars, a few at first, then in greater numbers, until last year they were numbered by thousands, with every known make of car represented. To make the movement of traffic safe, it is handled in but one direction at a time, some of the roads being permanently one-way, and on others movement being allowed in different directions at different hours. With the traffic regulations have come that symbol of modernity, the motor cops, smart young rangers mounted not on horseback as of old, but on fast motor cycles, and woe to the driver who doesn't play fair.

But with all of the changes this modern demand for the outdoors has brought to Yellowstone, they have been handled by the National Parks Service with the greatest of delicacy, so that the grand old wonderland may never be tainted by artificiality, become "resorty" or lose its old-time lure.

The new structures, Old Faithful Inn, the hotel and camp at the Grand Canyon, the lake loop and camp, Camp Roosevelt, the ranger stations and new community houses at the places set aside for automobile camping parties are all gems of rustic log architecture, all made to enhance rather than detract from the spirit of the wilderness. With few exceptions the wonders of the park lie unchanged, as Bridger, Washburn, Langford and their compatriots first saw them.

An interesting basis of comparison between the geysers, falls and other wonders as they were when the park was created and as they are today is given by Mr. Langford's diary of the Washburn expedition as published in his book, "The Discovery of Yellowstone Park." A few of the geysers they saw have died down, some others have burst forth. Most of them are roaring on schedule time, just as they did 50 years ago; when Columbus discovered America; when Rome was young, and long before. If the spirits of Bridger and the old explorers can come back to help celebrate the golden anniversary, they'll find little to show them the passage of time.

The high Excelsior Geyser in the lower basin no longer spouts, but lies as a huge boiling lake in its deep crater. The great mud geyser near the Thumb, described by Langford, has somewhat diminished in force of eruption, but on the other hand, the Giantess, near Old Faithful, which the Washburn party found with the water level deep down in its crater now lies between eruptions with its crystal-clear, emerald-green pool level with the surface of the formation, and at Mammoth Springs the gigantic formations have grown perceptibly since that day.

With the exceptionally deep snows of last winter to furnish additional moisture, everything will furnish a gala aspect for the anniversary. The geysers are expected to be at their best, and the myriad cascades will be exceptionally beautiful. The great falls of the Yellowstone should eclipse even what Bridger and Langford saw, and they viewed nothing in their travels that will eclipse the moisture-fed forest decorations of the whole.

"Bertie" Acuff to Marry More Millions - -

nouncing that Roberta and her husband would arrive in St. Louis that evening. After a rather extended friendship she had been married to David G. Joyce, millionaire Chicago lumberman, brother of J. Stanley Joyce, who later married, and divorced, Peggy Hopkins.

Now began a period of such luxury as few young married women enjoy. The home at Chicago consisted of two adjoining apartments in the most fashionable district, which Joyce had leased and thrown together. Expensive furnishings, including paintings which cost many thousands of dollars each, made the place one to be remembered. The bride, with her silks and furs, her Paris hats and her jewelry, was decorated as lavishly as the home. In a nearby garage a Rolls-Royce and a Mercedes awaited her pleasure. Upon Joyce's steam yacht, the Marguerite, they spent their honeymoon.

There was also a sumptuous winter home at Miami, Fla., and for the hot weather a rustic "camp" near Longville, Minn., with one large structure of logs surrounded by guest cottages. Twenty motor boats rode at anchor, which indicates the scale of the entertainment.

"I have never seen two persons struggle so hard to live together happily," says Mrs. Howe. "Their troubles came, in my opinion, because they were so desperately in love with each other. David was insanely jealous of Roberta, and she was jealous of him. She is a sensitive girl and easily hurt. I've seen her turn white at things he said or did.

"Now David Joyce has many good points. I liked him very much, and I still do. You may be sure that I never interfered or criticised, for I knew they had to work out their own salvation. I spent about half of my time with 'Bertie,' and was not surprised when they finally decided to separate."

The end came while the Joyces and Mr. and Mrs. Howe were at Miami. It was in 1920, the same year that J. Stanley Joyce married Peggy Hopkins, but subsequent to that event. In fact, David Joyce, his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Howe were at Miami when the Hopkins-Joyce wedding occurred, but there was no visiting back and forth between the two households, says Mrs. Howe. And she commented further:

"Peggy Joyce had her Aunt Ida with her. I, of course, am Roberta's aunt. People in Miami used to get the two aunts confused, much to my embarrassment. I want it distinctly understood that I was Mrs. David Joyce's aunt, and not Mrs. J. Stanley Joyce's aunt."

One night David Joyce departed from Miami, under circumstances which indicated that he was through. The next day Mr. and Mrs. Howe, with Roberta and a party of friends, went to Havana for a week's stay. Roberta did her best to be cheerful, but for her the outing was not a happy one. Then the party returned to Miami, after which the Howes came back to St. Louis, while Roberta went to New York and shared an apartment with a friend, Miss Emily Keene. Mrs. Howe visited her there, and a year ago Roberta was a guest at the Howe home at Webster Groves.

Meanwhile, in the same year of 1920, she had secured a divorce from David Joyce. The terms of the financial arrangement are not known, but relatives say that David settled a life income of $1000 a month upon Roberta several years prior to the divorce, after the couple had "had a little difference." Anyway, she drove her own car in New York, and the Park avenue apartment was furnished, Mrs. Howe says, "not gorgeously but beautifully."

In June of last year Roberta went to Paris, where she has been living in an apartment with several friends, chief among them Mrs. Julie Batchelder, formerly of Chicago.

Roberta is above the average height, graceful and active, with brown hair which is naturally wavy. Her eyes change in color from blue to a greenish tint. She has very dark eyelashes and brows. Her coloring is such that she is said never to use rouge. Disposition, sunny.

Such is the St. Louis girl to whom wealth has come again, this time with the fame of the Gourauds attached. Is she to figure in another drama of that remarkable family? And if so, will it be a tragedy or a comedy?

Variety of Theme and Treatment Marks Work of Girl Art Student

THE sketches reproduced on this page are the work of Miss Margaret J. Prown, a student at the St. Louis School of Fine Arts, Washington University. They have attracted considerable attention in the annual exhibition at the Art Museum. While distinctive and full of individuality, they are not as freakish as the work of Aubrey Beardsley, of whom they are rather suggestive.

Simplicity in design and treatment characterizes the sketches. Variety of composition and avoidance of complicated patterns and textures also is evidenced. Serious study is shown in the competent portrayal of the human form in action. For years Miss Brown has made a practice of attending ballet performances, which accounts for the vigorous handling of her dancing figures.

Miss Brown, a former student at Mary Institute, spent half a year in the antique classes at the art school in 1917, then skipped a year and has now been attending classes there for three consecutive years. She is 21 years old. Eventually she plans to go to New York and after further study enter upon the work of book illustration. She said she would rather not draw modern costumes, but prefers the more picturesque subjects of earlier times. She has been sketching "ever since she was old enough to hold a pencil."

The Secret of Having Soft, Silky, Bright, Fresh-Looking Hair

STUDY the pictures of these beautiful women and you will see just how much their hair has to do with their appearance.

Beautiful hair is not a matter of luck, it is simply a matter of care.

You, too, can have beautiful hair, if you care for it properly. Beautiful hair depends almost entirely upon the care you give it.

Shampooing is always the most important thing. It is the shampooing which brings out the real life and lustre, natural wave and color, and makes your hair soft, fresh and luxuriant.

When your hair is dry, dull and heavy, lifeless, stiff and gummy, and the strands cling together, and it feels harsh and disagreeable to the touch, it is because your hair has not been shampooed properly.

When your hair has been shampooed properly, and is thoroughly clean, it will be glossy, smooth and bright, delightfully fresh-looking, soft and silky.

While your hair must have frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why leading motion picture stars and discriminating women, everywhere, now use Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo. This clear pure, and entirely greaseless product cannot possibly injure, and it does not dry the scalp or make the hair brittle, no matter how often you use it.

If you want to see how really beautiful you can make your hair look, just follow this simple method:

A Simple, Easy Method

FIRST, put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water. Then wet the hair and scalp with clear warm water. Pour the Mulsified evenly over the hair and rub it thoroughly all over the scalp and throughout the entire length, down to the ends of the hair.

Two or three teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather. This should be rubbed in thoroughly and briskly with the finger tips, so as to loosen the dandruff and small particles of dust and dirt that stick to the scalp.

After rubbing in the rich, creamy Mulsified lather, rinse the hair and scalp thoroughly—always using clear, fresh, warm water. Then use another application of Mulsified, again working up a lather and rubbing it in briskly as before.

Two waters are usually sufficient for washing the hair, but sometimes the third is necessary.

You can easily tell, for when the hair is perfectly clean, it will be soft and silky in the water, the strands will fall apart easily, each separate hair floating alone in the water, and the entire mass, even while wet, will feel loose, fluffy and light to the touch and be so clean it will fairly squeak when you pull it through your fingers.

Rinse the Hair Thoroughly

THIS is very important. After the final washing, the hair and scalp should be rinsed in at least two changes of good warm water and followed with a rinsing in cold water.

When you have rinsed the hair thoroughly, wring it as dry as you can; finish by rubbing it with a towel, shaking it and fluffing it until it is dry. Then give it a good brushing.

After a Mulsified shampoo you will find the hair will dry quickly and evenly and have the appearance of being much thicker and heavier than it is.

If you want to always be remembered for your beautiful, well-kept hair, make it a rule to set a certain day each week for a Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo. This regular weekly shampooing will keep the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, fresh-looking and fluffy, wavy and easy to manage—and it will be noticed and admired by everyone.

You can get Mulsified at any drug store or toilet goods counter, anywhere in the world. A 4-ounce bottle should last for months.

What a Child's Hair Needs

CHILDREN should be taught, early in life, that proper care of the hair is essential.

The hair and scalp should be kept perfectly clean to insure a healthy, vigorous scalp and a fine, thick, heavy head of hair.

Get your children into the habit of shampooing their hair regularly once each week. A boy's hair being short, shampooing takes but a few minutes. For either a boy or a girl, simply moisten the hair with warm water, pour on a little Mulsified and rub vigorously with the tips of the fingers. This will stimulate the scalp, make an abundance of rich, creamy lather and cleanse the hair thoroughly. It takes only a few seconds to rinse it all out when through.

You will be surprised how this regular weekly shampooing with Mulsified will improve the appearance of the hair and you will be teaching your child a habit that will be appreciated in after-life, for a luxurious head of hair is something every man and woman feels might proud of.

PINKERTON GOLF COATS Find Widespread Favor in All Sports

The Pinkerton—a gentleman's coat in character and weave—is now well introduced to the golfer of America. The demand for this coat has simply become enormous and the famous old Jersild Mills have been obliged to increase their production again and again.

The Pinkerton, being heavy enough for warmth and yet light enough for comfort, lends itself to all outdoor sports from motoring to trapshooting.

But it has found especial favor amongst golfers because its easy elasticity does not hamper your swing in the slightest: and, in its coat sleeve style, (specially made for the links) your arm is absolutely free for your stroke.

Made in all sizes for you and your sons.

Two new Nail Polishes just perfected

CUTEX
LIQUID POLISH
CUTEX
LIQUID POLISH
CUTEX
POWDER POLISH

Entirely new formulas that give a quicker, more brilliant polish that lasts ~

"We have made good polishes before, as have other manufacturers, but in these two new polishes we have introduced entirely new improvements that place them far ahead of anything of their kind."

Northam Warren
ORIGINATOR OF CUTEX

NOW, at last, two new nail polishes that you will hail instantly as something distinctly beyond any you have ever used. They are in the two most popular forms of the moment—Powder Polish and Liquid Polish.

Manicuring has now become so easy and delightful a process that no man or woman who expects to meet the critical eyes of friends dreams of neglecting this essential part of the toilet. With these two wonderful new polishes at last perfected you can have your nails brilliantly polished in half the time it used to take.

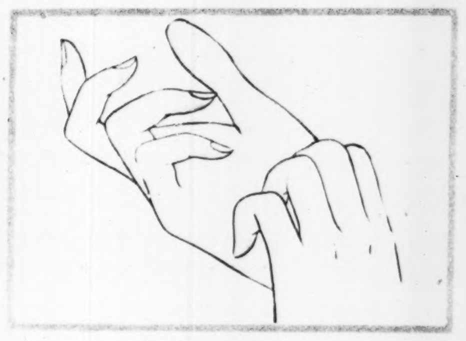
The Powder Polish is practically instantaneous. Just a few strokes of the nails across the soft part of the hand is sufficient to bring out the shine—a dazzling, jewel-like luster that is more brilliant and lasts better than any you have ever had before! It resists frequent washing—in fact, soap and water only improve it.

The texture of the powder itself is exceptionally smooth—the unpleasantly gritty quality that is so characteristic of powder polishes having been entirely overcome. And it has a "body" and firmness that prevent it from scattering wastefully. It is not in the least drying in its effect, and will, therefore, never roughen the cuticle nor make the nails brittle.

On account of the present vogue for pink finger tips, we have given it a somewhat stronger tint than our former polishes. And, finally, we have added to it a delicate elusive fragrance. You will be delighted when you see your own nails—so exquisitely pink and lustrous.

In the new Liquid Polish we have one that is entirely free from the objections to all former liquid polishes. It flows over the nail from the brush with an absolutely uniform smoothness, it dries instantly and leaves the most brilliant, delicately tinted luster—just like the inside of a sea-shell. It requires no buffing, of course, and it will keep its even brilliance for at least a week. When it begins to grow dull, you do not have to use a separate preparation to remove it. You simply put on a fresh coat of the polish, taking one nail at a time, and wipe it off quickly before it dries. This will leave the nail clean and ready for the new application. The Liquid Polish is the best possible protection to the nails. Used as a finishing touch, it will make a manicure last three times as long.

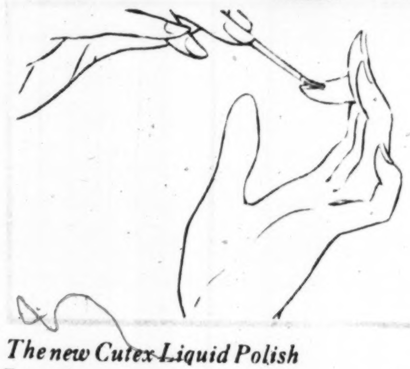
Really, you should try these two new polishes. Geraldine Farrar said when she tried them, "They are a revelation of what a nail polish should be." You will be delighted with their quickness, brilliancy and lasting quality.



The new Cutex Powder Polish

Spread on the palm of the hand and pass the nails lightly across it just a few times, and behold—almost instantaneously the most brilliant polish you have ever had

Geraldine Farrar who says: "These two new nail polishes are a revelation of what the ideal nail polish should be. Their brilliancy, and their quickness and ease of application, make them a real boon to the busy woman who must nevertheless be always well groomed."*



The new Cutex Liquid Polish

To apply, stroke each nail lightly, daintily with the little brush, working from the base upward. Instantly—a jewel-like shine that will last a week despite frequent washing.

A new set with these two new polishes

At the same time Cutex is bringing out a new set for $1.00 which contains full sized packages of these two new polishes with a full-sized bottle of the Cutex Cuticle Remover and orange stick, and a package of emery boards,—every essential for the quickest, easiest manicure. At last in only five minutes you can give your nails a perfect and lasting manicure. Just two things to do,—first use the Cuticle Remover and then the polish. The Powder Polish is 35c a box and the Liquid Polish 35c a bottle.

Cutex Sets come in four sizes,—the Compact Set at 60c, the Five Minute Set at $1.00, the Traveling Set at $1.50 and the Boudoir Set at $3.00, or each article separately at 35c. At all drug and department stores in the United States and Canada.
